Our Earth is Old.
You Shall Not Sell.
Marvelous Cow Machine
Copper Commonsense.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YOUR TEMPORARY abode, the earth, according to Dr. Kovarik, learned physicist of Yale, is far older than 6,000 years, once the accepted age.

The real age, calculated with remarkable accuracy, based on the gradual disintegration of radio active substances, is one billion, eight hundred and fifty-two million years. That seems a long time to our feeble minds, but is less than a second in the eye of Father Time.

IT IS INTERESTING to learn from Prof. Osborne, of the Natural History Museum, that men have been living on earth not for 6,000 years, but for forty million years. And it is particularly encouraging to know that the life of our earth and our human life on it, which depends on the life of the sun, will last for many more BILLIONS of years.

Within 12,000 years men have moved up from the late stone age, with its sharp flints and bows and arrows, to this age of flying machines, wireless and submarines.

If men have done that in 12,000 years, what will they accomplish in the next one thousand million years?

In that time, we might even stop murdering each other in war, swindling and oppressing each other in peace.

THE GOVERNMENT has said that California grape growers may legally sell the juice of grapes, concentrated or otherwise, provided they sell it before alcohol develops.

The grape growers are not held responsible for the laws of nature, which seem to have no sympathy with prohibition and turn innocent grape juice into wine, as the water was turned at the marriage feast of old.

BUT, WHAT SUITS the national government, according to news from California and Chicago, does not suit the distinguished gangsters that enjoy a monopoly of bootleg whisky and beer selling in Chicago.

Manufacturers of grape juice expected to sell great quantities in Chicago, the buyers to wait for nature to take her course and change the juice into wine.

But that cut down the demand for "needled" beer and "bathtub" whisky and gin. California's manufacturers of grape juice are told in plain, simple English by the head gangsters:

"If you try to sell any of that stuff in Chicago, somebody is going to be killed."

FARMERS ARE interested in the "rotolactor" or "cow-milking-revolving table" used by the Walker Gordon Company in New Jersey. The cow walks onto a big table, which revolves slowly and continuously as a moving staircase. Entering her stall on the table, the cow is washed clean and milked dry by machinery in 12 minutes, walks off the table, which holds 50 cows at a time, and goes back to her business of eating food and turning it into milk.

THAT IS applying industrial methods to farming. Groups of farmers could own such a table co-operatively, producing certified milk much more cheaply than the ordinary germ laden milk can be produced by the farmer moving his milking stool from cow to cow in a dirty, dusty barn.

THE COPPER companies, wisely, agree to stop cutting each other's throats by producing more copper than the world can use, thus demoralizing prices, which fall below cost of production, demoralizing employment.

IT IS TAKEN for granted that the government will not object to the arrangement or insist that producers shall continue reckless competition.

A more important question is this:

Will the companies hold together? Will copper men be able to do what the oil men vainly tried to do?

One mine can produce copper at one-half or two-thirds the production cost of another mine. One mine will have its copper cost reduced by a large silver by-product.

Will the more fortunate mines be content with their share of business and not try to get more by price cutting which they can afford and others can't afford?

MR. GEORGE EASTMAN, intelligent, leading citizen of Rochester, N. Y., makes millions rapidly and gives them away usefully

To the city of Paris he has offered $1,000,000 to build a dental clinic for school children under 16 years old.

No more useful gift could be devised

France is backward in dentistry, compared with America, and nothing is more important than the care of teeth in childhood, neglected, unfortunately, in the case of millions of American children.

BOARD WON'T RECOMMEND DRY REPEAL

Four Per Cent Beer Plan And National Referendum To Be Ignored in Report

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment has been definitely discarded by President Hoover's law enforcement commission as a solution of the present prohibition problem.

The commission members today had reached certain tentative conclusions—all of them subject to change—as to what they believed should be done to improve the situation surrounding the dry law. Such an eventuality as repeal, however, was not included among them.

DENY BEER SOLUTION

An authoritative denial has been entered, also, to the oft-repeated rumors the commission as a whole will recommend 4 per cent beer, or that it will urge a national referendum to determine sentiment upon the prohibition law.

Whether a final agreement will be reached upon some plan to strengthen the present system, or whether some form of modification will be urged, however, remained a question which only the 11 members of the commission could answer, and the secret was guarded with the same care that has surrounded all their 17 months of prohibition deliberation.

Word has come from within the commission ranks, nevertheless, that these 17 months of investigation have uncovered "astounding" things and that "there will be no pussyfooting" in the forthcoming dry law report.

REPORT READY JAN. 1

From certain members also has come assurance the report can be laid on President Hoover's desk by January 1, and probably before.

While members of the commission, in recess until November 24, continued informally the work of preparing the report, another attack was made on the Republican

Cab Driver Beaten, Found Unconscious

Beaten and left unconscious at Kerr avenue and Sparta street this morning, A. J. Barnett, 32, a cab driver, was taken to the South Side Hospital.

Barnett was found in the street by Patrolman John Gibson. His cab was parked in front of 824 Kerr avenue, near where he was attacked.

Raiders to Arrest Patrons With Liquor

NEWARK, Nov. 15.—(INS.)—Lewis J. Tutt, prohibition administrator for New Jersey, said today he planned to arrest all male persons found in raided establishments with liquor in their possession as material witnesses. He said that if the number of such persons was too large to handle in police cars, that taxicabs would be used.

MISS MARIAN WERSHING, 17 . . . CASH DRAWER WAS ROBBED

Held up at guns' points while the cash drawer of Corliss Creamery Co., Carson street, was robbed of $2,500, Miss Wershing, 7925 Inglenook place, was struck by a car as she returned to work today.

ROBBED CASHIER HIT BY AUTO

Miss Marian Wersing, 17, of 7925 Inglenook street, cashier of the Corliss Creamery Company, 1762 Carson street, from whom holdup men late yesterday snatched $2,500 during a holdup of the creamery, was struck by an automobile this morning as she alighted from a street car in Carson street.

She was taken to the St. Joseph Hospital, where her condition is reported as not serious. Ralph Fritsch, 20, of 1221 Oak Glen street, driver of the car, was released by police on a $50 forfeit pending the outcome of the girl's injuries.

HUNT BANDITS

A search was launched by police today for four bandits who escaped with the money, after holding 19 men and the girl cashier at bay last night.

PLAN SUNDAY FUND APPEAL

Plans for the special Sunday canvass of Allegheny County homes, in which more than 4,000 women will take part, will be made at a meeting of 3,000 Welfare Fund campaign workers in Carnegie Hall tonight.

The fund is seeking to raise $1,520,248. To date $652,660 has been raised.

Mrs. John M. Phillips, general of the County Neighborhood Division, will be the principal speaker, and Mrs. Ambrose Diehl, colonel of the Duquesne area, will preside. The invocation will be rendered by Dr. S. W. Corcoran, of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Other speakers will be A. K. Oliver, president of the Welfare Fund; Joseph Dilworth, chairman of the 1930 campaign, and W. F. Maxwell, executive secretary of the Welfare Fund.

The musical program will include group singing, with Vernon Porter leading, accompanied by Earl Mitchell at the piano, and other songs by the Joseph Horne Chorus, led by W. A. MacDonald.

Rain May Dim Meteors' Flash in Local Skies

The Leonid Meteors, known in the heavenly circuit as the shooting star circus, was expected to show here tonight.

But Dr K. Burns, of the Allegheny Observatory, said today that the show would be called on account of rain, in all probability And anyhow . . . but Dr Burns will tell you:

"Only a few of the most brilliant could be seen here by the keenest eyes. The hundreds would be invisable. The truth is, the farmer gets the breaks because the city's street lights make the show impossible.

"Big, dark areas are necessary if these shooting stars are to be viewed. We at the observatory are mildly interested—and then so only to answer questions of the curious."

The show, slated for the eastern sky, is to repeat tomorrow night shortly before midnight. Many couples are expected to drive into the dark areas to enjoy the fireworks.

W.-J. MEETS BUCKNELL HERE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Two out-of-town teams serve up the football menu for Pittsburgh fans at the Stadium this afternoon.

They are Washington and Jefferson College, of Washington, Pa., which returns here on the Saturday following Thanksgiving Day to play Carnegie Tech in that battle for the benefit of the needy unemployed and Bucknell University, of Lewisburg, Pa.

It is their tenth meeting, the first having been staged back in 1901. They have met annually for the last five years, and W. & J. holds the edge in the series with eight victories and one tie in the nine games played. The teams played a scoreless tie in 1928 and W. & J. won last year, 14 to 6.

HARD FIGHT EXPECTED

A keen scrap is anticipated, although Bucknell this year boasts one of its strongest teams, under the coaching of Carl Snavely, formerly mentor at Kiski School and Bellefonte Academy. The Bisons are the only team that has defeated Geneva this year, winning, 46-6, and they have won over Penn State in each of their last four games, this year's score, two weeks ago, having been 19-7.

Bucknell's husky squad arrived in town yesterday morning and worked out at the Stadium in the afternoon. A joint meeting of W. & J. and Bucknell alumni was held last night.

STARS IN LINEUPS

A number of tri-state district stars appear in the Bison's lineup. They include Warren McClain, tackle, formerly of Dormont High School; Wilbur Ammerman, halfback, of Tyrone; Justin Brumbaugh, halfback, of Springdale; Joseph Crowe, center, of Greensburg; Clark Hinkle, fullback, of Toronto, O., and Capt. Tony Slate, halfback, of Weirton, W. Va. Hinkle last year was the leading scorer in the East.

The W. & J. team is a fighting aggregation, one that has beaten Bethany, 74-0; Westminster, 35-0; Lafayette, 7-0, and Thiel, 20-0, while losing only to Temple 20-7, and tieing Wittenberg, 7-7 Walter

Mother of 13 Faces Trial In Rum Case

Mrs. Mary Solomon, 55, 1526 Cliff street looked up at Magistrate Leo Rothenberg and said:

"I am the mother of 13 children. I had to do something to keep them going."

Rothenberg answered:

"That makes no difference if you had 20. The officers found a 75-gallon still and 10 barrels of mash in your house. You are held for court under $1,000 bail for violating the Snyder act."

That was this morning.

The hands of the clock above the desk reversed themselves 24 hours and this was what happened in the same court yesterday. A man answered a name. He said:

"I am Frank Owens, of 1428 Bedford avenue.

"I operated that whisky cutting plant."

Rothenberg said Owens was charged with operating a plant where Lieut. William Lavery found 723 pints of whisky, nine of gin, two barrels of whisky chips

Some political gentlemen from the Hill moved shiftily into the back of the courtroom. Rothenberg ordered:

"Well, you are fined $100 or 30 days to jail and don't do it again."

PITT FACES OHIO STATE GRIDDERS

By JESS CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 15.—For the first time in football history, the University of Pittsburgh makes a sortie into one of the strongholds of the Western Conference today as the Pitt Panthers face Ohio State in the Buckeyes' Stadium here this afternoon.

A year ago, Ohio State sent its gridiron warriors to Pittsburgh to oppose Pitt, and before a sizeable crowd, Pitt took the measure of the Bucks by 18 to 2.

Today Ohio hopes to even the count. This game will attract between 45,000 and 50,000 football fans, not because it is an important ball game, but because it will mark the last home appearance of the ever-popular Buckeyes, and the initial appearance of Pitt eleven in Big Ten territory.

For the first time since the Michigan game, which was lost, Ohio will be able to present its full strength. Wesley (The

PLANE DOWN ALL NIGHT AT SEA

Darkness Forces Air Giant To Descend; Craft Taxis To Port, Resumes Hop

International News Service.

BORDEAUX, France, Nov. 15.—Exactly one hour after leaving its all-night sea anchorage off La Rochelle, the German air liner DO-X, carrying 11 passengers and a crew of 13, alighted on the Giroude River at 1 p. m. today (8 a. m. eastern standard time.)

Curious thousands lined the banks of the river to witness the mammoth ship's arrival, which completed the third leg of its projected flight to the United States.

GIANT PLANE DESCENDS

Fog and darkness had compelled the ship to descend on the sea off the French coast yesterday evening, several hours after leaving Calshot Aerodrome, Southampton, England.

Bordeaux was fully prepared to extend passengers, officers and crew of the air liner an enthusiastic, if belated welcome. Municipal officials were on hand to greet them, while the thousands who had been waiting since early morning to view the arrival bore witness to the popular interest in the aerial argosy of the world's largest heavier-than-air flying craft.

The DO-X made unusually good time on the flight from its ocean anchorage to Bordeaux. The distance was approximately 120 miles.

MAYVIEW DEATH QUIZ BEGUN

Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Coroner W. J. McGregor today were investigating the death in the Mayview Hospital late yesterday of Charles Lapp, 65, of this city, from a fractured skull.

The skull fracture was revealed by an autopsy after an X-ray examination at the Mayview institution had failed to disclose the nature of his injury, according to the coroner's records.

Lapp was arrested in the Hill district November 2, and docketed as Charles Walker. He was sentenced to jail for 10 days by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg on a charge of drunkenness. Jail attendants found Lapp's condition serious and sent him to Mayview for observation.

Lapp died after being semiconscious since admitted to Mayview. He had made no complaint of his injuries while a prisoner at Central Station, according to police, nor at the hearing before the magistrate. Lapp's address is not known.

POLICE EYE SKY FOR LOST SHIP

Police throughout Western Pennsylvania today kept their eyes on the sky for a Curtis-Robin airplane taken from the Franklin, Pa., airport last night.

The pilot, Jack L. Faulkner, described as five feet six inches tall with black bushy hair, also was reported missing in the report broadcast over the state teletype system last night. The plane is the second sought by police in the last three months.

The Deparment of Commerce registration number of the plane, owned by the Northwestern Airways, Inc., is NC 304 K and its Pennsylvania identification number is 410, according to the report.

TREASURY DEFICIT FORECASTS END OF LOW INCOME TAX

HOOVER SEES 'NO CAUSE' FOR ALARM

Senators Smoot, Reed Oppose Continued Reduction; Will Revert to High Level

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—President Hoover believes there will be a small Treasury deficit at the end of the fiscal year and this view today reduced hope of maintaining the current reduced income tax rate.

HOOVER NOT ALARMED

The necessary expenditures are expected by the President, without cause for alarm, to exceed revenue "by a comparatively small percentage." He said:

"As we have had surpluses over many years, we probably can stand a small deficit over one year without disarranging the stability of the government."

He did not say the temporary 1 per cent income tax made last year would have to be abandoned, but the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Senator Smoot, of Utah, said he opposed continuance of the reduction. His word on fiscal affairs is considered authoritative and so is that of Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, who had preceded the Utahan in saying he did not believe the low rate could be renewed.

BACK TO HIGH LEVEL

As the reduction voted last year was temporary, the rates will revert to their higher level unless Congress acts, which it is unlikely to do without administration urging.

The permanent scale enacted two years ago ranges from 1½ per cent for personal incomes of $4,000 or less to 5 per cent for incomes of $8,000 or more, with 12 per cent as the rate for corporations and insurance companies.

AWAIT LAST FIGURES

President Hoover said final consideration of appropriation estimates was being held up to afford the maximum possible information on the government's income. Among other items the amount he will recommend for expediting public construction has not been determined.

EXTRA SESSION, NORRIS THREAT

By FRASER EDWARDS,
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Hoover must accept the Norris plan for government operation of Muscle Shoals or face the virtual certainty of an extra session of Congress.

Such was the ultimatum flung down today by progressive Republicans and Democrats in the Senate, despite the opposition of the regular Republican and Democratic leaders to a special session.

Moreover, the legislative situation in the short session is such as to give the Progressive coalition the whip hand, which will enable it to impose its will unless the President yields on Muscle Shoals. Senator Brookhart, Iowa, said:

"The Norris Muscle Shoals bill and many other vitally important legislative matters must be acted upon at this session or we must have an extra session."

Just now President Hoover is adamant in his stand for the Reece bill, which would turn over the $150,000,000 Muscle Shoals project to private power companies. The President fears inefficiency in government operation.

Now Up to G.O.P. Not to Embarrass Administration

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

The Democrats have promised not to embarrass this administration.

We thought it was the Republicans who were doing that.

That's an easy promise for any Democrat who would do anything to get to Washington.

Fame is easily acquired. Democrats who never embarrassed anybody are now promising not to embarrass Mr. Hoover.

We are rather suspicious of the consolidated broth that will result from the amalgamated armistice.

When you ask a man to help you stir your soup don't let him use a big spoon. He will get less with a fork.

Senators Robinson and Watson have cancelled their partisan reservations and will assist the President. They must want tickets to the Army-Navy game.

Senator Glass is willing to cooperate on any legislation that will promote public welfare. That must mean at least six more amendments.

But being a true Democrat, Senator Glass refuses to become a happy little egg rolling on the White House lawn.

We must have Democrats around. If you don't like bunkers don't play miniature golf.

Who's been doing all the missionary work among these political heathens?

Congress is going to be a very quiet spot without the filibusterers leaping from branch to branch and uttering the quaint cries of their species.

And in the meantime, the shade of Jefferson is singing, "I wonder what became of that old gang of mine?"

SEEK KIN OF 2 DEAD BROTHERS

A verdict of suicide was rendered by the coroner at Montreal, Quebec, following an investigation into the death of two Pittsburgh youths, who ended their lives there Thursday by inhaling illuminating gas in their apartment. The victims, John and George Kerr, brothers, 26 and 24 respectively, are believed to have been discouraged because of their failure to find employment.

A woman known as Mrs. Kerr, who also is said to have received a telegram addressed to a Mary Nagle, was mentioned at the inquest as being a friend of the brothers.

TAX INCREASE APPEAL DATE EXTENDED

Property Owners Storm Assessor's Office Before 3 Days' Grace Is Granted

The time for taking appeals from property assessments under the triennial assessment, recently completed, scheduled to expire tonight, was extended three days by Chief Assessor Thomas C. McMahon today.

This announcement was made as 200 property owners stormed the assessors' offices in the City-County Building protesting against increases in property values that will send their taxes skyrocketing.

Five hundred Brookline residents, aroused at the proposed increase in property values in that district, voiced their protests at a meeting in the Brookline Public School, Woodbourne and Pioneer avenues, last night. The meeting was arranged by the Brookline Board of Trade, and was presided over by Attorney William J. Blakeley.

39 FILE APPEALS

Speakers were Blakeley, P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America; John E. Crawford, treasurer of the Eye and Ear Hospital; P. S. Space, assistant trust officer of the Fidelity Title and Trust Company, and others.

Speakers brought out that increases in the triennial assessment is from 40 to 200 per cent, some residents being raised from $450 to $1,500. Nearly every home and business place in the district is affected, it was charged. Thirty-nine property owners have filed appeals.

A resolution was adopted authorizing a committee of 10 to ask the Board of Assessors to accord residents a public hearing and to extend the time for filing appeals, due to close today, another week. It called attention of the assessors to the fact that Pittsburgh has one of the highest tax rates in the United States.

CHARGES 'POLITICS'

Fagan, in his talk, declared politics was at the bottom of the increase. He said:

"Brookline is on the wrong side of the political fence. The entire South Hills section seems to have come under the disapproval of certain political leaders. They tell us many things, but have you ever heard of City Council collecting the $1,300,000 stolen from the city of Pittsburgh by the American Reduction Company?

"Increases in tax rates have been general, and without proper proportionment. My own home, where I was forced to build a wall to keep the front yard from sliding into the gutter, has been taxed the same as properties that would bring far more in a sale.

SEES RAILWAY CONTROL

"This, and other actions at the City-County Building, demonstrate that the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Duquesne Light Company, and not the Mayor and City Council, are running Pittsburgh.

"If this proposed increase stands, then Pittsburgh people should demand a lower millage. As it stands now, it is a crime against the community."

Edward Baxter, 19, is preferring charges of auto-stealing against Mrs. McGoorty, mother of a baby, 3, because she made him walk home from an automobile ride. "Framed," she says.

mained at the wheel of an automobile parked near the plant, three of the bandits walked in through the front door which was unlocked. One walked into the front office where he confronted Miss Wersing, 17. In an adjoining office a second thug ordered three salesmen to throw up their hands. The third bandit walked into the rear storeroom where P. H. Sappe, the manager, was discussing plans for the company's banquet with 15 salesmen.

FLEE IN AUTO

The bandit who took a position in the front office helped himself to the cash in the drawer. The loot, $2,500, comprised the daily returns of the salesmen, it was said.

After obtaining the money, the trio bolted from the place into the waiting automobile and headed down West Carson street.

Entering the office of Mac's Service station, 1816 Montier street, Wilkinsburg, an armed Negro last midnight held up two attendants and escaped with $135 from the cash register and their pockets. The attendants are J. L. Ewing, of 1027 South avenue, and James Ray, 1510 Montier street.

CLERK ROBBED

William Fairman, clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court, reported to detectives this morning he had been robbed of $50 in cash and a diamond ring valued at $500 early today at Sixth avenue and Forbes street. Fairman, who lives at 405 Moore avenue, Knoxville, said three men had knocked him to the street and had stolen the ring and money.

Asking for a pack of cigarets, two men drew revolvers and ordered Lena Lanza, proprietress of a confectionery at 1933 Forbes street, to hand over contents of the cash register. She gave up $28 and they fled in an automobile.

N. S. MAN ROBBED

Two armed highwaymen early today robbed Robert W. Beckett, of 3220 Brighton road, North Side, of $24 at Stockton avenue and Arch street. The men pressed revolvers against his sides and took the money from his wallet, Beckett reported to police.

Land Prices High, May Cut Park Site

Because property owners were asking excessive prices, 33 acres may be eliminated from a 170-acre site for the proposed muncipal park at McKeesport, it was declared at a meeting of McKeesport City Council yesterday. A bond issue of $140,000 has been provided for the park. City Engineer L. F. Savage was instructed to stake off a portion of the site in the Five Fields section for consideration at the next councilmanic meeting.

PROBERS DROP REPEAL PLAN

URGE FESS QUIT

Representative Britten (Rep.), Illinois, last night said Fess should resign as chairman of the party's national committee immediately, turning management of the Republican machine over to "some one who can properly sense public opinion."

Earlier in the day the Ohio senator had been defended for his position by Senator Brookhart, (Rep.), of Iowa. Coincidentally with the Britten statement, a prediction came from Dr. Arthur J. Barton, chairman of the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon League, that the drys in Congress will not agree to submit an Eighteenth Amendment repeal proposal to the states.

ADD OWN OPINIONS

Unless plans are changed the commission will meet up until the day before Thanksgiving, adjourn for a day, and immediately convene again to continue the final drive.

It has also been planned at the conclusion of the report to have each member write an opinion on the problem they have been tackling, describing how each arrived at his own conclusion, and his personal feeling toward the recommendations as a whole. These opinions would be attached to the report itself as it is laid upon Mr. Hoover's desk.

Coolidge Approves Stand Against Special Session

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 15.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The report of proposed co-operation between the two parties in the Senate to pass appropriation bills at the coming short session of the Congress and prevent the necessity for a special session for that purpose is welcome and encouraging news. The responsible elements in the Senate intend to conduct the nation's business and not to permit that function to be assumed by irresponsible minorities. A special session with no regular business greatly agitates the country, as the past months have shown. The amount of money expended would be large. The people want no agitation and no increased taxes.

Calvin Coolidge

When a new president is coming in who certainly will have a special session, delay in appropriations might be warranted. But to attempt to force a special session by congressional action is close to an usurpation of power. It encroaches upon the executive authority which is entrusted with calling special sessions. A disposition to transact the business of the nation speedily and leave the President responsible under the Constitution for any further action will have wholesome effect on the country. It represents political sanity and will increase public confidence in the Senate.

CONFESSES KILLING IN WEST VA.

Zambrano Admits Slaying, Police Say, Because Victim 'Had Something on Him'

Louis A. Zambrano, 29, of 6412 Winslow street, confessed early today, New Martinsville, W. Va., authorities state, that he lured Vito Ascoli, of Tioga street, East End, to Pine Creek near New Martinsville and there shot him to death. The victim, whose body was partially burned, was identified as a Pittsburgher last night.

CONFESSES TO SHERIFF

Sheriff L. B. Snyder, of Wetzel County, West Virginia, declared Zambrano had made a detailed confession of the killing. Snyder said Zambrano lured Ascoli to Pine Creek on the pretext of showing him the site of a proposed moonshine plant. The murder was committed, Snyder said Zambrano confessed, because Ascoli had "something on Zambrano and the latter was afraid Ascoli would tell police."

Saturday morning Pittsburgh detectives surrounded Zambrano's house in Winslow street and arrested him for West Virginia authorities. A license plate on a machine seen near the camp was traced to Zambrano.

BODY BURNED IN BLANKET

Sheriff Snyder said Zambrano and Ascoli had been loafing together for several weeks at an alleged speakeasy at 7240 Tioga street, East End. Both men disappeared from their East End haunts early this month and Zambrano returned to Pittsburgh alone.

Ascoli's body was found wrapped in a blanket, saturated with oil and set afire. Ascoli had been shot in the head.

PAIR RELEASED

Early yesterday, at the request of New Martinsville police, Pittsburgh officers raided the Tioga street address and arrested Mike Pittillo, 27, of 602 Larimer avenue, and William Jennings, 36, of 915 Gerrett street.

Jennings and Pittillo were arraigned in East End court yesterday morning. Jennings was fined $25 and Pittillo $100, after police reported finding moonshine in the establishment. The men were turned over to local homicide detectives, but released after it was learned the identification had been made.

DO-X SAFE AT BORDEAUX

Bordeaux, said that the plane had been forced to alight short of its goal yesterday and taxi to La Rochelle because of the fast approaching darkness.

He denied that anything was wrong with the plane's motors. Some of the passengers of the DO-X said that "four motors were coughing" at the time the plane was forced to descend. Schildhauer said:

"We alighted off the Vendee coast at 5:25 p. m., and then taxied over 100 miles to reach this spot where we anchored at 10:20 p. m. No, nothing was wrong with the motors.

"Success? Don't you think this is success? Too dark to be prudent to remain in the air—we just come down and taxi to shelter. Where would any other plane be, I ask you?"

The weather here was very thick and foggy this morning but the sun finally broke through the haze.

GRAND JURY TO GET 'CONFESSION' OF CLARA BOW'S AIDE

GIRL DENIES ADMITTING THEFT

Secretary to Film Actress Refutes $35,000 Robbery Story; Threatens Suit

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—District Attorney Buron Fitts today avowedly was preparing to present to the grand jury an alleged confession of Daisy Devoe, former secretary to Clara Bow, admitting the embezzlement of $35,000 from the film actress.

Fitts' statement that Miss Devoe had made a confession was contradicted in a declaration coming from Miss Devoe, who had not been arrested and for whom no warrant had been issued.

Miss Devoe asserted she had made no confession, would deny the accusation and welcome the grand jury investigation. Fitts said the grand jury would be given the case Thursday.

THREATENS SUIT

Miss Devoe announced she intended to file a damage suit against Fitts' office for being held in "technical custody" unjustly for more than 60 hours and for forcing her to open her strongbox and surrender its contents.

Fitts said the matter came to Miss Bow's attention on her return some time ago from New York. He said she missed various articles, including an ermine coat.

Without naming the complainant, Fitts said his office received a formal request for a criminal complaint against Miss Devoe for embezzling money and property belonging to the actress.

During an investigation, the district attorney continued, "Miss Devoe made a 30-page confession" and "a great deal of Miss Bow's money and property was found in her possession." Fitts said:

"It is the policy of this office, before issuing a complaint against a private citizen, to thoroughly and completely investigate the case in order to prevent a mistake or miscarriage of justice."

In light of the results, he added:

CLAIM CHECK FOUND

Investigators for the district attorney's office said Miss Devoe had "confessed" to having access to the actress' bank account during the two years of their association; that she had bought and furnished a home for her mother, and purchased an expensive automobile and a large amount of clothing.

They said a $22,000 check, which had not been cashed, was found in the strong box.

OFFICER, SHOT BY 'PAL,' DIES

Otto Parson, 50, of 701 Island avenue, was to be turned over to the coroner today in connection with the murder of Patrolman Grover Wolf, 38, of McKees Rocks, who died last night in the Ohio Valley Hospital from a bullet wound in the abdomen, according to the coroner's report.

Parson was arrested by Wolf while on his way to a speakeasy in Island avenue, McKees Rocks, early yesterday, according to Parson's story to police. Clubbed by the officer on the way to the patrol box two blocks away, Parson drew a revolver and fired one shot. The bullet struck Wolf in the abdomen.

The two had been friends for 10 years, it was said. Parson had held target practice with McKees Rocks patrolmen a few nights ago in an alley behind his home.

Woman Dead, 15 Ill; Find Flour Poisoned

HARRISBURG, Ill., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—County officers have begun investigation of the death Tuesday of Mrs. James Grisham, 54, and violent illness of 15 relatives and friends, apparently as result of poison.

After burial of Mrs. Grisham analysis of flour in the Grisham home, showed it contained poison. Her husband, F. J. Grisham, said he had been violently ill. He said the only poison on the place, used for spraying potatoes, had disappeared.

The couple lived alone. The others became ill when they ate at the Grisham home after Mrs. Grisham's death.

CASH, JOBS AID DRUSIN FAMILY

Help from an unexpected source has practically assured a fresh start in life to the four children of Joseph Drusin, coal miner, of Rural Ridge, who hanged himself rather than face trial for the theft of a loaf of bread.

Drusin was to be buried this afternoon in the cemetery at Russellton beside his wife, who nine years ago ended her life by hanging. The plight of the Drusins, which has resulted from periods of unemployment, attracted the attention of a local charity, and yesterday clothing, food and money found their way into the household.

Help has also arrived from other sources. A fund gathered from the more fortunate families in the neighborhood was given to the family, and other amounts were sent by sympathizers who read the story in the newspapers.

The local charity has also assured employment to John Drusin, 20, eldest son, and Herman Gottenthaler, 23, husband of Vernie, 21, the oldest daughter. Betty, 12, has accepted one of several positions offered her.

Cuts Higher Card, Named Sheriff; Rival Kicks

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Having cut a higher card, A. M. Webb, Democrat, has been given a certificate of election as sheriff. At the polls he tied Sheriff E. L. Davis, Republican. Election officials decided to abide by the cards, but Davis is going to make a contest.

HAVANA QUIET, TROOPS RULE

HAVANA, Nov. 15.—(INS.)—Peace returned to Havana today in the wake of martial law established, following a series of riots which claimed seven lives and more than a score injured.

The atmosphere remained tense, but the presence of heavily armed forces in the streets prevented any further outbreaks.

STATE TROOPER TO SURRENDER IN TAX CASE

Former Captain Expresses Surprise Over Suit by U. S. Charging Evasion

Thomas J. McLaughlin, former commander of Troop A, Pennsylvania State Police, will surrender voluntarily to federal authorities who have a warrant for his arrest on the charge of evading payment of income taxes on $133,689.19 either today or Monday, the ex-captain promised United States Marshal J. C. McGregor this morning. He is arranging for bond here today.

SURPRISED AT ACTION

At his home in Greensburg yesterday the former state police troop commander expressed surprise over the indictment which had been handed down by a Federal grand jury earlier in the day. He said:

"Why, I don't know what this means. I thought the whole affair was over when I paid the money government men said I owed as back taxes. I certainly never meant to evade payment —I guess the whole thing was ignorance or a misunderstanding on my part. I didn't think it was necessary to file a return, having been under the impression all along that state employes were tax exempt."

TO EXPLAIN INCOME

As to the source of the income which government agents and officials at Harrisburg declare was in excess of the $3,000 annual salary he earned as state police captain, McLaughlin has maintained strict silence. Neither to his superiors at Harrisburg nor to agents of the Intelligence unit of the United States Treasury Department has he offered any explanation. He said yesterday:

"I can explain where the money came from all right and I will do so when it becomes necessary."

The warrant for McLaughlin's arrest was issued yesterday by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker soon after the indictment was handed down. The amount of bond was not set.

MADRID RIOTING BREAKS ANEW

MADRID, Nov. 15.—(INS.)—Sporadic rioting broke out in Madrid today despite strenuous police precautions to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's serious disorders, in which four were killed and scores wounded.

Today's riots started as demonstrations of protest against the action of police in charging yesterday's crowd with drawn sabers. Similar tactics were used by the police again, however, and several persons were injured by police sabers.

The building trades proclaimed a strike of protest, and fears were felt a general strike of all industrial and manual workers may result. The Central University was closed because of the disorderly attitude of the students.

The riots yesterday followed a demonstration during funeral services for four workers killed in a building collapse. Agitators charged the accident was due to negligence by constructors, and in a few moments the mob became unruly.

A STAR GOES WINDOW-SHOPPING

DUSOLINA GIANNINI....SHE CAME TO SING AND WENT WINDOW-SHOPPING

Noted Singer Here, Enjoys Window Shopping Tour

It was sunshiny; several gowns were especially beautiful; she seemed to be enjoying herself when someone began asking her questions.

"Shopping?"

"No, just window-looking. I never shop on days I'm to sing. I should stay inside and rest all day, but the sunshine . . . It's a beautiful day."

No one who heard her sing last night with the Detroit Symphony would have known she had thus neglected her rest. And Oaklanders hope she takes a stroll before this afternoon's concert in Syria Mosque. But the peripatetic interview on Forbes street, punctuated here and there by a gown, went on.

ALWAYS DENIES ROMANCE

"What do you like to talk about on sunshiny days?"

"Well, when I come back from Europe, the reporters all ask me if I've been married."

"And what do you say?"

"I say no. I once said I never even had a sweetheart. The truth is I've had some offers, a good many. But I'm too young and too wrapped up in my career to think of accepting—just now."

"How can you resist those musicians with such wonderful wavy hair?"

WOULDN'T WED MUSICIAN

"Oh, I'd never have a musician. I don't believe in man and wife being in the same business. It may work out sometimes, but . . . "

Miss Giannini inferred that she meant it, but she hummed a little.

"Does music ever bore you?"

"Never, I've been singing since I was 3 years old. My father was a singer, my mother a violinist; my sister and brothers are musical. Yet, I never tire of it, because, I suppose, it's a part of me. . . . Say . . . isn't that gold wrap beautiful . . . metallic cloth."

It was.

YOST, VIOLINIST, SEEKS DIVORCE

Thus Gaylord Yost, of the Fairfax apartments, prominent concert violinist and teacher, described his married life at the hearing of his divorce case against Mrs. Rose N. Yost before Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Common Pleas Court.

Yost declared his wife told people he was only a "poor fiddler" and constantly nagged him, interfering with his home practice. She was indifferent to his friends and accused him of friendliness with other women and once she threw a plate at him, he testified. His health suffered because of her conduct, he said, and his ability as a musician was impaired.

They were married in Indiana in 1917 and parted in June last.

LEGENDARY APPARITION IN THEATER

Darewski, Leading London Orchestra, Faints After Drummer Sights 'Wraith'

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Herman Darewski, who wears a crown in the kingdom of jazz, was perturbed today because what he thought was the ghost of Siegfried, Richard Wagner's hero-child, appeared as he played last night for a ball at Covent Garden.

SAW ARMED WARRIOR

Unnerved and shaken, the composer, who has heard the English-speaking world stumble over his "K-K-Katy" and dream his "Whispering," wondered what retribution Valhalla, Wagner's warrior heaven, would demand for modern music's cacophonic, syncopated sins against the stately rhythms of another day.

As Darewski's baton marked the measures of a modern waltz in the Covent Garden arena last night, the composer-conductor noticed the drummer had dropped his sticks and was staring wide-eyed across the hall. Darewski turned and saw, he said, emerging from the wall a nebulous ghostly figure which he at first thought to be an illusion created by a rotating ball of shimmering mirrors in the center of the ceiling.

The illusion shaped itself, Darewski avers, into an armed, helmeted figure, which glided majestically over the heads of the dancers and then faded mysteriously into nothing. To Darewski, the figure seemed to be an apparition of Siegfried, hero grandson of Wotan, who, in Wagner's opera, awakens fair Bruenhilde from a fire-encircled bed.

COLLAPSES INTO CHAIR

The conductor's baton stopped still, and he, shocked, collapsed into a chair which stood beside the podium. The band stopped its waltz, and the dancers, amazed and thinking Darewski ill, flocked toward him. Quoted later Darewski said:

"As I gazed and the figure took the shape of an armed warrior, I felt weak from the shock. Members of my band crowded around me and two of them, as startled as I was, told me they also had seen the apparition. The dancers stared in amazement when the band stopped and flocked toward me, thinking me ill. At that moment the floating figure, which had almost reached the stage door, faded away."

At this point the composer wiped his forehead, continuing:

"Even now I can scarcely speak calmly of what I saw. I am still shaken and unnerved. It was lucky the dancers were looking at me when the music stopped and not at the back of the hall. I fear that if they had seen what I saw there would have been a panic."

OTHER THEATER GHOSTS

It has been a rumor for more than a century that the Covent Garden Theater is haunted, but the ghost usually reported is that of the famous playwright, Sheridan, whose appearance is said to coincide with some important incident. The Drury Lane Theater and the Haymarket Theaters also reputedly house ghosts.

Darewski is one of the most widely known composers of modern music. The British Who's Who uses nearly two-thirds of a column to list his musical works, which include such hits known in America as "Flora," "Irene," "Razzle Dazzle," "When We've Wound Up the Watch On the Rhine," "K-K-Katy," and "Whispering."

Jury Disagrees Over Auto Death Suit

After 24 hours' deliberation by a jury in Common Pleas Court, a disagreement was recorded in the suit of Louis Cardillo, of Rowan street, against Harry J. Heck, proprietor of a Lowrie street market, seeking damages for the death of Cardillo's wife, Christina Cardillo, in an automobile collision. Heck's car hit Cardillo's in trying to pass on the New Castle road at Rose Point, July 29, 1928, according to the testimony.

Fund for Sleuths' Car Fares Runs Out

City detectives faced the prospect of paying their own carfare on investigations until January, when Council will act on the 1931 budget. The appropriation for the buying of street car passes for the sleuths ran out a week ago, it was said.

Veterans Protest Plan to Move War Cannon

OIL CITY, Pa., Nov. 15.—A proposal by Oil City Council to remove a captured German howitzer, relic of the World War, from its present location near the ex-service men's memorial in Central avenue, has stirred city-wide protest. Council contended the cannon interfered with automobile parking and suggested removal to Hasson Park or to the Carnegie Library ground, across the street.

The American Legion has adopted a resolution protesting Council's suggestions.

Odd Fellows Meet For Double Rally

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 15.—The Westmoreland County Past Grands Association will hold its next monthly meeting in Odd Fellows Hall, Greensburg, Thursday evening, November 20. At the same time and place District Deputy J. R. Truxal has also called a meeting of the lodges of the second district.

K. OF C. HOLDS COMMUNION

Pittsburgh Council, Knights of Columbus, will hold its annual communion Sunday, November 23, at the 8:10 a. m. mass in St. Mary of Mercy Church, Fourth avenue and Ferry street. The Rev. Daniel Krahe, council chaplain, will be the celebrant. Breakfast will be served in the Cardinal room of the William Penn Hotel.

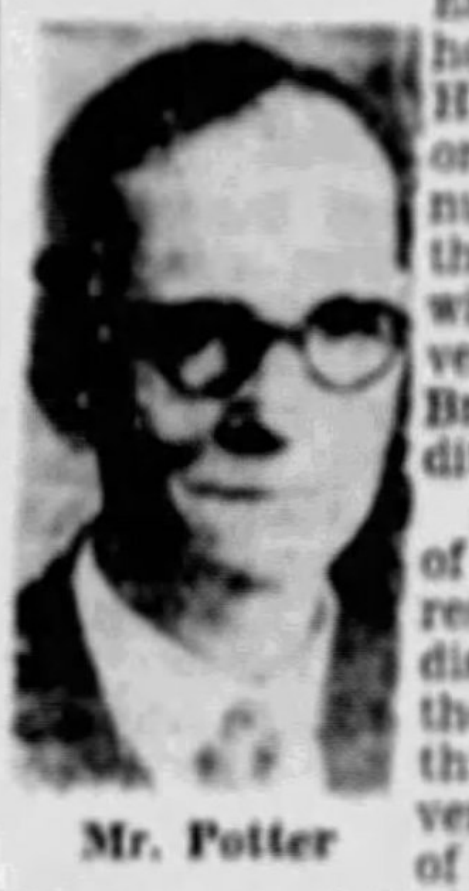
The Rev. Dr. M. A. Kelly, head of the language department of Duquesne University, will address the members at the breakfast. Dr. Kelly is of the Holy Ghost Order, and for 16 years was associated with mission work in Ireland and England. The mass will be offered for the repose of deceased members of the order. John J. McShane, Jr., has been named general chairman.

Salvation Army Services Tomorrow

"Corps Cadet Sunday" will be observed tomorrow in the Salvation Army headquarters auditorium, 425 Second avenue. The exercises will start at 8 p. m. Adjt. George Brooks will speak on "Moses."

CLASS HONORS RECORD HOLDER

For the past 19 years William Potter, of 5714 Harvard street, East End, has not missed, nor been late, at a single session of the Emory Brotherhood Bible Class. He will be honored at the annual banquet of the class, which will be held November 24 in the Brotherhood auditorium.



Mr. Potter

For a number of years Potter resided quite a distance from the church, yet through the severe snow storms of winter he always managed to be present. He says he proposes to maintain this record until sickness or death intervene. He said:

"I have made a few sacrifices in order to maintain my record, but they are as nothing with what I have received for attending. I know that the men of this class are pulling for me to maintain this record. I do not know, but this may be the little corner I am to fill in this life. I owe a great deal to this class."

Census of Blind Taken in County

The State Council for the Blind, operating under auspices of the Department of Welfare, is conducting a census of all the blind and near-blind in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, George Hackenburg, field representative announced today. Hackenberg, himself partly blind, is making personal calls on all the afflicted known to him.

He asks that persons knowing of blind men and women help make the census complete as possible by giving the information to the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, at 434 Boulevard of the Allies.

Popular Painting Ballot to Begin

Visitors to the Twenty-ninth Carnegie International Exhibition will have an opportunity to express their views, beginning tomorrow, the opening day of the voting contest for the popular prize painting. The artist whose painting receives the most votes in the two weeks, November 16 to November 30, inclusive, will be awarded the $200 prize offered by the institute. The purpose of the popular prize is to stimulate interest in the exhibition.

"Mortals and Immortals" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read tomorrow in all Christian Science Churches. The golden text will be "As we have borne the image of the earthly, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly."

Ingram Congregation To Hear Two Sermons

"The Sin of Social Irresponsibility" will be discussed tomorrow morning by the Rev. Dr. Charles C. Cribbs, of the First Presbyterian Church, Ingram. At the evening service Dr. Cribbs will speak on "How to Save the Child."

PASSION PLAY TO SHOW FOR CHILDREN

Two School Matinees Carded At Behest of Ministers; Reduced Rates to Prevail

At the request of ministers of the Pittsburgh district, two additional performances of the Freiburg Passion Play, which opens Monday night in Syria Mosque, will be offered to school children at a reduced rate.

The first will be held next Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for students of Allegheny County, outside of the Pittsburgh schools. This matinee has been arranged by the Lutheran Inner-Mission Society and the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association. These organizations will have charge of the tickets and will use the proceeds for work they are carrying on throughout the county.

The second special performance will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock for the children of the Pittsburgh schools. Arrangements for this performance are being made by the Rev. R. W. Woods, of Homewood. The Pittsburgh Railways Company will co-operate in handling the children to and from the play.

WRITES PRAYER FOR JOBLESS

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—A prayer "for deliverance of civilization from grinding poverty and excessive riches" was issued from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine to the clergy of Protestant Episcopal churches throughout the Diocese of New York.

The prayer was written by the Rt. Rev. William T. Manning, in the interest of men and women out of work. It is designed "for use in the churches and by people in their homes."

The prayer follows:

"O Almighty God who hast blessed the earth with all that is needful for the life of man, give Thy help and comfort to all who are in need and especially to those, our brethren, who are now suffering through unemployment; stir us to do our part for their aid and relief; help us to realize our responsibility for the injustices of our social and industrial life; fill us with the desire to purify our civilization and make it truly Christian that we may be delivered from the evils alike of grinding poverty and of excessive riches; lead us into the paths of simple and upright living; take from us the spirit of covetousness and give us the spirit of service, show us the way so to order our life as a nation that, receiving the just reward of honest labor, none may want, but each according to his need may share in Thy bountiful provision.

"We ask this in the name of Him who came into this world to show us the way of justice and brotherhood and love, Thy son Christ and Lord."

Dr. Goldenson Gives Third Talk of Series

Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, of Rodef Shalom Temple, will speak tomorrow morning on "Judaism and Christianity—What Have They in Common?" This will be the third in a series of lectures based on the recent religious forum.

"BILLY" BLACK

REVIVAL BEGINS SECOND WEEK

Tomorrow will open the second week in the series of evangelistic meetings being conducted by the Irish evangelist, "Billy" Black, of Los Angeles, at the Sheraden Gospel Tabernacle of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, Sherwood avenue and Sherwood boulevard.

At the morning service the Rev. Black will speak on "The Privileges of Sonship." At the afternoon service his subject will be "Startling Biblical Prophecies of 3,000 Years Ago Fulfilled Today." He also will speak at the evening service.

SCHOOL ALUMNI TO BANQUET

The annual banquet and election of officers given by the alumni association of the School of Accountancy will be held tonight in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Officers of the association are working hard to make this affair one that will be remembered by all who attend. There will be few speeches and lots of entertainment. The alumni association is initiating 45 new members, all graduates of the Pittsburgh School of Accountancy.

Sermons Announced By the Rev. Cramer

The Rev. K. L. Cramer, of the First Baptist Church, Sharpsburg, will speak tomorrow morning on "I Shall Not Be Moved." At the evening service the Rev. Cramer will discuss "The Healing of the Demoniac, or the Salvation of the Enslaved Sinner."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Eugenia Nash Makes Bow In South

A bouquet of southern buds was presented to society last night in Norfolk, Va., at one of the town's oldest traditional events, the opening ball of the Norfolk German Club.

And among the debutantes of the evening was a Pittsburgh girl who formerly lived in the South, Eugenia Nash, daughter of the Thomas C. Nashes, of Bellefonte street.

The debutante, who is tall, and slender, and blonde, wore a smartly simple gown of white satin, fashioned in the princess mode, and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses. She was escorted by Campbell Bryce Simmons, Jr., of Norfolk. And she was attended by her mother, who wore deep cream moire brocaded in yellow flowers, and by Mrs. Leigh R. Powell, who wore black velvet.

Eugenia will be one of the 24 guests at the debutante's dinner at the Norfolk Country Club tomorrow night and on Wednesday will be guest of honor at a reception her mother will give in the home of the bud's aunt, Mrs. Reverdy Jones, of Portsmouth, Va.

Symphony Attracts

This fall there's been just one opening after another, and last night brought another, the opening of the symphony concerts of the fall and winter with the Detroit Symphony and magnetic Dusolina Giannini at Syria Mosque.

There were many vivid gowns there, but none so striking as that of the singer, who with her dark, vivid coloring, looked like a queen of a Medieval Court of Love in a flowing peach satin gown ending in a train with the seafoam green velvet sleeves cascading from the elbow to the hem-line. A jeweled girdle encircled the waist.

Many of the most faithful concertgoers were there, among them, of course, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., who entertained in her box. She wore a lovely, long wrap of violet velvet having circular tiers at the hemline, and a collar of sable.

Arriving with her daughter, Mrs. Reed Brown, just back from six months in Paris, was Mrs. W. Edgar Reed, who wore a gold and bronze and black wrap over a blue lace gown. Her daughter was in black crepe.

* * *

Colorful Velvets

Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins wore regal black velvet with painted flowers distinguishing the decolletage, and a long white ermine cape. With her was her daughter, Elizabeth, in cherry crepe and a black velvet and white hare wrap.

I caught a glimpse of Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby and of Barbara Ewing in a sapphire blue lace gown and a cloth of silver wrap. Mrs. George Faber Downey chose a beige lace gown and a black velvet and ermine wrap, and Rebecca George was there, too.

Truly distinctive was Mrs. John W. Lawrence's gown of "inky" violet satin, flared below the hipline, and having as its only trimming a huge blue violet velvet bow stimulating a bustle

Mrs. Jo[illegible] E. Nelson wore hydrangea blue velvet, and her daughter, Peggy, white crepe with a wrap of garnet red velvet.

Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, Jr., wore yellow moire, and Mrs. Mortimer Miller, garnet red lace.

* * *

Black Is Popular

Mrs. James Edward Lewis chose coral crepe and velvet. And I believe I saw Mrs. George C. Burgwin in black satin, fashioned with a train.

Mrs. Samuel Harden Church was there, and Mrs. William Jarvis in black velvet. Mrs. Thomas Cree wore a coral velvet wrap, and Frances Kier wore a smart black velvet gown with a band of white hare finishing the peplum, and with the popular lattice motif adding distinction to the back decolletage.

Others I saw were Mrs. J. Thomas, the Albert P. Germains, the Frank Glovers, Mme. Kate O. Lippa, Mrs. J. Thomas, Miss Marie Dermitt in black velvet, Mrs. Ernest Roth, Mrs. Robert Withers in blue velvet, and Mrs. H. H. Patterson in blue lace.

Notable Betrothals

Many members of the younger set, and, of course their fathers and mothers, too, are interested in the engagement of a debutante of the past winter, Mary Thorburn Maccoun. Her parents, the Andrew Ellicott Maccouns, of North Braddock and Baltimore, are making known her betrothal to Richard Rider Jackson, son of the junior Everett E. Jacksons, of Baltimore.

Her fiance is a grandson of the late Gov. Elihu Everett Jackson, of Maryland. He's a graduate of Yale, class of 1928, and a member of ever so many smart clubs, among them the St. Elmo Club, the Yale Club of New York, the Maryland Club, the Baltimore Bachelor's Cotillion and the Baltimore Country Club. The wedding will take place, by the way, in January.

Another engagement of the week-end is that of Catherine Harwood, daughter of the Paul H. Harwoods, of Park avenue, New York, and Charles Lockhart, son of the James H. Lockharts, of Fifth avenue. Catherine attended Miss Hall's School in Pittsfield, Mass., and Mr. Lockhart is a graduate of Princeton.

Breakfast For Hunt

There are always dozens of social affairs on Thanksgiving Day, and one of the most looked-forward to events for some members of the social set is the annual meet of the Sewickley Hunt on Thanksgiving, after which the George A. Benneys, of Farmhill, Sewickley Heights, will entertain at a hunt breakfast.

There will be a tea dance in the Allegheny Country Club the same day, at which the William Booth Millers, of Pine road, will present their daughter, Elizabeth Booth Miller, to Pittsburgh folks.

Another hunt event scheduled for the day of universal Thanksgiving is a joint meet of the Rolling Rock Hunt and the Westmoreland Hunt, in Greensburg, and on the following Saturday, November 29, they will meet again in Greensburg, as I've mentioned before.

Wedding On Friday

Friday is the day chosen by Miss Esther Rowan, daughter of Mrs. Katherine Rowan, of Mellon street, for her marriage to George Herbert Kelly, of Chicago. The ceremony will take place in St. Paul's Cathedral at 9:30 o'clock that morning. Miss Helen Mueller will be the maid of honor. Edmund Kelly, of Chicago, will be his brother's best man. The ushers will include F. W. Barniville, of Chicago and Pittsburgh, and W. C. Maloney, of Pittsburgh.

A wedding breakfast will be served in the Hotel Schenley. Mr. Kelly and his bride will make their home in Pittsburgh.

Married In Church

On Friday, November 7, in the Sacred Heart Church of Jeannette, Miss Aurelia M. Staley, of South Pacific avenue, became the bride of Edward B. McGraw, of Shelter Bay, Canada, formerly of Pittsburgh, son of Mrs. Antoinette W. McGraw, of Wilkinsburg. Officiating was the Rev. P. Callistus Stehle, uncle of the bride, before an embankment of white chrysanthemums, cibotium ferns and crotons.

The bride wore a traveling suit of brown broadcloth and a corsage of orchids. Miss Margaret Callahan was the maid of honor, and Hackett Gibson was the best man. A dinner was given for the families in the Latrobe Country Club.

The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's, and the bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Michigan, class of 1924.

Mr. and Mrs. McGraw will be at home in Shelter Bay after a trip to Montreal and Quebec.

November Ceremony

On Tuesday morning, November 4, at 9 o'clock, in St Ursula's Church, Miss Mary Lou Killingsworth daughter of Mr and Mrs. C E Killingsworth, of Duncan avenue, Allison Park, became the bride of John Francis Betz, son of Mr and Mrs. Lawrence Betz, of Wyland avenue, Allison Park at a nuptial high mass, with the Rev H. J. Killingsworth officiating

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin with a matching hat and carried Killarney roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Catherine Betz, sister of the bridegroom, wore orchid satin and carried Talisman roses. Small Geraldine Betz, sister of the bridegroom, and Marjorie Butterbaugh, of Tyrone, cousin of the bride, serving as flower girls, wore yellow crepe embroidered with orchid, with matching hats. George Neelan was the best man.

A wedding breakfast and reception was given in the home of the bride for 150 guests

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(INS.)—Auction of the personal possessions of Mrs. Charles V. Bob, wife of the missing stock broker, was to end today. The sale has already returned close to $50,000, it was estimated.

COLORADO VOTE INQUIRY ENDED

DENVER, Col., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Bristling with allegations and denials of public utility participation in Colorado elections, evidence was completed before the Nye senatorial campaign fund investigating committee studying expenditures in Colorado.

Chairman Gerald P. Nye said:

"In no state have we succeeded in getting into the record facts of so great value as we have in Colorado, facts having a bearing on the possible enactment of legislation looking toward limitation of expenditures in senatorial campaigns."

Yesterday's committee session was attended by only two members, Chairman Nye and Senator Porter H. Dale, of Vermont. It was featured by the appearance of Clare N. Stannard, vice president and general manager of the Public Service Company of Colorado, a Doherty concern, who asserted emphatically his company had not interested itself in any elections.

Stannard is the chief executive of the concern whose chief legal counsel is George H. Shaw, Republican candidate for United States Senator, defeated in last week's elections.

Self-Styled Priest Held for Threats

A man who told police he was a Greek Catholic priest was being held for a hearing today for his alleged threats on the life of his former housekeeper.

The priest told police his name was Alex Halurchynsky, 39, of 655 Spruce street, Sharon, Pa. He was arrested last night in Lecky way, Woods Run, on complaint of Mrs. Eva Russion, 22, a widow, of 3549 McClure avenue, the former housekeeper who declared the clergyman had threatened her with death, according to police.

Indicted in Forgery Of Federal Check

Frank Mosser was indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of forging a $28 government check. While residing on Perrysville avenue in October, 1927, he was said to have obtained possession of the check, payable to Mrs. Marie Blaine, widow of a war veteran, and to have cashed it by forging her name.

Two years later he was arrested at Swanton, Md., but escaped from a federal officer. Later he was apprehended in Pitcairn by secret service operatives.

Youth Hurt in Truck Crash Asks $15,000

Joseph Fazio, 19, and his father, Antonio Fazio, filed a suit for $15,000 damages in Federal Court against the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Their bill of complaint alleges the son was injured when a truck he was driving, July 29, collided with one of the defendant company at Kirkwood street and Highland avenue. They charge negligence on the part of the telephone company driver.

Women Told Of Indoor Weather

Ninety per cent of our discomfort while indoors is not due to the air being unfit for breathing, but to its not having capacity to carry away body heat at the rate produced. When the body has to make adjustments to normalize the rate loss, discomfort ensues, Miss Ingels, America's only air-conditioning engineer, told the Southern Club yesterday.

The heat-carrying capacity of air depends on three factors, temperature, humidity and motion, and these three are automatically controlled when indoor weather is made, she went on, adding that unless moisture is kept in the room the average living apartment is dryer than the Sahara. The evaporation of many gallons per day is necessary to insure healthful condition and only installation of weather making apparatus can give perfect satisfaction, she stated.

Miss Ingel's talk was only one feature of an especially interesting program. Mrs. Walter E. Close, in a beautiful period costume, gave a finished interpretation of W. S. Gilbert's "Comedy and Tragedy," and Percy Dorrington, baritone, with Edward Kountz at the piano, delighted the members with his recital.

Tea followed with Mrs. Marie Tello Phillips Yeagle and Mrs. A. B. Lynn pouring.

The annual founders' day banquet of Pi Lambda Theta, women's honorary education fraternity, will be held under auspices of Delta Chapter, University of Pittsburgh, and Western Pennsylvania Alumnae Chapter at the Congress of Women's Clubs this evening. Mrs. Genevieve Knight Bixler, national president, will be the speaker.

* * *

Miss Josie Jaegle, new grand regent of Court Duquesne No. 659, Catholic Daughters of America, and the other officers will be installed at a meeting to be held November 25.

* * *

Talks On Voice

Miss Mary Jane Paul will give her third talk in the series, "Glorifying the American Girl's Voice" at the semi-monthly meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club Thursday evening in the Congress of Clubs.

* * *

In the First Church on Tuesday morning a regular meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Pittsburgh Presbytery will be held.

* * *

A talk on "Woman's Work in Palestine" and reports of the national convention together with reports of officers and chairmen will feature tomorrow's meeting of Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadassah.

The annual city-wide bake sale of the chapter is set for Tuesday, November 25.

Physician T6o Speak

Thursday's meeting of the Keystone Chapter, Daughters of American Pioneers, will be in Mrs. G. R. Ryland's home, Beacon street. Dr. C. H. Henninger will talk on "Medical Measures Used by Pioneers" and music will be furnished by Mrs. Frank Sumney

* * *

A regular meeting of the West View Forum will be held Monday at the home of Mrs Walter Dyck, Ridgewood avenue. A Thanksgiving program is planned and papers will be read by Mrs. Edna Kunz, Mrs. J. N. Myers, Mrs. Fred Brown, Mrs. C. V. Shoup and Mrs. George Schuler. The music program will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dyck, Ralph Hoagland and Miss Elizabeth Graf.

* * *

Of more than ordinary interest is the program to be given Monday afternoon at the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club meeting. In response to roll call, "things that people do that annoy me" will be named. Mrs. James I. McLallen will talk on "Seeing Through Our Children's Eyes;" Miss Edna Reitz, dean in the high school, will talk on her duties, and Mrs John M. Phillips, chairman of the home department of the State Federation, will be a third speaker. An open forum on "How Much Chaperonage Do Our Young People Need?" will conclude the afternoon.

The Juniors of the club will hear a travelogue on India by Mrs. C. E. Skinner when they meet Monday night with Mrs. Erda M. Erdman, Penn avenue.

* * *

The Crafton Woman's Club changed things about a bit in preparing this year's program, and instead of the usual reception for the new president, Mrs. W. F. Brosius, she and her predecessors, as well, were honored at a luncheon. It was given yesterday in the Congress of Clubs, with covers laid for 125 and with elaborate decorations of unusual beauty.

Mrs. Brosius introduced Mrs. Val E. Schott, Jr., whom she succeeded, and in turn each past president introduced her predecessor, who was present. A thoroughly enjoyable musical program was presented by Sylvia Snyder, soprano; Katherine Rickert, violin; Alyce Martin, 'cello, and Grace Blenko Martin, piano.

* * *

The history and traditions of conflicting nations and peoples were cited by Mrs. Harvey Gaul in her talk, "Return to Palestine," at the College Club yesterday afternoon. Throughout her discussion Mrs. Gaul stressed the idea of universality above nationalism. She felt that there are cultural possessions in music, art and kindred fields that could be shared by all peoples regardless of their nationality, and that this enjoyment is made possible by understanding the various mediums of artistic expression.

* * *

A humorous talk on "High Brows, Low Brows and Broad Brows" was given by Mrs. John Cross, president of the Philadelphia Federation of Women's Clubs, before the South Hills College Club last night in the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church. Lucille Miller Werner added a delightful program of soprano solos.

* * *

The Carnegie Woman's Club devoted yesterday afternoon to "Books." Miss Mary Harris telling of the work of the public library, Miss Martha Logan talking of children's books and Mrs. D. H. Andrews giving a book review. Mrs. Floyd Wallace sang, accompanied by Mrs. L. E. Becraft, and Betty Jean Heathcote gave readings.

"Martha by the Day" has been chosen by the Sheraden Woman's Club for its annual dramatic presentation December 4 and 5 in Langley High School. The club heard a talk by Mrs. W. R. Parrish on the Oberammergau Passion Play yesterday, and music by Bertha Bayard Galbraith, accompanied by Mrs. W. W. Andrews.

P. R. R. Maintenance Men Get Cash Prizes

Distribution of several thousand dollars in prize money to maintenance of way men will be made by the Pennsylvania Railroad today. The largest amount awarded, $800, will go to Daniel E. Callahan, of 349 East Riverview avenue, Bellevue, supervisor, Federal Street Station, whose sub-division of track through the North Side was officially pronounced the best maintained on the main lines of the central region.

Others receiving large awards are C. E. Frick, of Derry, $600, and his assistant, $200; Supervisor J. C. Dayton, of the Panhandle division, $600, and his assistant, $200; W. E. Baker, Panhandle division, Carnegie, $700, and assistant, $300.

VOGUE FOR LONG EARRINGS INCREASING IN POPULARITY

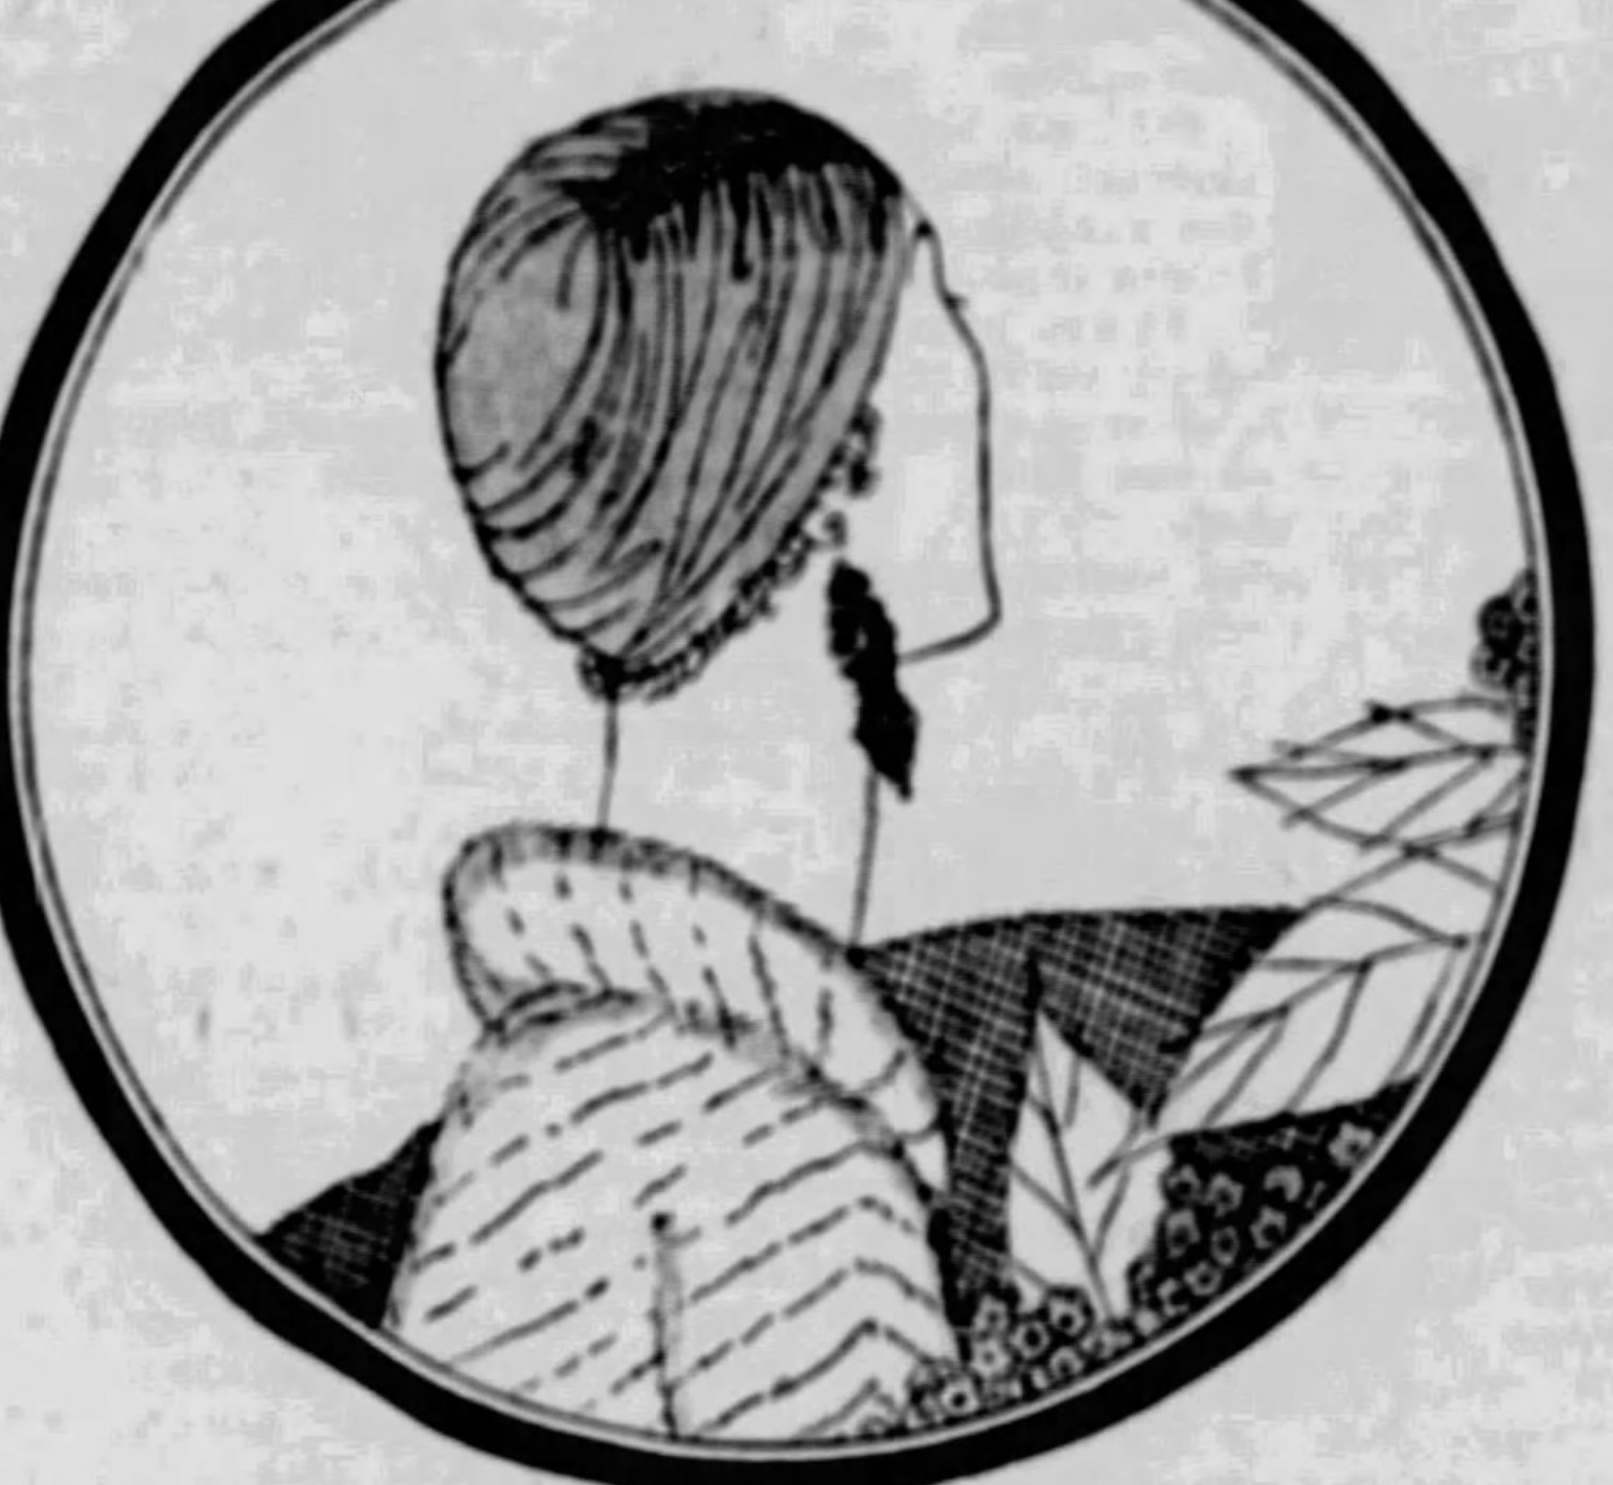
Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The tinkling sound of far off music is often heard now in the brief, still moments of a festive gathering. But the tinkle that may be reminiscent of miniature Japanese windbells, is discovered to be that of long, decorative earrings worn by one of the fashionable women of the group. Earrings of this type are the logical complement of the long period evening gowns of this season's mode. But while they are certainly an embellishment that carry also a degree of dignity, it is well to remember that they are not flattering to everyone. While they may enhance the charm of the woman who is tall and of slender countenance, they tend to accent rounded contours of the plump. Nevertheless there are a great many women who can wear them and the vogue is gaining favor here.

* * *

MME. GANNA WALSKA, famed for her collection of jewels, has been one to sponsor the idea. Her long earrings of antique turquoise were particularly effective as she chose to wear them with a wrapped turban of turquoise velvet set back from the forehead and shirred on one side.



* * *

MANY WOMEN are adopting these wrapped turbans for formal wear and they are often seen in a bright hue that matches their slippers but contrasts to their gown. It is an especially successful idea when the gown is of black or white.

* * *

AND TO SHOW YOU that the waistline is also a new point of decorative interest we are showing you a gown from Maggy Rouff. The amusing girdle is formed of large balls of black or colored sequins, as the individual taste prefers. Girdles of paillettes, tiny beads, sequins or rhinestones are a feature of importance here now. The entire top of the frock in back is formed of set-in bands of the fabric, crepe romain, which turn toward the front in rounding curves. Fan pleats are set in at either side of the skirt.

MOORE ESTATE FUNDS HELD UP

No bequests have been paid from the million dollar estate of Alexander P. Moore, former ambassador to Spain, it was revealed today, as word was received from New York that Dorothy Russell Calvit, daughter of Lillian Russell, was preparing evidence to sue for half the estate.

Payments have been withheld by the Union Trust Company, executors, until filing a report with Orphans' Court. The executors are permitted to wait until February 17 before filing, according to Carroll Davis, trust officer. He indicated the report would not be made until that time.

Samuel Kornbluth, New York attorney, yesterday declared the suit would definitely be filed when evidence to substantiate his client's charge had been gathered. He claimed Moore made a verbal agreement at the time of his marriage to Lillian Russell in 1912 to leave half his property to Mrs. Calvit. The will made a bequest of $10,000.

Mrs. Calvit is in dire circumstances, according to her attorney. Her only income is $50 weekly, left in a trust fund by her mother.

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Motor Square Garden is celebrating its tenth anniversary as a boxing center and that will prompt many to inquire: Where are the marathon dancers of yesteryear?

William Pfarr

Well, Tony and Teeny, from the Hill, are married. Bonach, who was a soda jerker in a dance hall before the marathons, is now running his own hall, and Eddie Leonard, we understand, has gone back to plastering. Eddie's partner, Marian Jacque, joined a vaudeville act soon after her bid to fame.

These are the three couples who tied for the marathon championship in that wild week at the Garden almost three years ago, boys and girls who a few weeks before were enveloped in obscurity.

First under the astute John McGarvey and now under John Hernon and Jules Beck, the Garden has prospered with its boxing shows, but never did it attract the customers as they turned out for Prof. Milton D. (Dance) Crandall's marathon.

* * *

Crandall himself emerged from the marathon with most of the glory—the kind of glory, of course, which such freak contests shed. Fifty per cent of the proceeds of that venture were his, and with $12,000 in his kick, he rushed down upon New York and hired out Madison Square Garden for a national marathon—all, as he would say, for the sake of science.

His first New York marathon was a complete dud and threatened to deplete the Crandall finances until a New York tabloid "exposed" the affair as inhumane, DANCERS DIEING—TORTURED HUMANS—GHASTLY GHOSTS

OOGH! ME FOR TH' MARATHON DANCERS

—such headlines as these, accompanied by distorted pictures, aroused a morbid crowd's interest, and they rushed to the Garden to see the freaks.

Again Crandall prospered. Probably, when the first New York marathon was ended and the profits split, he owned $30,000. But he pushed his luck across the country and even to Canada, and a half-dozen similar contests were flops. He came back to his own town to put on two more contests, but all he gained from these were newspaper clippings.

It was along about this time that he made his biggest bid for fame and fortune. He went West and joined up with Billy Sunday, the evangelist. He followed Sunday from town to town, always grabbing a seat in the first row and singing loudest when the hymn books were passed.

* * *

Sunday's curiosity was aroused by this stranger who followed him across the country and finally Crandall introduced himself and, he tells, his proposition to Ma Sunday.

Why not, Crandall asked, have Sunday make talking pictures of his sermons so that they might live after him and spread to all four corners of the earth? The proposition fell through, sad to tell.

If Crandall, who is now promoting exploitation for a string of important theaters in Ohio, were here, he could tell you about that marathoner who, lifted from a nonenity onto the front pages within a week, stepped into a taxicab outside the Garden soon after the marathon ended, only to hear the driver ask:

NOT KNOWING WHERE I LIVE!

"Where to, buddy?"

"What!" the amazed marathoner exclaimed. "You don't know where I live? Ain't you been reading the papers?"

WILL ROGERS SAYS

NORTH ISLAND, Cal., Nov. 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Am out here on the broad ocean on the airplane carrier Langley. In spite of our diplomats and their social sinking conferences, we've got a lot of Navy left, in fact about enough for two more conferences. Flew down here in a fast Navy (hell diver) plane with the assistant secretary of the Navy, Dave Ingalls, piloting. Just think, a man in charge of aviation that can fly. It's almost like a general fighting in his own war, and say you haven't had any landing in an airplane till you land on the deck of one of these things. I sure was glad we hit it. Got to tell you more about this later.

Will Rogers.

Yours, WILL.

Many Musicians Prominent Among Movie Actors, Scribe Finds

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15.

Hollywood could have its own symphony orchestra of stars if someone could only get them together.

Among the film celebrities who play the violin are Clive Brook, Marlene Dietrich, Victor Schertzinger, Charles Chaplin and Lionel Barrymore. Ludwig Berger, the director, plays the cello.

Pianists are too numerous to mention, save for Ernest Torrence, who has been a concert artist in his time.

Buddy Rogers is the most versatile, playing the cornet, drums, saxophone, xylophone and piano. Victor Schertzinger runs him a close second, being an expert at the piano and the pipe organ in addition to the violin.

Lionel Barrymore

Other saxophonists are Eddie Quillan and Lew Ayres. The latter was a member of a dance orchestra before he entered the films. He also plays the banjo.

Jesse Lasky once was a cornetist in a band, while Charles Farrell also is proficient with this instrument—of torture.

MORE FOR BRENDEL FILM

RETURNS TO SCREEN

Jobyna Ralston

The star, who practically retired upon her marriage to Richard Arlen, has been signed to play the feminine lead in "Sheer Luck," a racketeering story that will be made at the Tec-Art studios.

Nick Stuar, is to play opposite her, and Philo McCullough will be the heavy.

The Pittsburgh Orchestra Association presented the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Ossip Gabrilowitsch conducting, in concert at Syria Mosque last night. Most of the former patrons were there to greet one another in the lobbies, and many new faces must have meant that orchestral music is becoming popular.

J. Fred Lissfelt

It was one of the most poorly arranged programs we have had to endure for many years. The interpolation of a singer with a dignified aria works well, but to have her aria followed by a group of inconsequential songs, and then an encore of lesser quality, can only prepare us for such programs when the Waters of Minnetonka and Beethoven's Fifth Symphony will march side by side. Certainly Pittsburgh audiences have grown beyond such musical indignities.

Rachmaninoff's E Minor Symphony is Slav throughout, loosely built, and melodic. It has its brooding moments, its carnival scenes, its ballot touches, its marches and outbursts of sentimentality, all of which was good for the orchestra, for seldom have the Detroit players created so cold a tone as in the opening Weber overture. Swishing violin tones can not produce the color which Rachmaninoff seeks; Casella's orchestration of the Balakirew Islamey might have taught him plenty. This fantasy in the original is a stunning exhibition of pianistic virtuosity, and only its Italian orchestration makes it a presentable orchestral work.

Dusolina Giannini, a soprano whom we have always heard in song recital, gave a very good account of herself in the Tschaikovsky aria from Joan of Arc. Many of her shortcomings seemed to have disappeared with the orchestra's help, and we heard for the first time the more brilliant qualities in her singing. She will repeat her songs this afternoon and sing also a scene from Weber's Oberon.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

"SCOTLAND YARD" TALE OF MASQUERADE

By EDWARD GOSS

"Quick, Watson, the needle. Ah, that is better. Now my dear fellow will you be kind enough to hand me my violin. Thank you."

"What new crime has so perturbed you?" asks Watson.

"Those movie fellows omitted us from a picture titled "Scotland Yard" showing in the Aldine," replied Sherlock. "Am I not distracted enough already without meeting such a dastardly affront?"

It is true—Sherlock Holmes and his shadow, Watson, do not appear in "Scotland Yard." To admit the entire truth, there is not one single private investigator in the whole affair. This is either a tremendous blunder or a masterpiece of genius on the part of the movies. The public has become so accustomed to handsome swains setting themselves up as private detectives and laughing at the weak attempts of the "yard" to unravel the usual screen mystery that the Aldine's show leaves it a bit surprised.

As for the story—it has one even though it isn't worth mention. Just a case of one man masquerading as another.

The principals are Edmund Lowe and Joan Bennett. They made the best of a bad story.

LYTELL'S "BROTHERS" PICTURE IN ENRIGHT

By HOWARD L. BROWNING, Jr.

"Brothers," playing in the Enright Theater, is improbable melodrama, but, like most melodramas, it has its moments if one isn't too exacting, too practical.

Bert Lytell is one of two foundling brothers. One adopted by a washwoman of the asylum's head doctor; he is brought up in the slums, cradle of crime and moral degeneracy. His name becomes Ed Connelly.

A murder takes place in the speakeasy frequented by Connelly, a pianist, loved by his friends for the music he plays. Young Naughton has done it, in self-defense against the husband he has wronged.

And so forth.

Probably the best part in the film is a gentleman known as Oily Jim, the speakeasy proprietor. A big-hearted and heartless crook, the role will interest you, being about the most probable.

The stage show, in musical comedy form, is something of an improvement over usual shows. The Johnny Mitchell organlogue has a moral which may or may not prove popular with the sentimentalist who likes his movie with song, although there's a little of that, too.

GRIFFITH'S "LINCOLN" A GREAT PICTURE ALL SHOULD SEE

By GEORGE SEIBEL

At last a talking picture every American ought to see! At last a talking picture that has historical value, dramatic power, human interest, fine photography—and doesn't insult your intelligence! That's "Abraham Lincoln" at the Penn. It is biography that lives—it shows the greatest of all Americans as a man—a man of sympathies and sorrows—a man of destiny almost drific.

George Seibel

David Wark Griffith was the producer who made "The Birth of a Nation," first and perhaps greatest of the silent films. Now he has produced an even more appealing and compelling picture on the talking screen by getting Walter Huston to play Lincoln.

And it is irony that H. B. Walthall, who appeared as the star in "The Birth of a Nation," also figures in this "Abraham Lincoln" as one of the auxiliary players.

HUSTON AS OLD ABE

Walter Huston is at all times a good actor. He has surpassed himself as Lincoln. Not only in make-up, but in kindly humor and fine restraint he is the human being of heroic simplicity that Lincoln was.

His diction is marvelously clear, and sincerity rings through every syllable.

Whether fighting the country bully, making love to Ann Rutledge, turning aside the sharp tongue of Mary Todd, dominating a cabinet that was weak-kneed, proclaiming "malice toward none and charity for all" just before he is shot, Walter Huston's Lincoln is flesh and blood.

Despite the little liberties taken with history, this is one of the truest historical pictures ever painted.

AND IT'S LITERATURE

Stephen Vincent Benet wrote the text—and that accounts for the fact that it's literature. There is no hokum, no cheap sentiment, no loud patriotism, no low comedy except in one White House scene. Benet is a poet, and has visualized the epic possibilities of Lincoln's life, from the little log cabin in the Kentucky wilderness to the triumphant cenotaph by the Potomac.

And in David Wark Griffith this material found a producer who had the Homeric intuition to make the picture a real epic. There are scenes like the political parades, the battle in which Sheridan rallies his defeated army, and the assassination in Ford's Theater, that no one but Griffith could have visualized so dramatically.

A PORTRAIT GALLERY

He has also provided a portrait gallery in which the figures of that tremendous time are mirrored—Generals Grant, Sheridan and Lee; Douglas and Stanton and John Wilkes Booth. We know precious little about Ann Rutledge, but Una Merkel gives a tender portrayal of Lincoln's early love.

Once again, it is a great throbbing picture every American ought to see. Benet, Griffith and Huston have earned a congressional medal for producing an intelligent talking screen epic.

THE STAGE SHOW

In the stage show the Uyeno Japs, seven of them, give an astonishing exhibition of tumbling and pyramids. Jans and Whalen are two very entertaining comedians and dancers. Allan Rogers reaches hearts with his songs. Pesetzki played an oriental overture entrancingly, and Wild Oscar again found that the old songs have the strongest appeal. There wasn't a yawn in the bill except when Gen. Pershing, as usual, read his little piece. But he looked up twice from the paper.

NEW BILLS MONDAY, WITH ONE RETAINED

Minor Watson and Mildred McCoy play the leading roles in "It's a Wise Child," which comes Monday to the Nixon stage. It is a David Belasco production that had a long run in New York last season.

There is a matinee of "Street Scene" in the Shubert Alvin this afternoon. Arrangements have been made to continue the play next week, and seats are now on sale for all remaining performances.

With Pauline Mac Lean restored to her old position of leading woman, the George Sharp Players will present "Let Us Be Gay" in the Pitt next week. The play is a smart comedy.

With today's performances the Harris returns to a combined vaudeville and motion picture policy. The new screen feature is "Extravagance," with Lloyd Hughes and June Collyer.

MR. ARLISS REMAINS AS WARNER FEATURE

George Arliss is remaining in the Warner for a second week in "Old English," screen version of his stage success. Arliss gives a masterful portrayal of an old Victorian, who is a gentleman, a scholar and a judge of good liquor. He is supported by a highly capable cast.

Heartache

No matter what you say to me today,
I know that for a little while you cared,
That for a space I turned your months to May,
And we were children, two who strangely dared
To laugh at life and taste the sweet delights
Of fevered ways—and now that we are thru,
No word of yours can mar the magic nights,
Or rout from mind the things we used to do.

The game is over—I am not a fool,
I know as well as you that magic dies;
That vows are dust—that fevered kisses cool,
And laughter fades from disillusioned eyes:
But what has this to do with yesterday—
When words were silly, futile things to say?

Newspaperman Stuff

A group of Park Rowgues were reminiscing over the Ruth Snyder-Judd Gray murder trial. Someone groaned about the kind of journalism that exists in most editorial rooms. A chap attached to a fiercely conservative rag wrote the details of Mrs. Snyder's arrest, not forgetting the two-hour love seance between Mrs. Snyder and Gray directly after her husband's murder was committed.

The picture of Mrs. Snyder leaping from her bad clad in a wisp of negligee and dressing herself in front of four detectives also was duly painted by the reporter.

When he picked up the first edition he almost wept, for the pious copyreader had changed the love seance to a chat and had removed the four detectives from the room while Mrs. Snyder dressed.

"Let me congratulate you," thundered the bitter reporter, to the fact-mangling editor, "you've made the story inaccurate, but thank God you've kept it clean!"

Squelch

They were kidding a kidder in one of the naughtier places early in the yawning. She had been to Havana, Bermuda, Miami and other resorts, returning with enough ice on her arms to arouse the envy of the Guinans and the Joyces.

An old flame paused to chat with her.

"Oh, what I've heard about you," he clowned, "I've heard plenty. You're a nice girl, but people are beginning to talk."

Nifty

"My shoes hurt," he groaned.

Things That Make Me Ill

Several seasons ago, a beautiful girl, a pace or two above the chorus, decided that it would be to her advantage to yes the comedian in the show. He fell for her lisp and stare and helped her considerably. He even wrote out some fairly nice checks for the gel. She got along splendidly, getting nearer to stardom, while the oldtimer got older and somewhat unfunny. Then the producers weren't so interested.

Today she is making $2,500 per. The same week her show hit Broadway her old boy friend was grabbing a grateful week in smalltime vaudeville.

The Retort Swelegant

This A. Woolcott story about Noel Coward is probably old to you. Don't bop me if you've heard it. Hannen Swaffer, the London critic, it appears, always made his friend, Coward (who usually writes the plays he stars in), nervous on opening nights. So Coward had him barred from the first performances.

After the asbestos dropped on the second performance, the critic went back to Noel's undressing room.

"Ah, Noel, my lad," said Hannen, "I've always said that you acted better than you wrote."

"La, now, that's a coincidence," sawed Noel, "for that's just what I've always said about you."

HAROLD LLOYD AT SEA AND UP IN AIR IN "FEET FIRST"

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Harold Lloyd's talking comedy, "Feet First," opened yesterday in both the Fulton and the Sheridan Square. This time the comedian is a shoe clerk, which explains the title. The film packs a lot of laughs and some rather hysterical thrills.

Much of the action takes place aboard an ocean liner and Lloyd is "at sea" in more ways than one. A good bit of the film footage also is consumed by Lloyd dangling about a skyscraper. This portion is thrilling and funny—only there seems to be too much of it.

The story has to do with Lloyd's efforts to win a girl. He thinks she is a society debutante, so he tries to break into society so that he can talk to her about love. But she turns out to be his employer's secretary.

"BERNADETTE" OPENS AS PICTURE IN DAVIS

"Bernadette of Lourdes," a picture of religious significance, opened Friday in the Davis. Many of its scenes were filmed in Pittsburgh and its environs and it was sponsored by local persons. The cast also features local talent.

The picture story is woven about the shrine at Lourdes. It depicts how the little peasant girl, Bernadette, saw visions of a Beautiful Lady in a grotto near the town; how she withstood the scoffing of the unbelievers, and how it was Faith triumphant in the end.

A romantic angle is introduced. This concerns Bernadette's friend, who marries a young aristocrat, who is an unbeliever. It is only when his wife, facing death, or years of invalidism, is healed by water from a spring, which miraculously appears at the grotto, that he finds faith.

The Rev. James R. Cox directed the film. Jack A. Scanlon was assistant director. Prominent in the cast are Mary Zalac, Margaret Carr, Alice Vollmer, Ettore Coffrini and Thomas E. Jones.

MR. LOWRY BECOMES AN ACROBAT IN THE STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Mr. Lowry goes versatile in a big way. He mixes up with the Seven Maxellos, flip-flopping acrobats, and gets kicked around like a football. He gives a comedy reading about Indians and John Smith, with silly musical accompaniment by the band. And he does a little singing. But don't get the idea he's the whole show.

The child team, Geraldine and Joe, claims stellar honors. These kids give an Apache dance that is a rowdy display. They knock each other around and little Joe spins around on his head like nobody's business. Give 'em a hand!

Sixteen girls come trotting out in dances. Other entertainers include Dolores, Douglas and Eddy, keen acrobatic dance trio, and the Ritz Brothers, with their same old green, yellow and red suits and their same old act.

The screen has two sillies. Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, on the loose in Gay Paree. They're a couple of privates on a. w. o. l. at the beginning. But they promote themselves rapidly when they discover that the girls have a weakness for majors, colonels and such. The long-faced Woolsey carries a complete supply of officers' insignias and medals. He even has rear-admiral emblems, which he carries in his back pocket.

The picture is titled "Half Shot at Sunrise." It has a frail romantic angle and its fragile plot has something to do with stolen general orders.

GANGSTER GIRL

By JACK LAIT

Annie Promises Freeman To Help Trap Tom

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Polack Annie, notorious gangster girl, flees Chicago and seeks the protection of New York's biggest racketeer, "Silk" Freeman. Freeman is fascinated by her beauty and provides an expensive hotel suite for her. At a night club the admiration of the young and wealthy Tommy Gillespie for Annie arouses Freeman's jealousy. Tom learns of Freeman's plan to get in on his father's trucking business and vows to fight it. He enlists the aid of "Cyclone" Tim McCloskey, leader of a tough river gang. McCloskey's men man the Gillespie trucks and a free-for-all fight ensues when the longshoremen refuse to load the trucks.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

Polack Annie observed with concentrated interest the emotion of intense hatred in Silk Freeman. Polack Annie had seen that predominating storm of love in him—and no one else had been able to boast of that. But Polack Annie's red hair spelled red passion.

"Red Top" (his tone had a brutal kindness to it, and he hesitated and then grinned), "you want breakfast, don't you?"

"Oh, it doesn't matter," she parried. "What's the use o' breakfast today?—you've only got to eat again tomorrow anyway."

"Pete!" he called. And he closed the door, carefully turning the patent lock. He had hardly wheeled before there were three raps. He reopened the door, this time widely, and let it swing and walked away.

The old ex-convict, Pete, strode in, tray in hand, the dish.. warm, for he knew the whim of his master. Without a word he slid up the small teakwood table beside the silk-spread bed and placed, one after one, the breakfast dishes. Then he shuffled silently out.

"You damn red head, you see now what devotion is. I sprung that chump from Sing Sing. He had a murder rap that sent him up for the book and I got him out. How? Well, how does the Big Boy do things! It's a game of give and take. What the hell was his life in the Big House? It's a bigger house here. He's in prison still, but he likes it. You're in prison and I can make you like it. But I'm going to spring you."

Speaks of Love

"Yeah?" and Annie barely sipped her orange juice, and no high-born lady could have kept her eyes more carefully trained in her glass.

"Y-e-a-h, I'm goin' to spring you—and you'll spring right back." He leaned over the table and the silver coffee urn tilted precariously. "You know that young Yale stooge—that college kid that had you askin' questions? Well, I'll let him answer 'em. I know you. You won't fall for him. You're too cold-blooded to fall for any guy, and you know where the pay window is—get me?"

"I get you," quickly said Annie, raising her coffee cup to hide what she suspected might be a blush—the first blush she had known since the Edgewater Kid had looked at her so ardently in the Devil's Hall in Chicago.

Silk fumbled with his toast.

"You know," he said, looking up suddenly, "I never killed a man—I never had a man killed over a jane. My theories have been funny in life. I considered friends those who best fitted in with my weakness. I never had many friends because I never had many weaknesses. I never loved because I could always resist."

His eyes, always grayishly and steelily cruel, now seemed languid and tired to Annie as they looked into hers.

"Only you, kid," he whined. "Only you did I ever love."

"Pass that," snapped Annie. "You want me to get a guy—a guy I don't even know. What do I do?"

Relates Experiences

Silk narrowed his eyes and his glance was piercing, a glance that had struck terror in the soul of many a tough egg, and then he calmly sipped his coffee.

"Red-head," he bit curtly, "I want to tell you a story. A couple of stories. There was once a guy I wanted to clip and I played on the most dangerous thing in his life—a woman. She loved him with a jealousy that could be aroused to criminal insanity. He was a simp. It wasn't so hard to get another woman into his apartment one night, one of those trim little dolls I'd dressed up like a chicken, served dressed or undressed. I saw to it, too, that the jealous jane had a gat. That was that."

He gave a little sniff of contempt that jerked his shoulders back. His thin lips became thinner and narrowed eyes more narrow. Annie was indifferent. Her lessons in intrigue were confined to pineapples, gats and typewriters.

"Oh, yes," he grinned, "I said I would tell you a couple of stories. There was another guy. He was a simp, too, like all of 'em. I had to work a three-time combination on him, in another way.

"I had some foolish letters a married woman had once written to another guy and he had sold them to me—and I used them. I didn't like the woman's husband, anyway. I'd wreck that combination of a cheating, two-timin' wife and a boobish, trustin' husband along with my other plans. The doll craved clothes an' she didn't like any letters in circulation. I showed her how she could get the clothes an' enough dough to cop the letters. And she played into my hands and dealt the other bird jacks up on eights. The husband called the deal. One guy's feedin' the roots of daisies, fond hubby is servin' the works up the river, and the jane is one of my best dope-shovers. See?"

"Clever guy," nodded Annie, "an' what you want me to do—play the jealous woman or the worried wife?"

Plans to Get Tom

"Neither, you dumb red-head—I want you to go out and get this college punk that fell so hard for you—I want you to let him get you. I know he fell, see? The waiter was tellin' him all about you, and I could see his eyes burnin' that flamin' top-knot of yours."

"Oh," sighed Annie, "gimme somethin' harder. I ain't no kindergarten teacher. Lemme take a man over seven."

"Take off your kiddin' clothes. When Silk talks he ain't mumblin' to hear himself. I want you to put this punk on the spot! You don't have to do the dirt, like you did in Chi—I'll have it done. Just swing him around gently to where I want him. We'll figure out the details later. He's the son of old Tall Tom Gillespie, and when he passes there'll be hell—unless it's done like Silk wants it done—with—"

"You did learn somethin' in Chicago, didn't you, you little low-lived—"

"Sweetheart—you called me that last night," and Annie pushed the little table against his chest and jumped up and threw her arms about his neck.

"S-w-e-e-t-h-e-a-r-t," slowly enunciated Silk, enveloped in the perfume of her satin-covered breast. But he quickly pushed her away. Silk was himself again—business first.

Annie Phones Tom

"It's hard for me to do this—with you. I love you, red-head. But I trust you more than I could trust anyone else, and I know my love for you will make you do it." His lips tightened. "I know you'll do it, anyway."

"I'll do it," chirped Annie, shoving the table aside and sitting on his knee. "What you want me to do?"

"Date up that Gillespie kid for tonight. He's home now. He got a few scratches out of that little rumpus today, and his old man made him get under cover. Call him up."

He pressed her forward as he reached down for the French 'phone. There were two there, but the other was used only for direct communication with a connection in the telephone company's switchboard room to check back on suspicious calls. Annie had learned that.

"The number's Susquehanna 0070—call it," and Silk pressed the telephone into her hands. Annie called, her voice drippingly sweet. Then——

"Hello ... Is Mr. Thomas Gillespie, Jr., there? ... Oh, thank you ... Hello, Mr. Gillespie. This is the girl you saw at the cafe the other night ... The waiter told me on the side what you said ... I liked your looks, too ... How did I find out who you were? ... Well, I asked the waiter, too ... Won't you meet me? ... Yes, tonight ... Oh, Freeman? I'll explain that all to you ... All right, in the Astor Hotel, Peacock Alley ... I'll be there ... Six o'clock—fine and dandy."

"Now you get in with him. Get the lowdown on his habits. Meet him again. Get him so cockeyed about you that he'll go anywhere an' do anything you say. Then, when we've got all his numbers, you'll bring him where we can handle him—sure an' safe. We don' wanna bump him off in daylight on the steps o' City Hall if we don' have to. But, you know that system—it was in your town they wrote it."

"Leave him to Annie, B. B. I'll take him for a ride—in a taxi—an' after that he'll be willin' to meet me in Australia!"

FEAR—OR—FLIRT?

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

*"Oh, sir; I must not tell my age.
They say women and music should never be dated."*

There comes along, in spite of the most strenuous and freezing discouragement offered to the fellow, like a soldier down the road, right-left, right-left, to be billeted on you whether you like it or not, a day, when you have to figure upon how you are going to meet the shadows Not-So-Young, and his brother "Getting-Older" coming a little way behind him so as not to strike you pale with two much company at once. Are you going to flirt with the vision of age, or fear it?

It's a lucky lady who has decided to chuck it under the chin and make it laugh! You might as well, me lady. The first time you found a grey hair I know your heart did a somersault and lay there shuddering. And the first time you saw one of your untouched photographs and found no longer the girl-face that had looked at you from your last piccys you took a deep breath and shut your eyes for the drop over Niagara Falls. And though the lady who "kids" all of the time is a bright pink bore and never gets anywhere, the lady who can "kid" at the great moment that needs it has Wrinkles half beaten before they arrive. "I bet I make a cute ole lady," says she. "I know I mean to be a jolly one. But may the God of everything beautiful and wonderful and good in the world help me to BEGIN to grow older happily!"

She flirts with age and swears that the mellowed wine in life's enchanted cup will be all the sweeter, the more subtle, the richer. "At last I shall do what I like—I will be old enough." But that other over there, she looks at the mask with horror, lets the thing ride her like a nightmare and scours the crows-feet deeper in her pretty face in her deadly fear of "growing older." And what she will make of age, so will age make of her. Put a hand over first one half of the silvery old face, and then over the other, and you will see what fretting Fifi will look like some day, and also the same for flirtatious Phoebe. One frets at her billetted enemy—the other says, "My frien'—I did not choose you, but since every soul in the world from the unknown beginning through overwhelming waves of years, has had to entertain you, without one single instance of escape, then—let's have a look at you! Let us be merry. If I must hob-nob with age someday—does it mean I must stop smiling? If I have a wrinkle I would rather have an up-one than a down-one. If someday I must be a gran'dam, will it get me any thing to be a sour one with a bitter eye on the young, yet with old hands outstretched for the bangles of youth? Only when you are getting old can you wear lavender, and all of the perfume you want! I mean to be a fine, handsome, happy old lady—I found my first grey hair today!"

Some one said that "manhood, verging into age, grows thoughtful!"

Man too, you see. But a man or woman who means it enough, and tries, can strike a bargain with age. For age will say quickly, if you flirt with her, "I will make you grow old Beautifully—and why NOT—if you will do it Happily."

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Serious Ills Follow Loss of The Thyroid

We possess several varieties of glands. Among them is the thyroid—one of the "ductless" group which have a decided effect upon growth, health and the general well-being of the body.

DR. COPELAND

All of us are familiar with the appearance of the person who has an enlargement of the thyroid gland. It is the condition known as "goitre." In such a case there is swelling of the neck, and often certain nervous symptoms. But today I wish to speak about the opposite condition. I want to tell you what happens when there has been removal or destruction of the gland.

The absence of the usual secretions of the thyroid gland causes an unpleasant condition known as "myxedema." The patient suffering from myxedema presents a characteristic appearance. The face is somewhat swollen, and the skin is usually dry and rough, as there is little perspiration. The hair is harsh and falls out readily.

Myxedema may result from disease and withering of the thyroid gland, or it may follow the removal of the gland. It has also been thought to be the result of worry or sudden nervous shock. Women seem to be somewhat more susceptible to myxedema than men.

"Cretinism" is a similar condition found in children. It is due to congenital absence of the thyroid gland, or to disease in very early life, causing withering of the gland.

Since absence of the thyroid secretion is responsible for the symptoms, the natural treatment is the administration of extracts made from the thyroid glands of animals. But under no circumstances should this powerful remedy be given except under the physician's supervision. He, and only he, is in a position to determine whether such medication is called for and if it is, what doseage is best.

I have told you about myxedema for your general information and because there is, today, such widespread interest in these mysterious but all-powerful glands of ours. We should know about them and the ills to which they are heir.

In the treatment of myxedema—which is a serious ailment—there are certain measures which are worth bearing in mind. For instance, a warm climate or artificial warmth will keep the patient more comfortable. Hot applications to the neck and massage will help to stimulate the gland.

Horoscopes

Sunday, November 16

Sunday's horoscope is of fair importance, with things running in the accustomed grooves, albeit some stubborn obstruction, a disappointment or delay may be encountered. This mediocre state of affairs in business may be offset by happy personal activities and benefits.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which some stubborn obstacles may have to be met and overcome before a smooth running of affairs ensues. There may be delays, disappointments and depressions, but personal matters will prove compensatory.

A child born on this day may be tenacious and persistent and may win over many difficult situations. It should have a fairly happy personal life to make up for adversities.

Monday, November 17

Monday's astrological chart holds symbols of many conflicting conditions. There is sign of sudden change and much activity or exciting circumstances, but the financial outlook is hazardous and hints of sudden loss through speculation or ill-advised investment. Or through personal extravagance or excess.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of unforeseen change, but one attended by financial hazards and loss through speculation, indulgence or carelessness. It is a year calling for much circumspection generally.

A child born on this day should be enterprising, adventurous and given to new and untried efforts in speculative rather than wholly practical directions. It should be good for promotion or publicity.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Finds Noel in Captious Mood.

I was glad that I was seated in the telephone booth while I waited for Katherine to call Noel to talk to me. My knees were shaking and I needed all my energy to keep my voice from breaking with nervousness. I knew that no matter how much Mary was thrilled at the idea of "slinging a party," her happiness would be distinctly marred if Noel were not a part of it. And I wanted this first party of Dicky's lovely but singularly lonely young niece to be a perfect thing, wanted it so fervently that I felt my throat getting dry with the fear that her fiance might spoil everything by a refusal to share in the festivity.

Only too fresh in my memory was his tortured face as we talked of the cruel letter which his father had sent Mary and of that other letter to himself, the contents of which he would not reveal, but which evidently were at the root of his queer avoidance of Mary. I had that obsession of his to overcome, and I wondered a little drearily whether I should be able to banish it even during the short space of time for which I wished him to lay it aside.

Then the boy's voice, frightened, tremulous, came over the wire.

"Mrs. Graham? Mrs. Bicket said you wished—Mary—is she all right?"

There was actual terror in the last words.

"She's perfectly all right—physically," I said, "but she's not very happy, so I've come to you for help."

"What is it? What's the matter? What can I do?" The words were tumbling out so fast that I had hard work to understand him.

"Noel Veritzen." I spoke sternly, with the determination to kill or cure. "Will you stop acting like a person with hysteria, listen to me quietly, and talk to me sanely when I have finished?"

I heard him gasp as if someone had thrown a glass of cold water in his face. Then there was a long minute of silence, and I wondered if he had left the telephone dangling and gone away. But finally his voice, curiously changed, came to me. There was no cheerfulness in it, but neither was there weakness. The grim, determined tones were steadier than my own.

"I deserved that," he said manfully, "but you won't have to say it to me again."

"I hope not," I returned a bit hastily, for I believed that it wouldn't do him a bit of hurt to get what Katherine called "a healthy mad on," and it bothered me no whit that I would be the target for his wrath. "I'm going to give you a bit of a shock first," I went on, "and I want you take it standing, always remembering that Mary is all right and we're looking out for her."

"I'll take it." His words were clipped, stern, and I hurried my reply.

"Your father has returned to New York."

"Has he seen Mary?"

"Not yet. We are all going to dinner with him tonight."

"Mary, too? You're not leaving her alone anywhere?"

"Indeed, no. Remember this, Noel. Mary always has either Mrs. Underwood or myself with her, will have until your father is brought to see reason."

"Has he dared? What has he done?"

"Nothing as yet." I reflected that there was no need to tell him of his father's employment of a private detective to spy upon Mary, especially as we were not certain as yet that she was the object of the espionage.

"But you think he is planning something?" There was a trace of his earlier agitation in the question.

"Steady!" I admonished. "You ought to know your father well enough to be sure that no one can tell what he is planning. But—listen carefully now—it does not matter. We are prepared for anything he may do. I did not call you up to talk about him. What I want of you is your help in giving Mary a gay time such as all school girls have but which she has missed, as you know."

He was silent for several seconds, and his voice was softer when he answered.

"Indeed I know. But—how can I help?"

"Don't interrupt until I have finished and I'll tell you," I retorted, and then swiftly I outlined the plan I had evolved to give a party for Mary, told him of the guests I meant to have, and that I was going shopping with her in a few minutes for an evening gown and wrap.

"I want you to come up to the city early tomorrow," I said, "so that you will have a chance to rest if the party should be given tomorrow night."

"But," he said swiftly with ice in his tones, "if you're going to have all those young men, the cadets and all, you surely won't need me."

Household Hints

Lace should be pulled into shape before ironing.

Only experienced persons should install or repair electrical fixtures.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

What Women Don't Tell

In Grandmother's time, he was a "suitor;" in Mother's day, he was a "beau;" now, he is just a "date."

* * *

A brunette is apt to put too much heart and too little head into the love-game. A blonde, being less emotional, plays her hand with more skill and seldom loses a trick. That's probably why gentlemen think they prefer blondes.

ABOUT TIME FOR MY "DATE"!

* * *

* * *

A man never tires of pursuing a woman; it is only after he has overtaken her, that he begins to feel that touch of ennui.

* * *

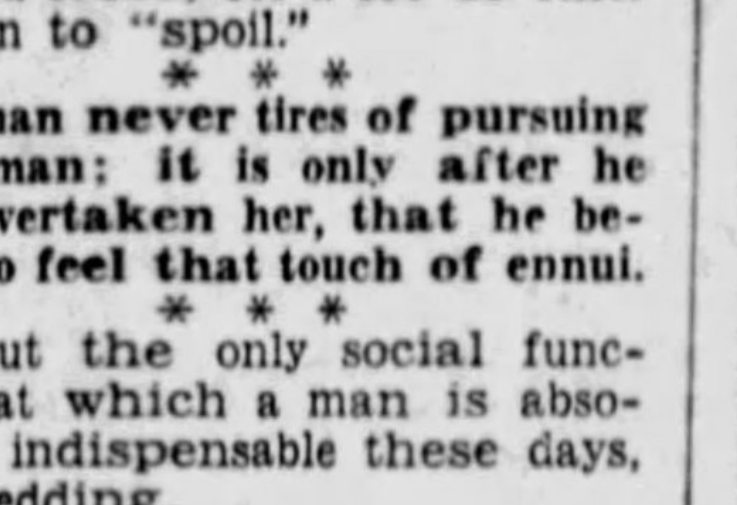
* * *

When a girl encourages a man to spend his money, she is probably a gold-digger; but, when she urges him to save it, he usually suspects that she is digging for a platinum wedding-ring.



* * *

No wonder ambition is dying out, since the most that a brilliant genius or a great statesman can hope, is to be almost as well-known as a popular night club hostess or a crooning tenor.

* * *

A girl's thoughts always run to marriage—a man's just limp along, until they are tripped up and dragged there.

Tell It to Sally

By SALLY MARTIN

What Is the Magic Potion That Transforms Dull Femmes Into 'The Life of a Party?'

Is it pep? Sparkling wit? A breezy, jovial disposition?

That's what Jeanne thinks... and she's feeling so low she could tie a fishworm's shoe laces, because she has none of these things. True, she's pretty as a picture, and sweet as a peach, and new men always ask to meet her... but that's all...

"It's because I'm so serious, Sally," she moans. "I'm actually so serious that I not only oppress other people, but I weigh myself down! How can I learn to be gay and interesting company?"

And that question has its echo in scores of lonely hearts.

"Dear Sally:—

"I'm coming to you, because I know I need a big change in my personality, and I feel that perhaps you can help me to find out how to make it.

"My childhood was a very unhappy one, and from the time that I was 15 until I was almost 22, I made a complete hermit of myself, refusing to have not only boy friends, but girl friends as well. Of course, during that time I was afflicted with a very keen inferiority complex. I am 24 now and I have gotten the better of that handicap to a great extent, but it seems to have left its mark on me in a completely atrophied sense of humor.

"I not only oppress other people with my terrible seriousness, but I even weigh myself down.

"I can make friends very easily, having the advantage of an attractive appearance and some charm. But making friends isn't always keeping them. I am never just exactly 'in' things. And I want to be, oh, so much. I am happiest when I am with a crowd of lighthearted, jovial people, but when it comes to being interesting or amusing myself, I am almost nil. There just doesn't seem to be any play in me.

"I am not at all clever at repartee and I realize it; and often, in an attempt to not be hackneyed and dull and ordinary, I say things that are absurb—that sound to others as if I were just plain dumb.

"I am not, though, and I hate to look that way. How can I develop a good sense of humor in myself, and learn to be gay and interesting company?

"Do you think that, if I keep on trying to mingle with lots of people, I will get rid of this heavy sobriety of mine and acquire a jovial disposition?

"I've spent so much time feeling dull and heavy, and I long for real friendship and comradeship. I want to forget all about myself and get a big laugh out of life.

"I've met many men who were attracted by my looks and whom I have liked immensely, but whom I could not hold as friends, because I can't seem to wise-crack and be lively and vigorous.

"If there's anything I can do to make myself different, won't you please tell me what it is? If you will, I'll be grateful to you as long as I live. And I'm willing to work hard on myself, if you can give me a clue.

"JEANNE."

What should you do, Hon?

Stop worrying about what you aren't, and make the most of what you are!

We can't all be giddy and sparkling. And there's no reason why we should be! Quiet, sympathetic people are just as much in demand as lively, wise-cracking ones.

You have an individuality all your own, that can be charming—if you'll stop trying to be a carbon copy of "giddy Gertie," and develop it.

Your trouble, Jeanne, is not heavy sobriety, but anxiety. Anxiety to make an impression on these people you want for friends. And it is that anxiety that traps you into making the absurd remarks that trouble you, and keeps you stranded on the side-lines. Let go! Stop striving so hard to impress people, because that striving is what defeats you.

Not all of us can laugh and sparkle, because laughter and sparkle are largely a matter of nervous tension. But all of us can be sympathetic and understanding. All of us can learn to look into other people's hearts and feel what they think and feel and dream and desire. All of us can be interesting . . . if we'll be interested. Just at present, you're interested in Jeanne, and what Jeanne wants from life. Learn to be interested in Johnny and Jessie, and what they want. Learn to think and feel Life . . . not as it affects you, but as it affects the man on the next block . . . the girl next door . . . and friends will flock about you in scores.

For with that sympathy and that unselfishness and that understanding, will come the rich, poised humor that soothes and refreshes and comforts and wins!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Shaking Hands

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it necessary for men to shake hands when introduced? Or is it a matter of choice? This is a topic of argument between another person and myself, and I would appreciate it if you will let us know what is right. S. S.

It is the custom for men to shake hands when they are introduced to each other.

Birth Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know whether it is customary to send birth announcements to friends or only to relatives? MRS. K.

It is customary to send birth announcements to friends as well as relatives.

GLASS TRADE UNCHANGED IN WEEK

Increase in Operating Schedules Expected Before Month's End

Both shipments and sales of window glass, while maintaining the gains shown since mid-October, are holding at practically unchanged levels as compared with a week ago, according to American Glass Review. In other branches of the flat glass industry the situation is likewise without material change. Demand for plate glass, reflecting the sub-normal activity in consuming industries, is considerably below the seasonal normal.

At this normally busiest season of the year for the manufacturers of window glass orders are in larger volume, although generally for small quantities with early or immediate shipment requested. Production continues at a rate somewhat below the current demand. While no changes were reported this week in operating schedules at the window glass factories, another unit will be in operation before the end of November.

IMPORTS DECLINE

Distribution of plate glass is holding at substantially the same level as a week ago, which is well below the November average. Until operations in the automobile industry are on a more active basis, conditions in the plate glass field are not expected to improve materially. Demand on the part of the mirror manufacturers, as well as the jobbing trade, is likewise unseasonable.

During the week ended November 8, imports of window glass into this country receded from the preceding week's volume, according to the latest unofficial compilations. In incoming shipments of plate glass, on the other hand, a gain was shown. For the week, imports of window glass totaled 2,134 boxes and 6,927 pounds compared with 3,191 boxes and 250,802 pounds received the week of November 1. Plate glass receipts for the comparative periods were 217 cases, 3,732 pounds, and 36 cases, 390 pounds, respectively.

PREDICTS BIG TIRE OUTPUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Production of 72,600,000 automobile tires in 1931 as compared with an estimated 56,000,000 in 1930 and 74,600,00 in 1929, is forecast by the Alexander Hamilton Institute.

On the basis of an expected 4,500,000 new cars in 1931, as compared with an estimated 3,500,000 cars in 1930, tire requirements for new cars, on the basis of five tires a car should total 22,500,000. Exports, with a 5 per cent increase would total 2,500,000.

The big increase is to be expected in replacements. The prospect is that 23,800,000 old cars will be in use in 1931 which should provide a replacement market for at least 47,600,000 tires, allowing two tires a car as an average replacement, a figure which will probably prove low in view of the economizing which has occurred this year.

Stock Exchange Topics

Wall Street found this week's drop of $219,000,000 in Federal Reserve loan statement far in excess of what it had been expecting. Thus in seven consecutive weeks of decline total borrowings of brokers have been reduced by $987,000,000 or fully 30.6 per cent to the low figure of $2,235,000,000, level unprecedented heretofore since publication of loan statistics was begun in 1926. The present total is $174,000,000 under the previous record minimum of $2,409,000,000, which had stood since May 19, 1926. The current loan aggregate is incidentally equivalent to only 33 per cent of the total at the record peak of $6,894,000,000 reported on October 2, last year.

Taking their cue from the action of the market itself keen observers were of the opinion that the current upturn seemed destined to run to normal technical proportions. In view of the fact that the decline from September 10 to the low of the recent move reached on October 10 amounted to 50.2 points in the index compiled by Standard Statistics Company, Inc., the current advance could carry through for another 7 points from Thursday night's closing, which was some 8 points above the low. But, it was pointed out, much depends upon the attitude of people who bought stock for support purposes during the long decline. If selling of such support stock should assume proportions larger than the market is able to absorb the recovery might be cut short and support stock ultimately returned to the market.

The action of Consolidated Gas yesterday suggested the position of shorts in that stock were not any too comfortable. Throughout the day it was apparent that nearby offerings of the stock were scant. At any rate, potential buyers were seemingly forced to bid quite briskly in order to bring out anything in the way of offerings. Selling ex-dividend the regular quarterly payment of $1, the stock displayed pronounced strength from the opening. The amount of the dividend deducted at the opening was quickly made up and the stock continued in steady demand at advancing levels, moving ahead for a net gain of some 3 points or more to show a recovery allowing for dividend of fully 11 points from the recent low of 81½.

Looking over the situation for favorable developments the financial community at large was impressed with the showing of the Census Bureau's report on American mill consumption of cotton last month. The figures showed that mills took 444,494 bales of cotton without linters slightly in excess of unofficial forecasts, and comparing with 394,321 bales in September, 352,000 bales in August and 639,759 bales in October last year. This progressive improvement in recent months was accepted as providing evidence of a turn for the better in the textile industry. Exports also were heavier than had been forecast, running to 1,004,120 bales against 902,956 bales in September and 1,251,300 bales in October last year.

One large commission house has been advising clients who have been inclined to enter the copper stocks to give consideration to Granby. The firm points out that net quick assets on the 445,000 shares outstanding are equivalent to about $12 a share, which is only slightly below the current market price for the issue. It is understood that the company is lending about $3,000,000 in the call money market, that it has only 8,000,000 pounds of copper on hand, and that its production cost for October was approximately 7.8 cents a pound.

In view of the declines which have occurred in other equipment shares, the market action of American Brake Shoe has been satisfactory. Evidence has been seen of moderate investment buying on reactions, due to the good position of the company and the yield of nearly 7 per cent which was obtainable around the recent low price for the shares. Dividend rate is $2.40 a share a year and distributions have been made since 1902. While reports are made only annually, estimates have been made of around $3.50 a share for this year, which would compare with $3.71 in 1929. The company obtains considerable of its business from replacements.

STEEL INDUSTRY MAINTAINING HIGH PAY

Practice of Forcing Prices Lower to Hurt Buying Power, Charls Warns

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15.—That the steel industry is maintaining the high level of wages paid in 1929 in order to preserve purchasing power, and that buyers of raw and semi-finished steel should bear this in mind in their constant striving to drive prices lower and lower, was the admonition by George H. Charls, president of the National Association of Flat Rolled Steel Manufacturers, before the Cleveland Advertising Club yesterday.

He said:

"Prices of flat rolled steel have been deflated to approximately pre-war levels. Freight rates on the six carloads of material necessary to make one carload of pig iron have increased 100 per cent over pre-war rates. Wages are 100 per cent higher than in 1913.

NEW PRINCIPLE

"Once it was considered necessary to reduce wages in periods of depression. Today, the entire steel industry accepts the principle that such reductions only reduce purchasing power and delay the return of prosperity. Industrial buyers pushing for lower prices on steel should be mindful of their joint responsibility in helping the steel industry maintain the purchasing power of its employes.

"Steel, the universal metal, is so closely interwoven in our industrial, commercial and domestic fabric that as steel moves ahead or is held back, so moves the economic world. From shoe lace tips, carpet tacks and spectacle cases, to bridges, ocean liners and mammoth skyscrapers, we depend upon steel. We eat better food, breath purer air and sleep more comfortably because of steel. Already steel is entering into the construction of our homes, and the same rugged material that carries and pulls our limited trains across the continent is being fabricated into objects of art, beautiful bedroom suites, and other home furnishings."

BUSINESS INDEX DROPS FURTHER

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—With business opinion obviously content to throw away the last two months of this year, there is nothing surprising in the continued decline of general business activity to lower levels week after week as the period of even normal seasonal stimulus passes, says the Business Week in its report covering the week ending today.

The preliminary business index for the week ended November 8, fell further from 81.5 per cent of normal to 79.3 per cent and is evidently still feeling for the bottom in waters never before tested but probably deeper than any heretofore sounded in past depressions. A year ago the index stood at 105.9 per cent. Declining industrial activity is pulling it down more than general trade and this fact lends some support to the hope that the lower it goes the sooner it will turn up.

That hope would be stronger if this country had only itself to consider or if there were more immediate promise of prompt and vigorous result from the conferences of central bank heads now going on in Europe. Where the wave of uncontrolled deflation has not carried them too far commodity and stock prices are still being washed down with the tide but the resistance of cotton and the upturn in copper are encouraging signs of at least temporary reaction.

Steel Production Drops in Germany

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—October output of steel ingots in Germany totaled 856,000 tons, compared with 1,378,000 in October, 1929. Pig iron production last month totaled 687,000 tons, against 1,158,000 in October, 1929. There were 68 furnaces in blast at the end of October, unchanged from a month previous.

South America Air Mail Service Soon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Air mail service over the route from Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, to Santos, Brazil, will commence with flights on November 27 and 28. It was stated by W. Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general.

PRODUCE SECURITIES EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The trend was upward in Produce Exchange securities yesterday. Irving Trust rallied nearly a point. Utilities Hydro w. w., North American Trust shares and Public Utility Holding new preferred w. i., improved fractionally.

ROAD UPKEEP DIFFICULT TASK

By JAMES B. SANSOM,
Secretary, Allegheny County Planning Commission.

The construction and upkeep of our magnificent system of county roads is one of the largest tasks of the Allegheny County Department of Public Works, Director Norman F. Brown has been constantly building and improving the great organization which devotes its work to this most important bureau of roads. It is headed by Edward M. Kenna, county road commissioner.

Allegheny County now has approximately 530 miles of improved county roads and has been building new highways at the rate of about 20 miles per year for the past seven years. The old roads must be repaired, often widened and frequently re-surfaced and the necessity of an adequate organization to handle both new construction, and improvement, repair and maintenance is evident.

MAIN DIVISIONS

In the bureau of roads are two main divisions with a number of sections. The division of engineering has charge of the preparation of plans and the supervision of the construction of the improvement and repair of county roads by contract, and furnishes such engineering help as needed by the other divisions. The division of maintenance has under it the maintenance, repair and upkeep of county roads, erection and maintenance of safety barriers and is headed by a superintendent of maintenance and a maintenance engineer.

There are four sections in the division of road engineering, namely, section of design, construction, agreement and ordinances and office. In the division of road maintenance there are six sections, landscape section, material transportation service, Liberty Tunnel road maintenance, sign and safety section, traffic ordinance and asphalt section.

All divisions are headed by capable and experienced men under whom are placed section directors who watch over the work of hundreds of employes.

BANK DEBITS INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—For the week ended November 8, 1930, bank debits outside New York City registered an increase over the preceding week, but were lower than the corresponding period in 1929. Bank loans and discounts of Federal Reserve member banks showed an increase over a week ago. However, as compared with the same week last year a decline was noted. Prices for representative industrial and railroad stocks fell off from the level of the preceding week and were considerably lower than a year ago. Bond prices were fractionally lower than the previous period, but showed a higher average than for the same week of last year. Interest rates for call money remained unchanged, while a decline occurred in time rates. Both rates were lower than the same period in 1929.

Wholesale prices as measured by the composite index of 120 commodities showed but slight change from the preceding week. The prices of wheat at Kansas City, cotton at New York, and iron and steel products, all fell off from their levels of a week ago. All wholesale prices were considerably lower than the week ended November 9, 1929.

Stocks of Canadian Wheat Show Gain

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Nov. 14.—Canada shipped 24,792,257 bushels of wheat abroad in five weeks ending October 31, the Board of Grain Commissioners reported. Although snows tied up prairie harvest operations for several days, country elevator stocks now are larger than usual at this season.

STEEL OUTPUT TO DECLINE FURTHER

Production to Be Pushed Early in December For Holiday Payroll

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel ingot production in the past week has been at about 43 to 44 per cent of January 1 capacity, while at the close of August, when there had been a slight increase, the rate was 58 to 59 per cent. Thus there has been a decrease of about 15 points in 11 weeks. The decrease has been practically continuous and reasonably steady. Some further decrease, to the end of the year, is in prospect, but not in as strong a ratio.

A precise forecast could not be attempted and would not mean much in any event as production is likely to be pushed as much as possible in the fore part of December, to provide Christmas payrolls, with correspondingly light production late in the month. The average for the whole month of December seems likely to fall between 35 and 40 per cent.

UNIFORM PRECEDENTS

Precedents are uniform in indicating rising production after January 1, and immediately after, not in late January or early February as some observers are now expressing themselves. According to precedent, production should rise during the first three or possibly four months of the year. An increase in January over December has been the regular thing, while as to a rise in February over January, 1926, was an exception, showing a slight decrease in February, although the year as a whole was a very active one.

Such seasonal rise would not mean a great deal in the long run. For a really fair engagement of steel making facilities a great improvement in general trade is necessary. Estimates can be made with sufficient closeness to illustrate this point. Forecasting this quarter's steel production and making what must be admitted to be an excessive estimate of 25 per cent increase next quarter, purely as a seasonal matter, the total output of the six months would be about 45 per cent of average capacity during the period, which may be estimated at about 7 per cent above capacity as officially ascertained for December 31, 1929. The merely seasonal swing would thereafter be downward.

The steel industry has stood greatly in need of price stabilization. There are fewer tons to make profits on and prices have been declining while costs have been mounting in consequence of lighter operations. So large a part of the per ton cost is in running expense that the "out of pocket" cost of filling an additional order is relatively low and there has been an incentive to get that order.

OHIO EDISON SELLS LINES

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15.—The Ohio Edison Company, subsidiary of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, has sold its interests in all transportation companies, including the Akron Transportation Company, Northern Ohio Interurban Company, Canton Northern Ohio Interurban Company, Canton Traction Company, and Cleveland-Akron-Canton Bus Company, to a new company, the Transportation Securities Corporation of New York, for $14,000,000 with no exchange of stock involved.

The new corporation simultaneously came into possession of the Youngstown Transportation System. Transportation Securities Corporation is to be headed by W. H. Sammis, of New York, as president.

Chrysler Winner Of Patent Suit

DETROIT, Nov. 15.—A decree has been entered by the Federal Court of San Francisco, holding that automobile seat construction used in Chrysler automobiles is not infringement upon a patent No. 1,151,910 to George F. Sturges.

The suit was started several years ago by Sturges against H. O. Harrison Company, Chrysler distributers in San Francisco.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

Forbes

Detroit Shows Moderate Gains Conditions.

By B. C. FORBES

DETROIT, Nov. 15.—W. R. Angell, who has been capably piloting Continental Motors Corporation since he became president, gives me this very heartening news:

Mr. Forbes.

"Each month since July our sales have shown a gain over the previous month. The increase has not been at all spectacular, but the fact that the trend has been in the right direction is encouraging."

Mr. Angell is a great believer in that good, old remedy for most business ills: Hard work. He is a zealous practiser of that virtue. Thus:

"I believe American industry has learned many lessons from its past and present difficulties, but perhaps no more important lesson has been learned than that there is no substitute for conscientious effort, well directed, as a means to success. The process of cleaning the barnacles from the hull of the business ship is painful, but when the job is done, American business will be in a much better position to meet competitive conditions. The voyage to profitable prosperity then needs only the practical application of enterprise to furnish the employment of our citizenry so necessary before business may again be on a normal basis.

"I am convinced that American initiative, resourcefulness and enterprise will be equal to the task."

THE PRESIDENT of one nationally-known Detroit company packed his grip several times this year and went out on the road, like any regular salesman, to round up orders, and he got orders. He proved by his practical demonstration that, even in such times as we have experienced, aggressive, intelligently-directed salesmanship can develop business for attractive products.

This president-turned-salesman is Charles Bohn, of the Bohn Aluminum and Brass Corporation and creator of Bohnalite, Bohnolloy and other alloys of extraordinary lightness—Bohnalite, for example, is 62 per cent lighter than iron. Mr. Bohn's first association was with the Aluminum Casting Company, a $2,500 concern, which, born in 1897, proved to be the foundation for a $50,000,000 business.

Bohn Aluminum having earned within a few cents of two dollars a share in the first nine months of this year, Mr. Bohn refuses to take a pessimistic view of the general outlook for this country. He says:

"I don't think things are going to get worse. I believe they are now at the bottom. They may hang around the bottom for a while before doing much climbing. One trouble has been that too many people, having broken all records last year, became terribly alarmed because they could not match these records this year. They've been like the golfer whose normal score is around 90, but who, having once miraculously made a 75, assumes that 75 is his regular game."

I was amazed to learn that Mr. Bohn thinks nothing of expending as much as $150,000 on a single machine to turn out one of his many products. Incidentally, he regards choice of stocks as extraordinarily attractive at current levels.

WHAT IS the outlook for the motor truck industry? Here is how Henry Krohn, of the Federal Motor Truck Company, sizes it up:

"I am inclined to believe that in 1931 there will be a most satisfactory increase in truck volume. This is based upon the fact that individuals and companies in general have refrained from buying needed equipment this year and instead have kept up constant repairs on old equipment in order that they might avoid an outlay of funds.

"This equipment must necessarily be replaced because the individual or company whose business depends upon the commercial end of the business must have dependable transportation. Any number of instances have come to my personal attention where it is admitted that they need equipment but will not make purchases until after the first of the year.

"Industry cannot function without dependable transportation and I believe, therefore, that the truck industry will enjoy a very prosperous year in 1931."

SEVERAL IMPORTANT motor companies are taking on additional workers to speed up production of new models. This is greatly lightening what admittedly has been a serious unemployment problem.

Week's New Bond Offerings Lower

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—New bond offerings this week totaled $16,664,000 against $34,525,000 last week and $45,761,000 a year ago.

Tells of Park

W. H. SLOAN

Mr. Sloan, who states that work on the Allegheny County Memorial Park is progressing.

SUSPECT HELD AS SWINDLER

C. C. Rogers, accused of swindling city officials in a land deal, has been committed to jail pending a hearing before Alderman Thomas Flanigan on a charge of fraudulent conversion. He is accused of defrauding City Clerk Robert Clark, Director of Supplies B. L. Succop and G. L. Riley.

Eighteen months ago Rogers was arrested for allegedly crooked land deals and bond of $1,500 was placed for him by the late Daniel Winters, then city controller. Rogers jumped bail and only last week was located in Franklin, Pa. He was returned here by Bert Winters, a son of the late controller. Riley made the information against Rogers, accusing him of obtaining $750 through misrepresentation. The money was payment on property in Iowa.

CHRYSLER CUTS DIVIDEND

DETROIT, Nov. 15.—Chrysler Corporation declared a dividend of 25 cents a share as compared with 75 cents paid quarterly previously. It is payable January 3 to record of December 1.

The corporation reported for the third quarter net loss of $916,108, against net profit of $6,635,179, equal to $1.49 a share, in the third quarter of 1929. In the June quarter this year the corporation had net profit of $3,228,139, which lacked 2 cents of meeting the dividend requirements for the quarter. In the March quarter this year the corporation earned 4 cents a share.

The statement showed accumulated net profit for the year to September 30, of $2,492,747. Surplus as of September 30 was $49,322,549, after payment of dividends this year amounting to $9,961,812. The net decrease in surplus for the nine months was $7,469,064.

Hudson Motor Car Outlook Is Bright

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Hudson Motor Car Company has begun shipments to dealers of its new 1931 line of Hudson and Essex models. Interests close to the situation believe that with introduction of these new lines at prices which will average considerably under $1,000 the company faces a substantial recovery in earnings.

Syndicate Offers Chicago Bond Issue

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The syndicate headed by Harris Forbes & Company, is offering $12,500,000 Chicago Board of Education four shares due 1932, to 1936 to yield 4 to 4.20 per cent, according to maturity. Bonds due in 1932-34 have all been sold.

WORK ON PARK PROGRESSES RAPIDLY

Allegheny Memorial Nears Completion With Third Of Tract Under Grass

Construction work on the $1,500,000 Allegheny County Memorial Park is progressing according to schedule and a large area is now receiving permanent interments, W. H. Sloan, advertising director for the park, said yesterday.

Grading has been entirely completed and 50 per cent of the construction work exclusive of the buildings has been finished.

Paving of one-third of the system of roads on the 100-acre tract is ready for use and about 35 acres of the park were under grass before the advent of cold weather.

A trust fund has been established in which 15 per cent of the sale price of lots will be deposited to provide for perpetual care of the property. By the time the entire group of 13,800 lots has been sold a total of $1,000,000 will have been deposited in the fund.

The Allegheny County Memorial Park is unique in that it will not resemble the old type of cemetery. Grave markers will be placed flush with the surface of the ground and the grotesque tombstones and monuments of the past will be barred. Bronze pins are being used to mark the corners of the lots.

BANQUET ENDS ENGINEER FETE

A banquet attended by nearly 1,000 persons last night wound up the day's celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania in the William Penn Hotel. Speakers were George S. Davison, Pittsburgh industrialist, who presided at the first banquet 50 years ago, and John B. Kennedy, associate editor of Collier's Weekly. George F. Neilson, vice president of the Water Treatment Company of America, presided.

At the afternoon session, Morris Knowles, Pittsburgh engineer, spoke on "The History of Engineering in Western Pennsylvania." He characterized indifference of Pittsburghers to the question of sewage disposal here as "nothing less than a civic shame," declaring the city's method of disposal is in violation of the law, of good sense, aesthetics, public health and the right of the people to use the rivers for recreational purposes.

New York Builder Heads Committee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Appointment of a committee on international relations headed by John W. Harris, general contractor of New York City, was announced by the Associated General Contractors of America as the final step in a program for uniting the leading general contractors of the world in a single federation. Affiliation of the American association with the International Federation of Building and Public Works was completed last month.

Trade Recovery Seen In Early Part of 1930

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

DURING THE PAST MONTH there have been moderate improvements in some lines of business and minor changes for the worse in others, but there is increasing hope that a real upturn will be initiated in the spring when building construction and automobile production have the maximum of their seasonal stimulus. This summarizes the analysis of conditions made public today by Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company.

The large bond issues for public works approved at the recent elections will greatly aid the recovery of business in Col. Ayres' opinion. The survey emphasized the fact that the depression is world-wide rather than nation-wide in character. It pointed out that all the severe depressions of the past in this country were marked by declining commodity prices in nearly all parts of the world. The minor depressions of 1924 and 1927 were largely local in character; the more serious declines in 1914 and 1921 were rightly attributed to the war and its after effects; but the preceding serious depressions such as the one in 1908 were due to world conditions.

Steel Prospects Dull

IN DISCUSSING the iron and steel industry Col. Ayres said:

"Some slowing down in the activity of the iron and steel industry in the final quarter of the year is a normal expectation. During the past 11 years the fourth quarter production of steel ingots has been at a rate which on the average is approximately 96 per cent of the rate during the first three-quarters of the year. There do not seem to be apparent at the present time good reasons for believing that this customary slowing down will be escaped this year. On the contrary a slackening in activity of somewhat greater than the average degree seems reasonably to be in prospect.

"Automobile makers are planning to lengthen their usual year-end periods for inventory taking. Takings of pipe and other oil-country materials will be reduced as winter brings unfavorable conditions for extending pipe lines. Railroad buying is subnormal. These conditions are rendered more serious by the fact that according to the figures of the Department of Commerce our stocks of manufactured steel articles are some 10 per cent greater than they were a year ago, while the inventories of metals in unfabricated form are 30 per cent greater than they were at this time last year.

Activity Reduced

"THESE CONDITIONS find both cause and effect in the recent reductions in the rate of activity in the industry. At the beginning of April 59 per cent of the available blast furnaces were active, and this percentage had dropped to 41 by the beginning of October and to 36 at the first of November. At the low point of the depression of 1921 the percentage was less than 14. Never before in the history of the country has the iron and steel industry been able to weather a major business depression with so little decline in its output, and so little shrinkage in its earnings.

"In the past 50 years there have been 15 periods of business depression. Eight of them, including this one, have been major depressions, while the other seven have been minor ones, like those of 1927 and 1924. This depression began as a minor one, and continued that way until last summer, when it abruptly declined into one of major proportions. In this unusual feature it resembles the depression of 1884. The black silhouette is now at a level about 23 per cent below normal, which is lower than any of the previous ones except that of 1921.

Adjusting Supply

"DEPRESSIONS ARE PERIODS of maladjustment between demand and supply of goods, between cost and availability of credit, between productive capacity and consumption possibility. They are periods of tangled economic tensions and slacknesses. At such times business activity slows down while forced readjustments painfully take place. But they always do take place, and within periods of time that appear not to vary greatly. These readjustments are now in progress both here and abroad. We may be assured on the basis of the records of the past that the upward swing of a new business cycle will get under way in the months that lie not far ahead.

Dear Little Girls:

I've only been in Pittsburgh for a week, but in that short time I have had letters from hundreds of little girls who want to get "Tickletoes," my wonder doll. Of course I knew that "Tickletoes" would make hundreds of friends among the girls, but I really thought it might take longer than it has to get acquained.

"Tickletoes," by the way, is one of the most lovable dollies you ever saw. She's just as tall as the length of this newspaper page from top to bottom, she is unbreakable, has rubber arms and rubber legs that naturally bend, she opens and shuts her eyes and cries just like a baby. In fact, "Tickletoes" has three voices.

Pinch her right knee and you hear one voice; pinch her left knee and you hear the second voice. You can give her a bath just like a real, live baby and she's dressed in beautiful organdy with pretty slippers to match. You'll laugh your head off when you see "Tickletoes" suck her thumb.

Now, I have a "Tickletoes" for every little girl in Pittsburgh and vicinity who will agree to do certain simple things for me. I'll tell you what you'll have to do if you will clip the coupon, fill it in and send it to your fried—the

Business Failures Increase in 10 Months

A total of 136 commercial failures took place in the Pittsburgh district in the first 10 months of 1930, according to R. G. Dun & Co. Assets were $1,592,782 against liabilities of $3,782,399. In the corresponding period of 1929 there were 124 failures with assets of $1,459,580 and liabilities of $3,357,366. In October of this year there were 12 failures with assets of $133,202 and liabilities of $425,033.

Recommend Norman For Re-Election

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Bank of England directors have decided to recommend to proprietors next April re-election of Montagu Norman as governor, and Sir Ernest Arvey as deputy governor for the next fiscal year.

SEASONAL GAIN IN RETAIL TRADE

Buying of Toys, Novelties Showing More Activity; Collections Still Slow

There has been but little change in the distribution of merchandise at either wholesale or retail, although some lines of seasonal merchandise are moving in slightly larger volume at present, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Jobbers of men's and women's wearing apparel report sales comparatively small in amount, and the same condition prevails in finishing goods and shoes. There is a slight improvement in demand for jewelry, but buying is principally of novelties and medium-priced merchandise.

There is no improvement in the volume of building construction, and the demand for lumber and other building materials continues slow. Sales of wholesale groceries continue lower than the seasonal average, although the coffee and tea groups are transacting a fairly good volume of business. Buying of toys and novelties for the holiday trade is showing more activity, and a fair volume of business is anticipated.

Plumbing supplies and heating equipment continue to move rather slowly, and little improvement is expected for some time to come. There has been no change in the demand for electrical equipment and the electrical fixtures are moving very slowly. A rather sharp reduction in the output of crude oil is reported, while demand for refined products is showing a seasonal decline.

Demand for coal for domestic consumption shows a slight increase, but demand from industrial sources continues light. Collections continue slow, and are generally pronounced disappointing. Collections at retail appear to be averaging somewhat better than with wholesalers.

$50,000 BALM ASKED IN SUIT

Charging that their 24 years of married life were broken up by the alienation of her husband's affections, Mrs. Agnes C. Sheridan, of 5920 Kentucky avenue, asked $50,000 damages from Mildred Youkers, of the Hobart apartments, 5703 Hobart street, in Common Pleas Court. A capias was issued by Judge Harry H. Rowand and bail for Miss Youkers was fixed at $500.

Mrs. Sheridan averred she married William M. Sheridan November 27, 1906, and that they have two children, and until he met Miss Youkers they lived happily together. Mrs. Sheridan stated she believed her husband faithful until June 15, when she learned of these meetings and their marital relationship ceased.

Stocks Irregular — Local List Holds Gains

STOCK PRICES IRREGULAR AT START

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Opening prices were irregular on the stock exchange today. Chrysler and U. S. Steel each sagged ⅛. American Telephone, Columbia Gas, Woolworth and Westinghouse eased ⅜ and Anaconda dropped a point on a 10,000-share sale. Union Pacific rallied 3 points. New York Central and American Water Works were up ¾. Southern Pacific and Electric Power and Light gained a point each.

Profit taking made an impression on the utilities and the industrials in the early trading when United States Steel, Westinghouse, North American Consolidated Gas, Anaconda, American Telephone, Union Carbide, Auburn Auto and New York Central dipped 1 to 1½. There were fractional losses in American Can, General Electric, Radio, Loew's, Fox and National Biscuit. However, the selling was easily absorbed and the market again turned upward at the end of the first half hour.

Numerous specialties moved against the irregularly lower trend. Boehm Aluminum, United States Industrial Alcohol and General American Tank rallied 2 to 2¾ and there were gains of a point or more in Cerro De Pasco, International Telephone, Republic Steel, Goodyear, Worthinton Pump and National Cash Register.

Wall Street read with interest Thomas W. Lamont's address at yesterday's meeting of the American Academy of Political Science, in which he expressed the conviction that the country was "winning through" the depression and that the recovery process was "already under way." It was the first public statement by a J. P. Morgan & Co. partner on the economic situation in some time.

Commission house advices to customers were cheerful. Realizing was generally expected, but many believed the rally would be extended further before important residence developed.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, with sterling cables at 4.85 21-32, up 1-32.

COLUMBIA GAS NET LOWER

Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation reports for the quarter ended September 30 net income after all deductions of $2,216,534, equal, after allowing for preferred dividends, to 7 cents per share on 11,684,201 shares of common outstanding at the end of the period.

Net for the 12 months ended September 30 was $28,667,172, equal, after preferred dividends paid, to $2.26 a share on 10,080,516 average shares outstanding during the period, and to $1.95 a share on $11,684,201 shares outstanding at the end of the period.

Warm weather and industrial conditions were held responsible for the decreases in revenues.

Shamrock Earnings Equal $1.42 Share

Earnings of Shamrock Oil and Gas Company for the 10 months ended June 30, 1930, are reported to have been $528,000 before depreciation and depletion and after eliminating a non-recurring charge of $50,000 and unused drilling reserve of $48,095. These earnings are at a rate equivalent to 5½ times interest on the bonds and after allowing for such interest net would be $435,156, or equivalent to $1.42 a share on the 305,000 shares of common stock now outstanding.

Jewel Tea Sales Show Decrease

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Sales of the Jewell Tea Company for the first 44 weeks of 1930 totaled $13,037,420, a decrease of 6.86 per cent compared with $13,998,335 in the same period of last year. Sales routes averaged 1,240 against 1,175 last year. In the four weeks ending November 1, 1930, Jewell Tea sales were $1,158,230, compared with $1,330,338 during parallel weeks of 1929, a drop of 12.49 per cent. Sales routes averaged 1,265; last year, 1,194.

Editor Observes Marked Change In Sentiment

Cyril E. Kissane, managing editor of the Wall Street Journal, who is visiting Pittsburgh today stated that recent improvement in the securities market reflects a pronounced change in sentiment which has experienced a sudden right-about from the widespread pessimism that had prevailed for some time.

Improvement in copper prices, better automobile buying, and a firmer attitude with respect to prices by steel producers, are significant straws.

ICE COMPANIES GAIN DESPITE COMPETITION

Intensive Campaigns to Increase Sales Net New Customers by Thousands

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—New competition from electrical and gas refrigeration in recent years stirred the old line ice companies to new activity, and accordingly in this red ink year the leaders among the ice companies are among the select minority of corporations which have been reporting rising profits.

As president of the American Ice Company, Charles C. Small is entitled to the designation of the world's outstanding ice man. For the first nine months of this year, Mr. Small's company reported net earnings after interest but before federal taxes and depreciation of $5,030,908, compared with $4,879,368 for 1929. The showing is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that two or three years ago at the crest of the "new era" it was common gossip among the superficial that electrical and gas refrigeration would soon drive the manufacturer and distributors of ice from the field.

Mr. Rukeyser

Asked to explain how his company had been able to meet the new competition and boost profits, Mr. Small replied:

"In the first place, favorable temperatures helped some; you will recall that the past summer was notably hot and dry.

"Also the company is beginning to enjoy some of the benefits of the latest acquisitions, two or three small companies operating in its territory having been purchased in 1928-29.

BASIC INDUSTRY

"But the main cause of our showing can be credited to the fact that the ice business is a good basic industry which can be made to yield satisfactory results when properly handled.

"As far back as three years ago we realized that we were confronted with competition in a severe form and along somewhat new lines. By intensive sales campaigns covering all of our territory we have actually increased the number of customers served by several thousand and our tonnage has grown. Hardly a month passes without the addition to our customers of a club, a large hotel or an important restaurant which buys ice for its service needs. The number of food shops, refreshment places, florist shops, etc., is continuously growing, and these establishments are all buyers of ice.

"Our distributing facilities have been motorized and enlarged to meet these changes and our manufacturing operations placed on a strictly scientific basis.

"Many people I know find it hard to realize that an ice company, at a time of depression and in the face of extreme competition, can establish new records for earnings, but there are the facts."

RETAIL PRICES

Apropos of the widespread urging that retailers pass along bargain prices to their customers, Norton J. May, president of the May Department Stores Company, which operates large stores in St. Louis, Denver, Los Angeles, Cleveland and Baltimore, in a message to this column insists that his own observation indicates that retailers have fully passed along declines in primary markets.

"I should say, from our own experience, that retail figures are lower than the peak of last year, from 20 per cent to 25 per cent. Competition has been much keener this year than ever before. Merchants are scrambling for business in order to keep up their sales—in many instances, regardless of profit.

"I would not forecast any still further reduction in retail prices, because I believe we are at the bottom.

Wall street brokers have been liberal contributors to the unemployment fund. This is fitting, because in their ruthless discharging of employes they have been liberal contributors to unemployment.

Copper Companies Curtail Schedules

HOUGHTON, Mich., Nov. 15.—Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper Company mines will go on a four-day week basis, effective today. The reclamation plants will shut down. Isle Royale is included in the four-day schedule.

Copper Range Company is considering further curtailment and probably will adopt a shorter working week.

Brokerage Reduces Margin Requirement

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—E. A Pierce & Co have reduced margin requirements on stocks selling between 10 and 19⅞ to $6 a share and on stock selling from 20 to 29⅞ to $8 a share. Stocks below $10 a share must be purchased outright. The company formerly required $10 a share on all stock up to 30.

FUEL LEADERS CONTINUE UPWARD

Lone Star Gas Reaches 25 in Short Session; Industrials Hold Firm

Continued improvement was noted in prices on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in the short week-end session. While buying has not expanded to any noticeable extent the demand for stocks has been steady and moderate improvement has taken place during the past three sessions.

Fuel issues continue to lead the market and the dominant securities in that group have recovered from 2 to more than 4 points from the lows established early in the week. Lone Star Gas was at 25 on the opening, a recovery of approximately 5 points, while Western Public Service was back to 13 after having drooped to 9½ last Monday.

General improvement throughout the country is reflected in the betterment here and there is a marked disposition to regard the worst phase of the autumn decline as past. The industrial group was steady to firm, but there were no noticeable changes in that section.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

AMERICAN CHICLE'S SHOWING

American Chicle has continued to make good progress this year despite general business depression. For the first nine months, net income was equal to $3.39 a share, compared with $3.15 for the corresponding period of 1929. Thus, the current dividend of $2 a share per annum and the extra quarterly of 25 cents a share were more than covered in the nine months ended September 30, last. The company is in a good competitive position and should derive some benefit from the elimination of the duty on chicle. Its financial condition is strong. As of June 30, last, current assets amounted to $4,614,563, against current liabilities of $686,777, a ratio of 6.7 to 1. Cash, call loans and marketable securities on that date amounted to $1,136,127.

BULL LEADERSHIP LACKING

Bullish leadership in the market has been lacking for some time. From time to time, a moderate amount of scale buying has been credited to important interests. They have been purchasing stocks for the long pull, and it is unlikely that those shares will come out even if the market continues to seek lower levels. Evidence is lacking, however, of any concentrated effort on the part of the former bullish leaders to move the market forward. Naturally, with liquidation and bear pressure coming from time to time, the lack of bullish leadership has been felt acutely.

NEW HAVEN APPOINTMENTS

Benjamin Campbell, vice president in charge of traffic of New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, after 23 years of service will retire on December 1. Mr. Campbell will retain his connection with the company in an advisory capacity. Frank J. Wall has been appointed general traffic manager for the New Haven, the New England Steamship Company, the Hartford and New York Transportation Company and the New York, Westchester and Boston Railway, effective December 1.

CALLS PREFERRED STOCK

Eastern Texas Electric Company, a subsidiary of Engineers Public Service Company, has called for redemption January 1 the entire outstanding issue of $2,425,600 par value 7 per cent preferred Series "A" stock at $110 per share and accumulated dividends. The company has no immediate plan for public financing and the call will be met with funds now in the treasury of the Engineers Company.

GOVERNMENT DRUG STORE SURVEY

The Department of Commerce will conduct a survey into the drug and allied fields for the purpose of making an analysis of drug store merchandising operations. Beginning January 1 the survey will be made in St. Louis along the lines of the recent Louisville grocery survey.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

White Sewing Machine Corporation reports for first nine months of 1930 net loss of $274,664 after all charges, against net profit of 481,319 in the similar period in 1929.

Marmon Motor Car Company reports for quarter ended August 31 net loss of $670,927 after all charges, against net loss of $145,720 in the preceding quarter and net profit, equal to 17 cents a common share, in the like 1929 quarter. For six months ended August 31, net loss totaled $816,647, against $4.29 a common share earned in the corresponding 1929 period.

Coty Incorporated reports third quarter net equal to 14 cents a share on 1,535,731 shares, against 12 cents a share on 1,492,655 shares in the preceding three months and $1.14 a share on 1,471,985 shares in the third quarter of 1929. Nine months' net equals 86 cents a share on 1,535,731 shares, against $2.46 a share on 1,471,985 shares in the first nine months of 1929.

Columbian Carbon Company reports for third quarter of 1930 net equal to 89 cents per share on 498,505 shares, against $1.57 a share in the preceding quarter and $1.75 a share on 457,344 shares in the like 1929 quarter. Nine months' net equals $4.09 a share on the 498,505 shares, against $6.31 a share on the 457,344 shares in the similar period last year.

Columbia Pictures Corporation reports for quarter ended September 27, net profit of $143,573 after amortization of film rights purchased, federal taxes, etc.

Canadian Car and Foundry Company, Ltd., reports for year ended September 30, net profit of $3.89 a share on combined 300,000 shares of 7 per cent partici[illegible] com[illegible]bined stock in the preceding year.

TARTAN CANNOT ACCEPT EXTRA GAMES

THE LOSS OF three of the last four games may have kept Carnegie Tech's record for 1930 from being all that it promised to be when the gridiron campaign was in its early stages, but it hasn't hurt the standing of the Tartans in the front ranks of American football nor lessened their drawing powers in the eyes of the pigskin authorities throughout the country. The Schenley Park school, even in an unfortunate year, continues to be looked upon as representative of the highest collegiate standards on the barred field and as one of the most popular cards in the sport.

Clarence Overend.

Evidence of this is contained in the fact that Carnegie is in great demand for post-season charity games. In searching about for the gridders carrying the strongest public appeal and the ones that would draw best, the sponsors of some of the proposed big games of that nature are showing a decided preference for the Skibos. Two invitations to the Scots to play in post-season charity events have been received by Graduate Manager Clarence Overend.

ONE CAME FROM 'way down South. It was sent by the mayor of Miami, Fla., and expressed a desire to have the Plaid appear in a game there for the benefit of the unemployed of that city, its opponent to be one of the strong Southern teams to be selected from among the University of Georgia and others. December 6 and 13 and Christmas Day were offered as dates, the games to be arranged for the day most acceptable to Carnegie.

The other invitation came from Mayor Jimmy Walker's committee in New York, asking the Tartans to play in a charity game in the Metropolis on November 29. Manager Overend, with regret, was forced to decline both proposals, that from New York because the Steffenites are already scheduled for November 29, and the one from Miami because Carnegie's football season ends definitely with the conclusion of the regular schedule. Carnegie is one of the few institutions turning over the receipts of one of its regular games to a fund for the jobless, as its contest with W. & J. here on November 29 will be played for that worthy cause, with Pitt donating the Stadium.

FOOTBALL'S GREATEST CONTRIBUTION to the cause of the unemployed is assured by the clinching of a game between the Army and Navy elevens for December 13 in New York. Unquestionably the meeting of the service teams will net a greater sum than any other post-season contest that could have been arranged.

The success of the efforts to bring the old rivals together after a break over eligibility rules, is also gratifying from a sport viewpoint, because there is a possibility that it will lead to the resumption of regular annual gridiron relations, restoring football's most colorful fixture.

Maj. Ralph Sasse.

SINCE THE TEAMS met last in 1927, when the Army won, 14 to 9, at the Polo Grounds, in New York, the Generals have changed coaches, Maj. Ralph Sasse having succeeded Capt. L. McC. (Biff) Jones this year. In 30 meetings the Army has won 15 times, the Navy 12 times, and three games have ended in ties. The history of the competition:

A GLANCE OVER the college football schedules for the year discloses that Pitt and Notre Dame have not had a monopoly on the traveling. Little De Paul is listed as one of the so-called minor schools, yet the scope of its activities has been so wide that it played in San Francisco on one Saturday and met St. John's, of Brooklyn, the next.

And then there's Oglethorpe University, of Atlanta, Ga. It goes W. & J. one better this year by playing only one game at home out of nine slated, the schedule calling for jumps to Athens, New York,

HINCHMAN TO PLAY

The big shot, and the man whom Pitt must fear most, is Fesler, the defensive end and offensive back. He's a fine end, worthy of two years of all-America ranking as a wingman, and this year, has been used as a ball carrier on the attack, as both a pass tossing and pass receiving threat and so far, has played up to snuff on the defensive.

Pitt, a team with great possibilities, but one which has so far failed to deliver as it should, even though it has taken West Virginia, Syracuse, Carnegie Tech, Waynesburg and Western Reserve, beside tying Nebraska, is due to click today.

Coach Jock Sutherland has announced he planned to start the same lineup that opposed Carnegie Tech last week. That means that he has changed his mind about using Josh Williams at right half at the start and will shoot Bulldog Reider at the Bucks.

MAY CHANGE LINEUP

In the event it is a wet day, and early this morning the weather was extremely propitious, Williams will be used, along with the powerful Hood at fullback.

With the arrival this morning of the second and third special trains, bearing Pitt student rooters and followers from Pittsburgh, and the hourly chug-chugging of private cars, also heavily laden with Western Pennsylvania followers of the Blue and Gold, the quota of out-of-town visitors swelled was close to the 5,000 mark. One special train, bearing the Pitt band and 300 or 400 students pulled in last night, shortly after the train bearing the team arrived.

BISONS PLAY PRESIDENTS

DUKES PLAY GENEVA

Of even more importance in a general sense is the battle carded today at Beaver Falls, between Duquesne University and Geneva College. It brings together the highly skilled proteges of Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech all-America quarterback in 1928, who is coaching at Geneva, and Elmer Layden, former Horseman at Notre Dame, who is the mentor of the Dukes. A large army of Duquesne rooters is making the trip to Beaver Falls and the entire Beaver Valley is het up over the battle, which is exepected to be close and hard fought.

Pitt plays Ohio State at Columbus today and virtually all of the Pitt students and close alumni followers of the team are in the Ohio metropolis for the contest.

OTHER DISTRICT GAMES

Other district teams are battling as follows: Thiel vs. Westminster at New Wilmington, Pa.; Bethany vs. Grove City at Grove City; Slippery Rock vs. West Chester Teachers at Slippery Rock; California Teachers vs. Indiana Teachers at Indiana; Waynesburg vs. West Virginia Wesleyan at Buckhannon, W. Va.; Penn State vs. Iowa at Iowa City; Edinboro vs. Canisius at Buffalo; Davis and Elkins vs. St. Francis at Clarksburg, W. Va.; Marshall vs. Louisville at Huntington, W. TONY ANNEXES LIGHTWEIGHT TITLE EASILY

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Quicker than he won the crown. Quicker almost than the eye could follow, young Al Singer was stripped of his lightweight title last night by Tony Canzoneri, brisk little Italian, who started his fantastic fight career as a bootblack in the streets of New Orleans.

Singer, hailed as the new Benny Leonard when he crushed Sammy Mandell in a single round last August to mount the 135-pound throne, lasted only two real punches and one minute and six seconds against the attack of the former featherweight champion. Tony nailed the sleek Jewish lad with one left hook to the chin, whanged him again and the battle was over in the first round of what started out to be a 15-round match in Madison Square Garden.

SINGER BOOED

The "viewers with alarm" became very busy the minute Singer hit the floor, as busy as they were when Mandell, a pale, lifeless ghost of himself, was battered into senselessness by Singer in something over two minutes last summer. The crowd of about 16,000 rose and booed, howling Singer from the ring, though they cheered the exit of Canzoneri, the new king. Heads have been wagging over rumors for days and there were reports of a betting coup when Singer entered the ring 2½ to 1 favorite.

Singer, apparently in splendid shape, sideled from his corner as Tony danced toward him. They met in the center of the ring, sparred cautiously, fell into a clinch and pounded each other's ribs in desultory fashion. They boxed in the open again without landing a blow, fell together and once more swung apart.

END SUDDEN

When it seemed certain nothing was going to break through the cautiousness for a while at least, the roof of Singer's championship castle suddenly smashed right down upon his head. A left whanged home and Singer crumpled. He rolled over, rose to one knee at nine, but fell and took the full count. Singer weighed 134, Canzoneri 132.

Tony, who is just 22, won the featherweight championship in a match with Benny Bass in February, 1928, and then lost the title a few months later to Andre Routis, of France.

ARMY-NAVY PLAY DEC. 13

ANNAPOLIS Nov. 15.—(INS.)—An Army-Navy football game will be played in New York City at the Polo Grounds or in Yankee Stadium December 13, the proceeds to go to relieve the unemployed.

This was the net result of a series of conferences held yesterday between War and Navy Department officials and a committee of Grover A. Whalen, former police commissioner of New York; Col. Richard C. Patterson, New York commissioner of correction, and Col. Edward Underwood, of the New York Salvation Army.

Navy officials favored Yankee Stadium as the field for the game They pointed out it would seat 77,000 and that New York officials agreed to cover it with straw if the weather is cold, in order to prevent playing the game on frozen ground.

The entire corps of both schools will attend the game under present plans. The fact that the student corps would occupy a large block of seats, thus cutting down the gate receipts somewhat, was brought out, but it was believed the contest would have a much

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: LINDSEY HICKS, WHO CAN'T BE KILLED—Hicks was working with five other men in a tunnel of the Southern California Edison Company when he was imprisoned by a cave-in. His five companions were killed instantly, but Hicks lived for 16 days under the mass of rock and debris before the rescuers were able to extricate him. During that time he was fed milk, whisky punches and egg-nogs through a 35-foot pipe and he weighed more after the ordeal than before. THE LARGEST LILY—The Yucca shown in my drawing is known as the Joshua Tree or Yucca Brevifolia, and is the tallest on record. The Joshua Tree is the most conspicuous of the Yucca species of the Liliaceae family, and is found only in Southwestern United States, Mexico and parts of Central America. My drawing was made from an original photo taken by J. O. Loop, of Long Beach, Cal. (Reference: Encyclopedia Britannica.)

SOUTH HILLS, WESTINGHOUSE GRID CHAMPS

TUNNELITES, CARRICK PLAY SCORELESS TIE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

South Hills and Westinghouse high school football teams qualified to meet for the city scholastic championship yesterday when Westinghouse won the Section I title by defeating Allderdice, 52 to 7, while South Hills was crowned Section II champion despite the fact it was held to a scoreless tie by Carrick. The Tunnelites show a record of four victories and one defeat.

The Carrick contest was a messy affair that ended in darkness. Time was taken out repeatedly on account of injured players.

The honors were close to even when one considers the game from all angles, but Carrick tossed away a fine chance to make a touchdown in the fourth quarter when it had the ball on South Hill's four-yard line. It was third down for the home eleven, but, in its anxiety to score, Carrick fumbled and, although it recovered, it lost considerable ground on the play. The Carrick gridders tried a field goal from placement in this situation, but the South Hills boys hurried the kick to such an extent it went wide of its mark.

PERRY BOOKING

The Perry Community Club is looking for a game abroad tomorrow with a team looking for a first-class attraction. Coach Tom Good's team has met Millvale, Glendale and Allison Park. Managers wishing this attraction should call Manager Hamilton at Fairfax 2599.

Sport Vignettes

Bob Waddell, Carnegie Tech football coach, will be a spectator at the Bucknell-W. & J. game at the Stadium today for three reasons . . . One is that Tech has an off-day, another that he is a former Bucknell quarterback star and the third that he wants to get a peek at W. & J., which tangles with Tech in that benefit game at the Stadium the Saturday following Thanksgiving Day . . . Stanford University, where Pop Warner is football coach, reports a deficit of a half-million dollars in its athletic treasury, which somehow doesn't seem to jibe with Stanford's 41-12 defeat by Southern California, whose backfield may be gaudy but is not costly . . . A fine sense of values and duty prevails at last, and Army and Navy will meet on the gridiron in the name of sweet charity.

Sandy Seifert, North Side heavyweight, is back in training and will be in action again in the ring soon, according to word from trusted spies . . . He helped Frank Novak to prepare for the latter's bout with Walter Gallagher at the Moose Temple last night, working out daily in the St. Boniface Lyceum gym . . . Pennsylvania and Georgia Tech, two teams that can take it on the chin and how! meet in one of the majvr intersectional games at Philadelphia today . . . Other big intersectional battles include: Penn State at Iowa, Pitt at Ohio State (funny how a battle like that between two teams a short distance apart on the map comes under the head of an intersectional battle, but there it is), Southern Methodist at Navy and St. Mary's of California at Fordham, this last one being the high spot of the day . . . Oh, yes, Yale plays Princeton at Princeton, but what of it?—HARRY KECK.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 60.

George Earnshaw was my pitching selection for the third game because he had worked less than five innings in the second game, with a full day's rest in between.

Connie Mack

He was willing and ready to come back and I did not hesitate to instruct Coach Bill Gleason to hand him the ball to warm up.

I might say here that Earnshaw has just one superstition. He never will warm up unless Gleason hands him the ball. Once or twice during the playing season Gleason would be in the clubhouse when it became time to get ready and even then Earnshaw would hustle into the room and get a ball out of Bill's own hands before letting go one practice pitch.

Bush was the Cub selection and both pitchers started off at the top of their game. Both sides had chances to score in the second inning. Wilson opened for the Cubs with a three-bagger, but was pinched at the plate.

In the Athletics' half Dykes and Boley hit singles. Dykes went to third and, with two out, he boldly set out for the plate on a steal and made it, but, unfortunately, this was the third strike on Earnshaw and the run did not count, much to the dismay of Athletics partisans.

In the third inning the Athletics filled the bases, but Bush was able to wiggle out of the hole.

MACKS BREAK TIE

The Athletics broke the scoreless tie in the fifth. Cochrane beat out an infield hit and the next two hitters were retired, advancing Mickey. Bing Miller, a timely hitter throughout the games, followed with a slashing hit that scored Cochrane.

McMillan fouled to Cochrane and English was safe on Dykes' fumble. Hornsby's single to left put Bush across with the run that tied the score. Bishop threw out Wilson, but both runners advanced and they scored when Cuyler rammed a single to center.

This brought up Simmons and Foxx, our two broad backs, and spectators were set for a profitable rally, but both Al and Jimmy were retired, and our chance vanished. Bush was so heartened that he retired the Athletics in order in the eighth and ninth innings.

In the meantime, Earnshaw had recovered his grip and was as efficient in the last three innings as he had been in the first five. His one slip off his high estate in the sixth inning had been fatal.

Bush had won for the Cubs because of his lion heart and strength in the pinches. The Athletics had numerous opportunities to walk away with the game, but, with men on bases, Bush always tightened and it was impossible to bring in any more runs.

Incidentally, Bush had won the first game for a National League team in a world series since the last game of 1926, when Alexander went to the peak late in the last game to stop the Yanks and make it possible for the Cardinals to become champions of the world.

SERIES TIGHTENS

The Cubs had come back valiantly before a hostile crowd and won a game on their merits, proving that two straight defeats on the home grounds had not discouraged them.

That made the standing of the series two games to one in our favor, and we now had to win the next two games or we would have to make another trip to Chicago.

I felt that the Cubs were much heartened by their victory and would make a real fight of it in all the remaining games of the series.

You can't take anything for granted playing a pennant winner. The Cubs were good enough to capture the National League championship and they must be considered dangerous at all times. They had staged a comeback after two defeats in Chicago, and, by winning in Philadelphia, had served notice that they must be reckoned with in the remaining games.

While I always had abundant confidence in the ability of the Athletics to vanquish this foe, still the loss of this game made me feel a trifle uneasy.

Baseball at best is an uncertain sport and many things may happen in a short series.

When I went to bed that night I felt it was up to us to win the next two games.

The red light of danger lurked for us if the series should go back to Chicago for decision.

LOCAL PUCKMEN HELP BUFFALO LIFT LID

By CARL W. SHATTO

Reid and Roy D. Schooley, president-manager of the local club, put the Jackets through a long workout at the Garden yesterday in an effort to strengthen certain weak spots in the local lineup revealed in the lid-lifter with London here Thursday. The Schooley skaters, all young and eager to improve their status as icemen, took the lesson very much to heart, and Buffalo will find them a more dangerous aggregation than they were against the Panthers in the inaugural.

FAULTS CORRECTED

Pittsburgh hockey fandom gives a loser the cold shoulder very quickly, but so does Schooley, chief of the local club. Roy never has been connected with other than a winner, and he doesn't plan to change his habits at this late date. The game, fighting stand which the Jackets made in the third period of their game with the Panthers convinced the local club prexy that his boys are not lacking in fighting spirit, and he is confident that the improved team play which marked this stanza will show further improvement in future battles.

The opener here was something of an experimental fray. Many of the Jackets never before had teamed together in actual battle, and this lack of familiarity with each other's style of play cost the locals two goals, Green and Yankoski, at defense, getting their signals mixed and letting Grosvenor, Panther center, skate through unmolested twice for tallies.

JACKETS FAVORITES

Coach Reid will give the defense much of his attention for the next few days, and he will continue to experiment with the front lines. Although he did not break into the lineup until late in the game, Jimmy Smith showed so much fight in the lid-lifter that he will be used more in the future, and Cliff McBride, who proved to be an exceptionally fine stick handler, will be coached to attempt more scoring drives from his backfield point.

Buffalo showed considerable strength in a game at Windsor last night, but the Jackets rule slight favorites to triumph tonight. The Buffalo sextet is to appear here next Thursday. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh.		Buffalo.
Fisher	G.	Taugher
Yankoski	D.	Kain
Green	D.	Lederman
Fields	C.	Roth
Gregg	W.	Godin
Proudlock	W.	Voss

WINDSOR BLANKED

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 15.—The Buffalo Bisons spoiled the local opening of the International Hockey League season for 4,500 fans last night by capturing a 1-0 verdict in a scrappy battle.

HEAVIES STEAL MOOSE SHOW

A couple of heavyweights, boxing the second preliminary of six rounds, "stole" the fight show at the Moose Temple last night before a fair-sized crowd. Spontaneous applause followed every round and the winner received an ovation at the finish.

The hero of the occasion was a newcomer, tall, rangy, 199-pound Walter Gallagher, of Dormont, and formerly of California, and his foil was Frank Novak, chunky 192½ - pound North Sider. Throughout the six rounds they battled every inch of the way, with the more experienced Gallagher pumping away with right uppercuts to the body and stabbing off his opponent with his long left. At the final bell both were exhausted, and Novak's left eye was closed and discolored, while Gallagher was bleeding from the mouth and a cut on his cheek. It was Gallagher's fight in every round, but Novak also earned his spurs by carrying on in the face of a wilting fire of punches. A rematch is likely.

FIRPO DEFEATS WEST

This battle, for action, far overshadowed the main event of 10 rounds, in which Henry Firpo, of Louisville, 158, put on a hot finish in the last four rounds and jabbed and punched his way to victory over Tiger Joe West, of Donora, 157, after permitting West to force the fighting and pile up a lead. The judges agreed on Firpo, while the referee called the bout a draw. Firpo deserved the laurels.

Georgie Annarino, of Newark, O., 117 pounds, lived up to his advance notices in handing Anastasio Vacquerio, Panamanian, 113½, a drubbing in the six-round semi-final, and Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, 138, easily defeated Al Munro, of the Hill, 142½, in the opener.

Al Grayber refereed all of the bouts and Frank Brown and Frank Hogan acted as judges. Tommy Grant and Max Zeugschmidt were the timers and Ray Eberle did the announcing.

While the price of admission has not been definitely settled, it was indicated it would be at least $4 per seat, and that the boxes would be auctioned off.

Figuring on such a basis, the 77,000 seats would bring in a total of $84,000. With boxes going at $100 each — and officials estimated at least this would be bid for each of them—an additional quarter of a million dollars would be added.

Between Rounds

Both Joe Glick, of New York, and Tony Herrera, of Chicago, will arrive in town tomorrow morning for their 10-round return battle in the Motor Square Garden ring Monday night, where they recently fought a draw. Although Glick really won the first battle, the smart money is on Tony this time, because of his swell finish in their other tussle.

Paul Pirrone's fight with Bucky Lawless here last Monday night was only the thirty-fourth of his career and he will not be 21 years old until next April 28. His next bout will be with Jackie Fields, former welterweight champion, at Cleveland, December 10, topping off a Christmas show bill in which Fidel LaBarba and Eddie Shea will box the semi-final.

Allegheny Beats Salem College, 20-0

MEADVILLE, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Salem College, of West Virginia, forced Allegheny College's Gold and Blue to go the limit to score three touchdowns and win, 20 to 0, here yesterday.

It was Salem's game throughout the first quarter, and for a good part of the second. Then Allegheny found itself, drove 72 yards for one touchdowns, 69 yards for another, and counted the third after a 16-yard run by Varano. The lineup:

Boylan	L.E.	Bowen
Francis	L.T.	Sobak
Knapp	L.G.	Burkett
Morse	C.	Swiger
Bughee	R.G.	Kelly
McManus	R.T.	Reep
Fallon	R.E.	Hogue
Balser	Q.	West
Anderson	L.H.	Menzel
Ungerman	R.H.	Tiberi
Garbark	F.	Niedecker

Allegheny	0	7	7	6—20

Collins Stops Landig In Benefit Show

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 15.—The largest crowd that has attended a boxing show here in several weeks turned out last night to witness a card staged for the benefit of the unemployed, and saw Ray Collins, local lightweight, score a technical knockout over Dick Landig, of Detroit, in the fouth round.

Long's Sport Comment

BIG TEN FOOTBALL teams will be hit hard by graduation before another season arrives, many of the leading stars of the Conference being scheduled to complete their college gridiron careers this fall.

Wesley Fesler.

Ohio State will lose one of its best of all time in Wesley Fesler, defensive and offensive end and offensive fullback, a player who ranks with Harley, Stinchcomb, Huffman, and other Buckeye greats. With him will go Dick Larkins and Sam Selby from the line and Bob Horn from the backfield.

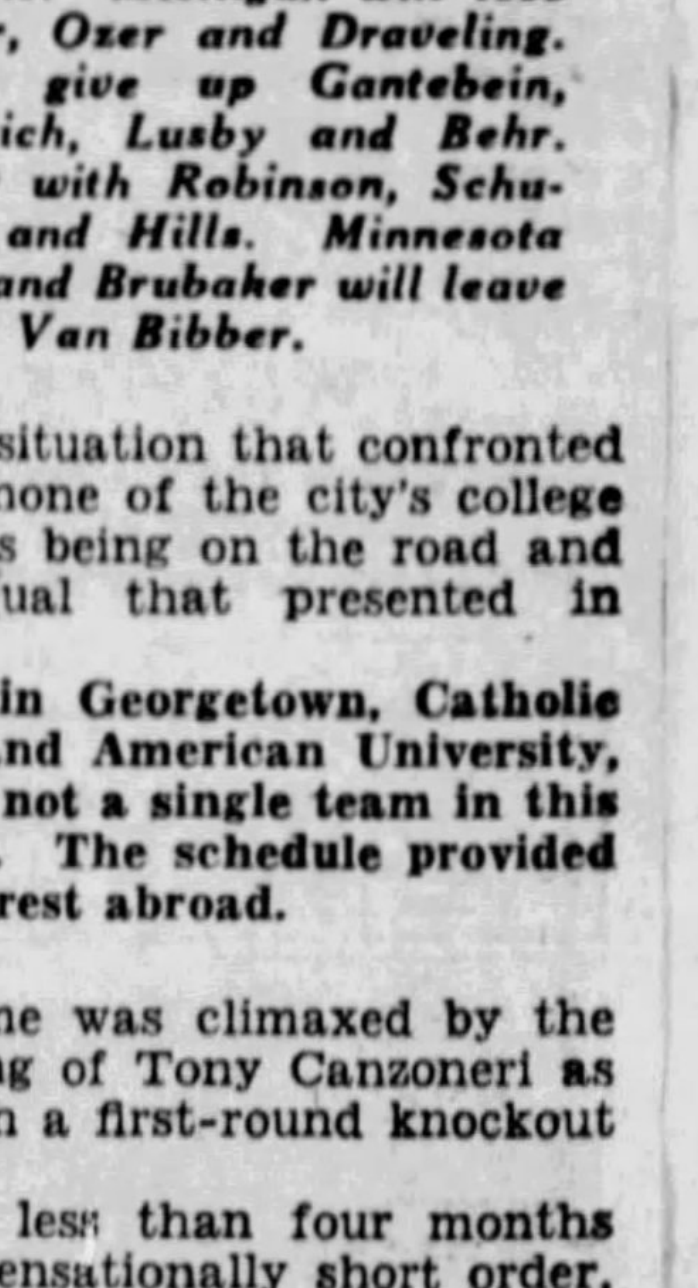
A SURVEY MADE by Francis J. Powers shows that Northwestern will suffer the heaviest loss, as it will be deprived of the services of Bruder, Hanley and Griffin in the backfield, Baker and Oliphant, ends, and Woodworth and Clarke in the line. Michigan will lose Simrall, Wheeler, Ozer and Draveling. Wisconsin must give up Gantebein, Casey, Lubratovich, Lusby and Behr. Illinois will part with Robinson, Schumaker, Bodman and Hills. Minnesota loses Brockmeyer and Berry. Ross Hughes and Brubaker will leave Indiana, and Purdue's greatest loss will be Van Bibber.

THOUGH IT WAS an unusual football situation that confronted the fans of Pittsburgh this week-end with none of the city's college teams playing at home—Pitt and the Dukes being on the road and Carnegie remaining idle—it did not equal that presented in Washington.

The National Capital has five teams, in Georgetown, Catholic University, George Washington, Gallaudet and American University, with Maryland and others not far away, yet not a single team in this big representation is playing at home today. The schedule provided an open date for American and sent all the rest abroad.

A YEAR OF upsets in the boxing game was climaxed by the dethronement of Al Singer and the crowning of Tony Canzoneri as the new world lightweight champion through a first-round knockout of the titleholder in 1 minute and 6 seconds.

Singer himself won the championship less than four months earlier from Sammy Mandell in the same sensationally short order, but even that achievement was not so far out of line with the dope as was the victory of Canzoneri. Singer was a 2-to-1 favorite in the betting, and the form sheets showed hardly a chance for Canzoneri to win, even by a decision, much less by a knockout. That Mandell had beaten Canzoneri and Singer had knocked out Mandell was only one of the angles favoring Singer.



Al Singer.

IT MAY BE argued that the kayo suffered by Singer at the hands of Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight, in a handicap match not long ago had something to do with the outcome and that Singer had never got over it, but whatever the cause Canzoneri must be given credit for turning a trick of which few believed him capable. In addition to capturing the lightweight crown, Tony wins a place among the outstanding fighters who have scaled the world championship heights in two classes, as he formerly held the featherweight honors. Singer goes out with honor, as he acted the part of a real champion, unlike many other modern titleholders, in readily consenting to risk his diadem in less than four months against a formidable challenger instead of resorting to the customary stalling tactics. It has been a record year for the toppling of fistic kings. Since 1930 came in Mandell and Singer have fallen in the lightweight division, Jackie Fields and Young Jack Thompson have been unseated in the welterweight class, Jimmy Slattery has gone down as light-heavyweight leader, and Tod Morgan and Mushy Callahan have lost the junior lightweight and junior welterweight titles, respectively. The lightweight and welterweight divisions have each had three champions since the first of the year—Mandell, Singer and Canzoneri in the former and Fields, Thompson and Tommy Freeman in the latter.

Inferior Games.
Illinois Band.

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov 15.—Football broadcasts this year are far inferior to those of last season. The scores this fall are too one-sided.

Suspense is lacking and thrills are few and far between. Little interest can be coaxed to a contest in which the scores are larger than the number of players on the field. The most exciting gridiron broadcasts to date have been those in which Harvard has figured—the Army-Harvard and the Yale-Harvard meeting a week away holds promise of increasing the heart-beats of the ear-cuppers. And Army seems to have the best chance of keeping Notre Dame to less than four touchdowns.

* * *

The Army-Illinois game must have been dull to the armchairs. It was dull to the spectators save for those few minutes between the halves when Illinois band took the field. Here was a genuine novelty to New Yorkers. Not only was it the largest band ever to be seen in the city—it had 160 musicians, but it marched with military precision, it sang sentimentally to alma mammy, it carried eight bass horns and a bass drum big enough to hide a horse.

* * *

Illinois Brings Biggest Band to New York

College band maneuvers have become a high decorative feature of football games in the last decade. During a lull in the melee, they spell out college names, play five or six time-worn marches, a college tune or two and call it a day. The Illinois band departs from the usual tradition. It airs more difficult marches, shows its ability in harmony, conducts itself in a professional manner.

The band rushed from the gridiron to the broadcasting studio where it offered to the armchairs a program of semi-classical and college numbers, and received from [illegible] spy reports, $2,500 for its half-hour services.

* * *

To the listening army tomorrow night will come one of those rarest of musical offerings—a piano recital by Josef Hofmann. Hofmann was heard once last year in a concert definitely highbrow. Nor will he play down this year to the musical tastes of any of his listeners. The broadcasters should be grateful for his refusal to don the clothes of condescension. He will add materially to their musical prestige.

* * *

Meanwhile, isn't it time Iturbi, newest idol of Carnegie's pewholders, was led to the microphones not only to air the sun-streaked dances of his native land, but to show, as he did last season, the close relation between the conventional classic form and Negro-American music? And where, too, is Walter Gieseking, whose fingers next to Iturbi are the most restless of all masters of the piano?

Trees Now Evoke Sentimental Talk

Martin L. Davey has resumed his practice of squeezing sentiment out of the loudspeakers on Sunday afternoons through the favorite songs of the album era and brief talks on trees. Nothing of current croons is audible in the programs, possibly because new tunes are not suitable to old trees. Davey himself evokes childhood memories of old trees with 10 minutes of simple and well-paused eloquence—an eloquence gained in this instance not inappropriately on the political stumps of Ohio.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

James Francis Burke speaks for the Welfare Fund on WCAE at 7:45 tonight. The high counsellor for the Republican party has one of the best deliveries over radio of any statesmen we have heard. His talks are always interesting, too.

* * *

"Hear the Voice of Youth"—highlight of the third act in "Manon"—is to be sung from the Chicago Civic Opera House for KDKA listeners at 10 p. m. Mary McCormic in the title role is to give this vocal gavotte as she appears in a throng of holiday merry makers of a Paris street on a fete day.

* * *

* * *

We had the pleasure of watching John Judson, Washington, Pa., attorney, present the Poet's Hour in WJAS one Saturday night. He does his work with as much dramatic feeling as though facing a crowd at Syria Mosque. The girls, Helen Rogers and Pearl Porter, furnish an excellent musical background with violin and piano.

If you're fat—first remove the cause!

KRUSCHEN SALTS contain the 6 mineral salts your body organs, glands and nerves must have to function properly.

When your vital organs fail to perform their work correctly—your bowels and kidneys can't throw off that waste material—before you realize it—you're growing hideously fat!

Take one-half teaspoonful of KRUSCHEN SALTS in a glass of hot water every morning—do not overeat and—in three weeks get on the scale and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin is clearer—your eyes sparkle with glorious health—you feel younger in body—keener in mind. KRUSCHEN will give any fat person a joyous surprise.

Get an 85c bottle of KRUSCHEN SALTS from any leading druggist anywhere in America (lasts 4 weeks). If this first bottle doesn't convince you this is the easiest, safest and surest way to lose fat—if you don't feel a superb improvement in health—so gloriously energetic — vigorously alive — your money gladly returned.

WIFE ACCUSES MATE IN SUIT

After returning home from a golf match at a country club, Mrs. Hilda K. Kelly, of McCleary street, McKeesport, was given the alternative of having her mother come and take her home, or going home in a coffin because of the jealousy of her husband, Chester W. Kelly, contract painter and decorator, of McKeesport, she testified in her divorce suit before Judge James R. Macfarlane in Common Pleas Court.

He threatened to kill her on other occasions, she declared, and once he pointed a revolver at her breast and at another time she found a loaded shotgun in the room. While she was in Europe in 1928 he wrote her and advised her to get a divorce there, she testified. They were married May 28, 1921, and she left him August 16, 1930, she said.

Numbers Racket Raid Nets Four Arrests

Four men were reported arrested and paraphernalia used in the "numbers" racket confiscated in a raid by Hill district police at 1317 Clark street yesterday. The men gave their names as O. H. Killdrew, 106 Fullerton street; Paul Andrews, 222 Greenfield avenue; Leroy Mason, Labor Temple, and Al Weiner, 1606 Center avenue. On orders of Inspector Albert Beebe, they were charged with operating a lottery, and bail fixed at $2,500 each.

Tax Appeal Time Limit Ends Today

Today is the last day of the period of appeals on the part of city taxpayers in connection with the triennial assessment. Every third year the board of assessors makes a general review of property valuations and in this connection the board has been receiving appeals from the new valuations since November 5. For the convenience of taxpayers wishing to appeal, the office of the board of assessors will be kept open until 5 o'clock today, Chief Assessor Thomas C. McMahon announced.

Injured Youth Sues Taxicab Company

For injuries suffered when a taxicab collided with a pile of dirt bearing a red light, Daniel A. Leopold, 20, through his mother, Mrs. Anna M. Leopold, asked $25,000 damages from the Yellow Cab Company in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court. He averred he was a passenger in a cab which ran into the dirt pile July 26 on Liverpool street.

Business Forecast System Planned

Plans for a system of obtaining a composite business forecast will be presented by Murray Shields, of the bureau of business research of the University of Pittsburgh, at a luncheon to be held in Kaufmann's dining room Thursday under the auspices of the Pittsburgh branch of the American Statistical Association.

Ex-Wife of Noted Architect Wed To Secretary

SPRING GREEN, Wis., Nov. 15.—(INS.)—Catherine L. Wright, first wife of Frank Lloyd Wright, architect of international renown, is now the wife of Benjamin Page, secretary of Frank Lloyd Wright, Inc., Wright admitted today at Taliesen, his country home. He said:

"The marriage took place last spring, but was not made public. They have my best wishes for success and happiness."

U. S. JURY FINDS 50 TRUE BILLS

The Federal grand jury handed down 50 indictments in which 59 men and women were charged with various offenses against the government. 44 of them accused of liquor violations of the national prohibition law.

Among the latter were Charles Rock and Paul Volick, charged with selling and possessing beer, and maintaining the Fern Garden road house, R. D. No. 8, Crafton, as a common nuisance. Thomas F. Campbell was charged with maintaining a barbecue, Curry road, Bethel Township, as a nuisance. The same allegation was made against Irene A. Pallo in connection with a tea room at 135 North Craig street.

Helen Dillon was indicted on a charge of unlawful possession of 58 cases of homebrew beer and transporting three cases of homebrew, at McKeesport, September 11.

CABS TO DEFY STATE HINTED

Fred Schaffer, business agent of the local taxicab drivers' union, is reported making plans for the operation of unauthorized cabs in the city here in defiance of the Public Service Commission. The commission this week refused certificates of operation to local organizations for new cab companies.

Schaffer said he and his associates will operate individual cabs as they did during the drivers' strike, passengers being permitted to pay any fare they wish.

Walter S. Laird, vice president of the Parmelee Transportation Company, operators of Green and Yellow cabs, said his company would adopt any means necessary to protect its rights and prevent the illegal operation of cabs.

Nine members of the local drivers' union executive committee are reported to be planning to meet Monday night to decide whether the union will support Schaffer in his plan. Shaffer was quoted as saying the union is not involved, but that he believes he will have the support of the unionized drivers.

Police Quell Riot Of Students at Game

Cuts and bruises were suffered by students of the David B. Oliver and Allegheny High schools during a riot which broke out during the football game between the two teams yesterday afternoon on the Oliver field. Police drove the rioters back into the stands and the game was continued. The Oliver team won 13 to 0. There were no arrests.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

ARSON SUSPECT SEIZED HERE

When Detective V. Bert Ritchie, of Connellsville, here to testify before the Federal grand jury, went out to lunch yesterday he saw a man in front of the Federal building who, he alleges, is wanted on a charge of arson in Fayette county.

Ritchie arrested the man, Walter Cooley, 30, and lodged him in Central police station, to await removal to Fayette County when the detective has concluded his business with the grand jury.

Park Asks to Join Bar Association

Application for membership in the Allegheny County Bar Association has been filed by District Attorney Andrew T. Park. The application will be considered by the committee on admission Thursday. It declared that Park was born in Delancey, N. Y., July 30, 1887, and was admitted to practice October 9, 1913. He was registered as a law student in the office of William W. Ford.

VOTE RECOUNT DEMANDED

With the official count of the general election practically completed the return board will recount the vote cast in four election districts.

A petition was presented yesterday by Assistant County Solicitor Frank M. Ittel asking that the ballot box from the Fifth District, Seventeenth Ward be brought in for recount.

The election board failed to mark its tally sheet properly and credited Gifford Pinchot with less than 15 votes, but on the return sheet he was credited with the more than 275 votes that he received in the district. The election board's explanation was not accepted by Judge Ambrose B. Reid, who insisted on the tally sheet record being recorded.

Similar errors were made in the Second District, Third Ward of Avalon, the First Election District in East McKeesport and one district in Sharpsburg. The recount will show that the return sheet record is the correct count, members of the boards have told the court. The return will not be corrected until the recount is made, according to Judge Reid's ruling.

FACE A SIGHT SKIN NOW CLEAR

Praises Resinol

"My face was a sight from an eruption which appeared mostly on my nose and chin in the form of blind boils. I doctored it and used various things people suggested but nothing seemed to do any good. Finally I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment and by regular use I cleared my face. I have told many people about them, and would like to be able to convince everyone that Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are wonderful." (Signed) N. M. [illegible], Norfolk, Va.

Don't continue to be embarrassed by a rough blotchy skin when the Resinol treatment quickly heals your skin disorders. Sold by your druggist. Sample free. Write Resinol, Dept. 31, Baltimore, Maryland.

FOLLOW THESE RULES

1—Every one is eligible to participate in the New "Title Hunt" except employes of the Sun-Telegraph and their families.

2—Every day from November 2nd to December 1st inclusive, ten Ripley "Believe It or Not" pictures (without descriptions) will be published in addition to the regular Ripley page feature. The descriptions for each picture will be published in the Classified Ad Columns.

3—The New Ripley "Title Hunt" consists in finding the descriptions, clipping them out, and placing each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up the description will be published as a single unit in one place.

4—Hold all of the pictures until you have thirty complete sets of 10 each—300 pictures in all. Then send them in to the New Ripley "Title Hunt" Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

5—All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, Thursday, December 11th. No entries will be returned to the sender.

6—Fifteen hundred dollars in cash prizes, in accordance with the complete prize list published herewith, will be paid to the persons sending in the most nearly correct and most neatly prepared set of pictures at the close of the New Ripley "Title Hunt."

7—A committee of judges will be appointed by the Sun-Telegraph to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decisions of these judges as final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be given each tying contestant.

8—It is not necessary to purchase the Sun-Telegraph to compete. This newspaper may be examined at the office or at the public libraries free of charge and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures from the Sun-Telegraph and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

Be Sure to Get All the Pictures

The demand for both the week-day and Sunday editions of the Sun-Telegraph is bound to be immense and each day's supply quickly exhausted. To be sure you get the pictures and descriptions as they appear each day, it is good judgment to place a regular order NOW.

Legal Notices 107

ROBERT F. GRAHAM, Attorney-at-Law, 615 Frick Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa. In the Orphans' Court of Allegheny County, State of Pennsylvania, No. 183 September Term, 1930. In re estate of Charles Lysle, an absentee and presumed decedent. To Charles Lysle: You will take notice that a decree has been entered in the above proceedings that a legal presumption of the death of Charles Lysle has been made out and established. You are therefore required, if living, or any person for you, to produce to the said court on or before the sixth day of March, 1931, at 10 o'clock A. M. Eastern Standard Time, satisfactory evidence of your continuance in life, and unless such satisfactory evidence is furnished to the said court by you, the said Charles Lysle, on or before the said March 6, 1931, that you are still living, the decree entered by the said Orphans' Court of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, in the above proceedings will be confirmed absolutely and the Register of Wills of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, will be directed to issue letters of administration on your estate to the persons entitled thereto. By order of the Orphans' Court of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania.

NOTICE OF HEARING

Notice is hereby given that application has been made to the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, M. C. 5555-30, under the provisions of the Public Service Company Law, by Duquesne Light Company for a certificate of public convenience evidencing the Commission's requisite approval of a contract between Duquesne Light Company and the Township of Mt. Lebanon, Allegheny County, providing for the supply of light and power to Mt. Lebanon Park, in said township, for a period of five years.

A public hearing upon this application will be held in Hearing Room, No. 1, Ground Floor, East Wing, North Office Building, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, on Tuesday, Nov. 25, 1930, at 9:30 a. m., when and where all persons in interest may appear and be heard, if they so desire.

DAILY TRUE STORY

'All Alike'

"Men," Helen Saunders remarked, "are all alike."

"Perhaps," she said, "but at that I would rather select a man with my eyes open than to grab anyone out of a dark room!"

"Oh, they don't all look alike, I grant you, but they are all alike as to thoughts, habits, character and so on."

Helen went to the window and stared moodily down the great driveway across the grounds of her beautiful home.

"You were happier when you worked in the public library, before you inherited all of your uncle's millions," Rita said.

"No—n-o-o-o," she repeated, slowly. "I wouldn't say that. I wasn't so very happy, working and scrimping to buy decent clothes. I am happy with all of this luxury and I love the jewels and clothes, the servants and—and the way people seem to respect me—"

"Your money," Rita said, softly.

Not Offended

Instead of being offended, Helen turned swiftly and nodded.

"I realize that. And it leads right back to what I just said, that all men are alike. I'm just the same Helen Saunders as ever —I mean, I was just as good and just as good looking when I was poor as I am now."

"Certainly you are just as good and just as beautiful and the similarity stops there—now you have wealth in addition. That didn't break your heart, did it?"

"I know I could marry in a minute. I could telephone any one of a score of young men that I had changed my mind and he would marry me in a minute—because I'm wealthy. It may sound Victorian and all that, like a page from a novel written in the mauve decade, but I want to be loved for me, not my dollars."

"I rather thought that Doctor Harrison was really smitten with you, Helen."

Accepts Proposal

"He's as nice as any of them, but he overdoes it. He never mentions anything about marriage. He takes me out now and then, and he explains frankly that he is a young doctor, just building up a practice, and cannot afford night clubs or costly presents, or the piratical rates of opening night seats to shows. As if I didn't understand that. He thinks he is clever; he thinks I will admire him for his honest admission of poverty and offer to finance him. He will propose before long."

"It's a shame. You are obsessed by the belief that every man wants your money—so obsessed that you aren't able to see when a real man really loves you."

The wedding was all that it should have been—rather simple for so wealthy a bride, but flawless in every detail.

"I can't do that, Helen. Dr. Morley, who is taking care of my practice, is going away in another week and I am to reciprocate by taking care of his practice," he explained.

"But, Hawley, be sensible, dear. You don't have to slave over any other doctor's practice—you can give away your own practice—we don't have to count dollars, you know."

"But we do, Helen. I have a handsome little cottage home, as you know. I can keep it up, maintain you and prosper, but I cannot play the millionaire. That's nonsense."

"Live—live in that cottage? Don't be absurd, Harley, when I have such a lovely mansion and —and everything."

"And I certainly do not intend to give up my profession and live on your income. If you refuse to come and live in my little home, we won't have any sensation. I'll take the money I had saved and go to Vienna for a three-year course of study that I have so much wanted. Only the fact that I wanted you more than the study in Vienna made me marry you."

Sail for Europe

"Well, go ahead. I will say you were called abroad to confer with some noted physicians, and that I am going with you. When we get over there you go on to Vienna and I'll travel for a year or so. Meanwhile, we can be quietly divorced in Paris."

They did sail.

Dr. Harrison went on to Vienna.

Helen established herself in a villa in Southern France. For six months she lived there. Then she went to Vienna.

When she got to Vienna and went to look up the young American doctor at his quarters, she was told that it was most amazing and unfortunate.

"He left for a short visit with his wife. How sad that he will not find you," the motherly woman told her at the house where the doctor had been living, the home of one of the surgeons at the hospital where he had been working.

Helen promptly sent a wire to her villa, giving orders to have Dr. Harrison remain there, as she would be back the next day.

"I was wrong, dear," Harvey said. "I cannot put my profession above you. I can't live without you."

"I don't want to live without you, Harvey, and I was wrong. All men are not alike!"

Their second honeymoon has already extended over a year, and they are still at the villa.

WITH MR. FRISBY IN DARKEST AFRICA

By HORACE WALPOLE FRISBY

(Author of "With Frisby," "With Frisby in Africa" and "With Frisby in Darkest Africa.")

ON ARRIVING in Africa, I was heckled by hordes of African officials, who demanded to know who I was and asked me to explain the purpose of my trip. I shall never forget the reply I made on that occasion—an occasion marked by a small monument which I caused to be erected. The incident took place in broad daylight, where I pulled myself to my full height and spoke as follows:

"Gentlemen, you are ignorant heathen. What do you know of Horace Frisby? You never seen me before, but I will tell you frankly that you are looking upon Frisby now—you are looking upon a man whose motto, or slogan, is, 'Tell the truth and hurl it out—let her rip!' Somehow, Horace Frisby belongs to the ages. There is no logic like the logic of facts. Let her rip!"

Well, sir, in a few words I had changed that hostile native into an enthusiastic booster and to this day you will see him assembled in little groups, jibbering what when translated means, "Horace Frisby, by his magnetism, changed our native Africa into a cleaner, healthier place with a moral atmosphere. Drunkards became sober, vice was banished and gambling and political dishonesty is a thing of the past. How does he do it?

Read next Sattidy's installment for the answer, folks.

TODAY'S NEWS PICTURE

Among the many philanthropic deeds bobbing up each and every day, here and there about the nation, very few are even a little bit more noteworthy than that of Mr. Eno E. Endroitty. Clearly seeing that a great necessity was about to exist, Mr. Endroitty scurried about collecting other people's money and established a retirement home for unfortunate judges who have disappeared.

Pittsburgh's Problems

Buses Grab Trolley Trade, Steel Workers Strike, Other Local Topics Briefly Discussed.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company's answer to the Allied Boards of Trade complaint that it was charging 25 cents for a 10-cent ride on its buses was that it had to make the bus fare high to protect its trolley business. And now comes evidence that it is discouraging people from riding the trolleys by running street cars in the Shadyside district at less frequent intervals than the buses. It will be unfortunate if this evidence cannot be laid before the Public Service Commission in some way.

While thousands of men are eager for jobs of any kind, steel workers employed on the Gulf Building have gone on strike because of a dispute as to which union shall do certain work on the adjoining Federal Reserve Bank Building, which is being erected by the same contractors that are building the Gulf structure. These jurisdictional disputes in the building trades are of frequent occurrence here, and are giving union labor a bad reputation. It appears that if a builder wants assurance that his work will proceed without interruption from strikes it is necessary for him to get an agreement in advance of starting the job as to exactly which union shall have jurisdiction over every nail that is driven.

Director Clark, of the Department of Public Safety is not to be outdone by Director Maits of the Department of Public Health, it seems, in efforts to make Pittsburgh a cleaner city. Right on the heels of Dr. Maits' announcement of a campaign to prevent people from dumping garbage and trash in the streets, Director Clark announces a movement to make the city's police stations neater and more sanitary. Taking liberties with Shakespeare, the public may well say to the two directors, "A blessing on both your houses!"

The indictment by the federal grand jury of a former captain of the State police on a charge of dodging income tax calls attention to a weapon that has been employed with telling effect against delinquent public officials both here and elsewhere. The accused man is said to have had an income totaling $133,689 during a period of six years, though his salary was only $3,000 a year. It will be recalled that Magistrate John Orie was convicted of evading income tax as an aftermath of the rum conspiracy cases.

A mechanic at Charleroi was killed Thursday by carbon monoxide from a bus underneath which he was working while the motor ran. The same day a Washington, Pa., man was overcome by carbon monoxide while driving his car. The incidents are important as additional proofs that it is not only in a small closed garage that the exhaust gas from automobiles may be deadly.

There is a question if the carbon monoxide discharged by passing motor cars does not render the air of some of our downtown streets unfit to breathe. The question is of more than academic interest. Several years ago the then Mexican consul in Pittsburgh, Roberto Quiroz, was compelled by ill health to ask his government to transfer him to another post. His physician stated that Mr. Quiroz's health had been injured by the carbon monoxide with which the atmosphere in Fourth avenue, where the consul had his office, was polluted.

There is difference of opinion as to what would happen if there should be a serious traffic jam in the Liberty Tubes. At the time of their opening a jam occurred and a number of persons were overcome by carbon monoxide. Since then the ventilation has been improved. The subject, it is encouraging to know, is receiving a great deal of study. And there is no place where the facilities and personnel for studying it are better than in Pittsburgh, with its Mellon Institute and Bureau of Mines laboratories and their staffs of scientists.

A multitude of rural dwellers will be happy if County Solicitor Lesher finds the County Commissioners have authority to construct sidewalks alongside the county roads, as is proposed. The problem of going anywhere on foot in the country has become a serious matter, especially at night. The paved roads are in some places the only thoroughfares available; yet the use of them by pedestrians is dangerous not only to the pedestrians but to automobilists compelled to swerve from their course to avoid striking them. It would be helpful if the commissioners would do no more than lay out cinder paths along the highways.

The nation's foremost road builders will be in Pittsburgh next week for the annual meeting of the American Association of Highway Officials. It will offer an opportunity to find out what is being done elsewhere in the country not only in regard to sidewalks in the rural sections but with respect to other important road problems. It is a satisfaction to note that the County Commissioners are alive to the chance that the convention offers to get the best opinion concerning highway matters. The Commissioners are to be hosts to the highway officials at a banquet.

Pennsylvanians have nothing to be ashamed of in the roads that will be seen in this state by the visiting highway officials. Our highways are perhaps the best in the country. And yet, so rapidly are methods and materials of highway construction being improved that our present roads may look, 10 years hence, as old-fashioned and inferior as our highways built 10 years ago do when compared with our most recently constructed major arteries. It is necessary for highway engineers and officials to keep on the alert if their roads are to be the best that can be built.

Voting commences tomorrow to determine which picture is most liked by visitors to the International Exhibition of Paintings at Carnegie Institute. Every visitor during the next two weeks will be asked to express a choice on a ballot, and the artist whose canvas receives the largest number of votes will be awarded a prize of $200. The voting offers a good chance for art lovers to express their approval or disapproval of the judgment of the jury of award. It is interesting, and perhaps significant, that in previous years the "popular prize" has rarely or never gone to the first prize chosen by the professional jury. It may not be amiss to observe, in this connection, that one does not have to be a cook to know if the soup is good.

Herbert L. Spencer, principal of the H. C. Frick Teachers Training School, entertained 13 teachers in Room No. 13 at the Hotel Schenley on the thirteenth of November. He is to be congratulated on his deliberate defiance of the silly old superstition that so many people are fearful of. If there were more contemptuous flouting of these ridiculous superstitions, they would soon cease to exercise so strong an influence on the unintelligent.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Music Hath Charms

All because we rapped the man who turns over the music for the man who plays the piano for Fritz Kreisler. It's getting tough when a critic can't fumble a little bottle in the medicine closet once in a while.

Our own musical education suffered because the organ grinder in our neighborhood had a monkey that objected to picking up hot pennies.

We once listened to the tonsil gymnastics in the Metropolitan Opera. We left early for the same reason that the colored lady refused to wait on table for the rich society family.

The opera started with a tenor making a rich, nasal accusation. And for the next five hours the rest of the company howled rebuttals.

He was president of the Polish corridor. And when he sat down to the piano his cabinet was really glad to listen to him.

Kreisler and Paderewski never play in a duet. That's the finest kind of music.

How can one man compete with Roxy's orchestra? Roxy's musicians must be good. Roxy won't allow 'em to walk a step. They're so good he brings 'em up on an elevator.

SCIENCE IN SOCIAL STUDY

By Archibald Henderson

It is not merely curiosity, the insatiable desire to know, which alone prompts sociologists to make scientific studies of primitive peoples now living on the earth. Many of our own customs, in so-called civilized countries, are gravely suspected and constantly undergoing scutiny and revision. Child education, adult education, marriage, adolescence, are all coming in for intensive study, as a result of dissatisfaction with present conditions.

The late G. Stanley Hall devoted many years of his life to the study of adolescence, crowning these prolonged years of investigation with an exhaustive work on that subject.

Modern sociologists and philosophers are putting the institution of marriage under the microscope and submitting it to the severest tests. Among them may be mentioned Westermarck; Shaw in his amusing play, "Getting Married;" Wells, in a novel called "Marriage," and Bertrand Russell, in "Marriage and Morals." It is highly desirable to study the manner and customs of primitive peoples today, to learn many sane, helpful, simple practices, habits and attitudes which will repay our study and perhaps cause a modification in our beliefs and practices.

A remarkable study of this kind has recently been made by Margaret Mead, a young anthropologist connected with the American Museum of Natural History. This investigation was not along stereotyped lines, neither a synthesis of all that others had written on the subject or even a description, from the outside, of the manners and customs of primitive peoples.

Miss Mead, through the generosity of the Board of Fellowships in the Biological Sciences of the National Research Council, was enabled to study the Samoan Islanders at first hand for nine months.

Several hundred Samoans cooperated with Miss Mead in carrying out her investigations. She lived with these primitive peoples, became a member of their society, shared their confidences and learned their secrets. In her own words, regarding the problems of childhood, infant and child psychology and adolescence.

"I concentrated upon the girls of the community. I spent the greater part of my time with them. I studied most closely the households in which adolescent girls lived. I spent more time in the games of children than in the councils of their elders. Speaking their language, eating their food, sitting barefoot and cross-legged upon the pebbly floor, I did my best to minimize the differences between us and to learn to know and understand all the girls of three little villages on the coast of the little island of Tau, in the Mann's Archipelago."

The principal questions for which Miss Mead sought and found answers, the very questions which promoted the investigation and sent her to Samoa are: (1) Are the disturbances which vex our adolescents due to the nature of adolescence itself or to civilization? (2) Under different conditions does adolescence present a different picture?

Miss Mead found, among other things, that children were exposed ruthlessly to the stark realities of life, of birth, sex, death, as the natural, inevitable structure of existence, in knowledge of which young and mature are to share alike.

Are childhood and adolescence unavoidable periods of adjustment through which every one must pass? Much of the strain of this painful process of adaptation disappears under primitive conditions.

Franz Boas, speaking for anthropologists, affirms, as the result of Miss Mead's study, that much of what we ascribe to human nature is no more than a reaction to the restraints put upon us by our civilization.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

First time I heard it, it made me mad. Sounded so flippant and heartless. I'd grown up in the Victorian era, when it was your doleful duty to be bothered by everyone and everything.

Every proper thinking person had a cross to bear. If possible, two or three of 'em. If you didn't have a regular cross, you made one of any little splinter. And to see a new generation arise and announce gaily—"I can't be bothered!" was certainly some shock!

But gradually I've come to see that there's philosophy in those four words—perhaps even real religion. And certainly there's the salvation of the human race, if we have the nerve to hang on to them.

"I can't be bothered!"—that does not mean that the speaker has no heart. But it does mean that he has a head, which refuses to bow to every passing demand and disturbance. Henley put it more poetically, but he meant the same thing when he wrote:

How charged with punisnment the scroll,
I am the master of my fate;
I am the captain of my soul!"

You are the captain of your soul and it's up to you to safeguard that soul's efficiency by keeping it locked against bother. Once let your bother invade you and everything will get your goat. You'll be the victim of every wheeze of humanity and sneeze of destiny. And your usefulness to yourself or the other fellow will be completely destroyed. For bother buys you nothing but red eyes and blood pressure.

Realize and recognize need . . . keep yourself sensitive to and tolerant toward pain and trouble. But don't let it get you down. Get busy but refuse to be bothered. Don't admit that anything can lick you, for nothing can lick you if you refuse to admit it.

"I can't be bothered!" . . . there, in a slangy capsule, is the marching song of civilization. Bother was all our cave-fathers knew. Danger and disaster, fear and ignorance, time and space bothered them. They were at the mercy of the darkness about them and the greater darkness within themselves.

Slowly they conquered bother. Little by little they proved that man was master of his fate. They learned to kill animals, save food, fight fire and disease. AND NOW THEY CONQUER TIME AND SPACE.

Little, weak man standing up and thumbing his nose at destiny . . . crying out, "I can't be bothered" . . . and triumphing over destiny because he has the courage to make that cry!

Make that your cry! Face this new day with its thousands of tiny, wasting pressures and demands and say: "I can't be bothered!" And you won't be!

Isn't It So?

The experience gained by hard knocks is never fully appreciated until after the soreness has disappeared.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Heaven

Sometimes I think that Heaven is not
An ever fair and joyous spot
Where seraphim and cherubim
Lift golden notes in tender hymn,
A spot as radiant as day,
But, oh, so very far away!

I think sometimes, that Heaven, instead,
Rests close about a child's fair head,
Or in the thoughts love joys to send

Sometimes I feel Heaven is as near
As in the hand of one most dear,
In which I gladly lay my own
To go down ways unknown or known
With no regret or questioning,
So long as to that hand I cling.
And Heaven, I am sure,
Is in each soul whose thoughts are pure.

National Bargain Season

And Some Who Benefit.

POTTERY WORKER

SILVER MINER

With prices cut a third or a half from last year's figures the American housewife finds that these are days when careful spending is the best saving.

Millions of families throughout the country are taking advantage of the prevalent low prices to stock their homes with needed supplies that will last them half a lifetime, or longer.

This is a national bargain season. It will not be here forever. The woman who holds the family pursestrings sees that, and is buying in a buyer's market. Her dollar goes farther today than it did in the past or will go in the future.

Never before, perhaps, was advertising scanned so carefully by purchasers. By comparing prices and quality, the woman who feeds and clothes a family or furnishes a home finds articles within her reach that a few months ago would have knocked the domestic budget out of the ring.

It is lucky for the country that its people are beginning again to buy. The money spent for necessities, or even for luxuries, makes jobs for the nation's workers. When you lay in a new supply of linen for your dining room table, for instance, you help to fill the pay envelopes of men and women in the textile mills. The silver which you may be able to buy now means employment for others. The china, which at the old high prices you perhaps couldn't afford, is the product of hundreds of skilled laborers and deft craftsmen.

WEAVER.

THE FINISHED PRODUCTS.

All these benefit by your purchase, and become purchasers in turn.

It is pleasant to be able to help others, but that, after all, must be a secondary consideration with most of us.

We are more interested in getting our money's worth, or a little more, when we buy.

If not, it is because they can't read price tags. The opportunities are here. You will find them listed for you in the columns of ANY newspaper.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—For 10 days I have been struggling hopelessly to raise—or is it rear?—a mustache. Somewhere I read they were to be all the go this winter. But today I gave up the struggle and my upper lip is again back in the open and I forgive the hooters.

I even forgive Clarabell Walsh who on the third day of the sprout had my coffee served at her dinner party in an old-fashioned mustache cup. Frankly I neither aspired to one of those western sheriff droopers nor an upstart affair, suggesting two stuffed gnats under glass, like Paul Whiteman's.

What I wanted was just a plain middle-class family style mustache that would bloom in all its wild loveliness without barber's pomade, expert combing or a slip-on cover when I retired for the night. I realized I would never be much as a mustache stroker.

Indeed there have been rumors I do not comb my hair half the time. The real trouble in my mustache experimentation was the darn thing had no symmetry. It grew six different ways and by time it reached maturity resembled an outcast toothbrush that Bill Edwards stepped on. You know—bla-a-a!

Watching it was like gazing at a frog to see which way it would jump. It was all out of kilter and cock-eyed from the start. Had I left it alone for another week it would have, like trailing arbutus, been running down the back of my collar.

At first it was great fun. I would nap awhile at night and then pop into the bathroom to note progress in the mirror. One night during an inspection my wife called out "The magnifying glass is on top your dressing table!" But she didn't have to add: "I'll bet all the girls chase you tomorrow!"

I think about the sixth day enthusiasm began to cool. The mustache had the appearance of suddenly growing tired of it all and wilting. I tried to perk it up with a little petting and despite discouragement decided to hang on a while longer.

* * *

I have endured calumny and smart cracking jeers about spats for years but they don't hold a candle to a growing mustache for inspiring sarcasm. Persons I had only known by sight for years grew suddenly intimate. A crossing cop called out cheerfully: "I've seen worse in Police Gazette pictures."

* * *

And I distinctly heard the switchboard operator in a certain building say to an elevator man as I passed: "There goes the old personality boy!"

* * *

Nor was I too deaf to catch the crack of a celery blond waitress in a Madison avenue restaurant who after turning away with my order whispered to one of her sisters: "It must be alive. It breathes.

* * *

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

As a boss you want to discharge a man who is not producing as he should.

Instead of firing him summarily why not have a talk with him?

He may be trying to give the best possible, but does not understand what you want him to do.

Perhaps he tries so hard to please you that his work does not represent all of which he is capable.

In trying to meet your demands he may not think enough of the kind of work he is turning out.

If he has not a true conception of what you want, naturally he cannot meet your demands and requirements.

Groping with uncertainty he fails to reach the point of efficiency he must have to satisfy your standards.

He knows how serious it is to lose a job.

The fear of losing and the feeling that he is not pleasing you robs him of initiative and the freedom of action necessary to good work.
